TRUMAN'S PLEA BOOMS SERVICE MERGER PLANS

Favors Parity for Air Power

BY WALTER TROHAN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—Merger of the army and navy into a single unified command was regarded as a certainty tonight as congress voiced wide support to President Truman's message to congress calling for military unification as a means of serving notice on the world the United States "means business" in its determination to be prepared in the age of sudden, atomic warfare.

As the commander in chief cast the nation's lot with the army in the long and bitter struggle over merger, the navy swiftly moved to withdraw its opposition to the single department plan the White House indorsed. Navy Secretary Forrestal issued orders to navy and marine officers to refrain from opposition to the Presidential program in public utterances, except when called as witnesses before committees of congress.

Organizational Plan

In his 5,500 word message, which developed nine arguments for combining the army and navy into one single department of national defense, President Truman proposed the following organization for the new department:

The secretary of national defense—

A. His civilian staff.
1. An undersecretary of national defense.
2. Assistant secretary for army.
3. Assistant secretary of navy.
4. Assistant secretary for air.
5. Other assistant secretaries as needed.

B. His military staff.
1. Chief of staff of national defense.
   A. Commander of the army.
   B. Commander of the navy.
   C. Commander of the air.
2. Advisory council to the President to be made up of the chief of staff and the three service commanders.

Secretary Always Civilian

The message specified that the secretary of national defense must always be a civilian. The post of chief of staff is to be rotated among the services during the period of evolution and is not to be held for more than two or three years in time of peace.

It was believed possible that War Secretary Patterson might be named first secretary for national defense because of his championship of the army program which the President indorsed, altho it was felt that in order to placate the navy the post might be assigned to some one who has not taken part in the heated controversy.

The post of chief of staff was considered as a certainty for Gen. Eisenhower, with Gen. McNarney heading the army, Adm. Nimitz heading the navy, and Gen. Spaatz commanding air.

Forrestal May Resign

It was widely considered likely that Forrestal and Assistant Navy Secretary Hensel, who vigorously fought merger, will submit their resignations.

Mr. Truman offered his merger

Both Services Reduce Points for Discharge

Pays Him to Enlist

New York, Dec. 19—(AP)—Pvt. 1st Class Lawrence Slyman, father of 10 children, reënlisted in the army today with the comment: "I'm not doing too badly as a civilian, but I can do much better financially in the army." As a civilian he received $52 weekly; in the army he said he would get about $330 a month.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—Drafting of fathers was ordered discontinued at once today by national selective service headquarters. Local boards also were instructed not to accept as volunteers any fathers with three or more children.

Meanwhile today army and navy personnel received a variety of Christmas presents from their services, including a lowering of points required for discharge and a new system for promotion of army officers leaving the service who have been overlong in grade.

For practical purposes, the end of the father draft affects only men under 26. Older men have not been drafted since the war ended.

Some Dads May Volunteer

Under the selective service directive, men with one or two children still may volunteer.

Reduction in the number of discharge points is expected to make 837,000 more men and women eligible for release by Feb. 2.

The navy dropped its requirements to 35 points, effective Jan. 15, and to 34 beginning Feb. 2 for the bulk of enlisted men. For officers, the minimum was cut to 42 beginning Jan. 15 and to 41 effective Feb. 2. The total for WAVE officers will be lowered to 28 on Feb. 2 simultaneously with a reduction to 22 for enlisted WAVES.

These reductions, expected to make 237,000 additional naval personnel eligible for discharge, are in addition to the reduced scale which becomes effective Jan. 1. On that date, the number required for enlisted men is 36; officers, 43; WAVE officers, 29, and enlisted WAVES, 23.

Army Cuts Points to 50

The reduced points for army personnel effective Dec. 31 will open the way for approximately 600,000 men and women to return to civilian life early next year. The critical score for enlisted men was cut from 55 to 50 points and for male officers from 73 to 70.

For the first time length of service will be considered in computing discharge qualifications for WACs. Enlisted WACs may be discharged after two and one-half years of hon-

Cline Friend's Ashes Reveal Hint of Poison

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 19 [Special]—A chemical analysis of the ashes of a woman whose death in Portland, Ore., last Nov. 29 was announced by Alfred Leonard Cline as that of his wealthy wife, Mrs. Delora Krebs Cline, has produced a reaction similar to the chemical group in which arsenic is found.

Coroner William Crosby Jr. of San Mateo county made this announcement tonight on the basis of a report from Joseph Swim, San Francisco city toxicologist.

The ashes were examined by Swim at Crosby's request after their seizure at Cypress Lawn cemetery, San Mateo county, where they had been sent from Portland on Cline's orders. San Francisco police have stated they believe the woman who died in Portland was Mrs. Isabelle Van Natta, San Francisco widow, and that Mrs. Krebs Cline actually died in Dallas, Tex., a year ago.

Opens Way to Prosecution

Swim's findings were said to pave the way to a murder prosecution against Cline in Portland. He is being held in the city prison here on forgery charges and on a murder charge filed in Dallas. The woman who died in Dallas had been registered in a hotel in that city as Mrs. Alice W. Carpenter of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Swim said that the value of his analysis in a murder prosecution will depend on whether arsenic or a similar poison is used in Portland in embalmings.

Deputy District Atty. Harding McGuire left here today to begin a roundup of evidence regarding deaths of women associated with Cline in various cities, District Atty. Edmund Brown announced. McGuire's first stop will be Los Angeles, where one of Cline's early wives, Mrs. Bessie Van Sickle Cline, and her brother, Lucias Brandt McCreery, died in 1933. He will then visit Dallas, Macon, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla.

Police Theories Tie In

In Jacksonville a woman who died Nov. 8, 1943, as Elizabeth Hannah Klein is believed to be a missing Mrs. Elizabeth Hunt Lewis of Oakland, Cal.

In Macon, a woman who died Feb. 21, 1944, as Mrs. Alma Willa Carter, is believed to be Mrs. Alice W. Carpenter of St. Petersburg, Fla. This theory ties in with the police belief that it was Mrs. Krebs Cline who died in Dallas as Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Van Natta who died in Portland as Mrs. Krebs Cline.

Possibility that another person may be added to the list of suspected Cline victims arose today when local police said they are inquiring into his possible connection with the death of a middle aged woman whose nude body was found earlier in the day in the desert near Las Vegas, Nev. This woman had been dead about a month, police said, and Cline is known to have been in the vicinity of Las Vegas a month ago.

Police said they are attempting to trace Cline's history before his first known appearance in Fort Collins in the early 1920s.

A watch found in Cline's possession bearing an inscription that it had been presented to a Chicago man in 1919 has been established a part of the loot of a Chicago burglary in 1923, police said. The original owner, Louis A. Nathan, of 843 Lincoln av., Highland Park, Ill., said he won the watch in a sales contest and that it disappeared after a burglary of his former home on Magnolia av., Chicago, in 1923.

STUDY STORAGE RECORDS

Jack Rubens, chief investigator for the Cook county public administrator, said here yesterday that a study of records of the Anderson Brothers warehouse, 3141 Sheffield av., where Cline stored furniture and other effects of Mrs. Krebs Cline, supports the theory that the former Chicago woman died in Dallas. Rubens said all of Mrs. Krebs Cline's furs were in storage for nearly a year before Cline announced her death in Portland last Nov. 29, and that some of these furs were shipped to the warehouse by mail a few days after the death of the woman in Dallas in October, 1944.

BANKS UNDER GUARD AFTER 'HOLDUP MAP' IS FOUND IN HOTEL

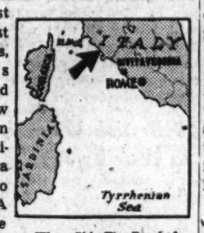
Police Chief Ernest E. Overbey of Joliet disclosed yesterday that heavily armed police squads, the federal bureau of investigation, and Will county sheriff's deputies have been waiting in ambush for two weeks for a gang of Oklahoma bad men to swoop upon the city.

A crude drawing found in a hotel room in Bartlesville, Okla., indicated that the gang planned to hold up two banks in the Joliet business district and set up a machine gun in an alley covering the main entrance of the police station, Chief Overbey said. The diagram showed one bandit car in front of the First National bank at Chicago and Van Buren sts. and another at the Union National bank at Jefferson and Ottawa sts.

"We couldn't be sure whether this was a genuine robbery plan or just some young Oklahoma boy's work on a thesis for a degree in banditry," the chief said. "It has put us on the alert, in any case."

UNRRA Ship Beached After Hitting Mines

ROME, Dec. 19 (AP)—The Liberty ship Nathaniel Bacon struck two mines last night, burst into flames, and was abandoned by her crew while en route to Civitavecchia with a cargo of UNRRA supplies, the war shipping administration office here said today.



Where Ship Was Beached

25 Men in Life Boat

Poor communications with that region made it difficult to check the fate of the crewmen, said to number approximately 50, who took to boats and rafts. One raft beached with five men aboard, three of whom were badly injured.

A life boat said to be carrying 25 men was sighted off Mont Alto di Castro during the day, but there were no further reports on it. UNRRA officials had ambulances and first aid crews waiting at the seaside for survivors.

Latest reports said fires aboard the 7,176 ton frater carrying 4,600 tons of flour, 4,750 cases of medical supplies, and other UNRRA goods—had apparently burned out. An UNRRA spokesman said preliminary inspections indicated some cargo might be salvageable.

Storm Damages Ships

LONDON, Dec. 19 (AP)—High winds which lashed western Europe for 72 hours subsided somewhat today, but storm warnings still were displayed off battered southern England and a gale raged with unabated fury along the coast of Portugal.

The United States aircraft carrier Wasp, damaged yesterday, put in at Plymouth today for repairs. The United States cruiser Augusta, on a homeward bound trip, also was damaged yesterday. The S. S. Belgian Sailor, 7,000 tons, was reported in distress in the north Atlantic with a damaged rudder.

Sends Distress Signals

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 19 (AP)—An unidentified American cargo ship and the former Canadian navy corvette Sorel were reported in distress today after heavy gales.

The Sorel was aground on tiny Henry Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, according to a message from Port Hood. The ship was in eight feet of water 75 yards from shore but the crew of 19 was taken off safely.

TRUMAN GIVES LEAGUE POST TO MRS. F. D. R.

Vandenberg Placed in Assembly, Too

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the former President, was nominated by President Truman today as an American spokesman in the new league of nations established to maintain world peace.

Mrs. Roosevelt was nominated as one of the American representatives on the league's general assembly, which will convene in London Jan. 10. Other members nominated are Edward R. Stettinius Jr., who will act as senior American representative in the absence of President Truman or State Secretary Byrnes; Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], one of the administration's leading internationalists, and Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.].

Security Council Delegate

Stettinius also was chosen for the major American post in the league: representative of the United States on the league's security council, which can make the final decision on war.

Mr. Truman named the following as alternates in the general assembly: Rep. Bloom [D., N. Y.], Rep. Eaton [R., N. J.], former Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, John Foster Dulles, and John G. Townsend, former Republican governor and former senator of Delaware.

It has been reported for some time that Mrs. Roosevelt soon would emerge from private life to take a federal post.

Connally, who as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, has pushed most of the administration's global policies thru the senate, had his reward today: An opportunity to dramatize the proceedings in the manner for which he is widely known.

He Sees Them First

Mr. Truman's nominations were placed in Connally's hands before any one else knew of them.

Rising suddenly while the senate was engaged in other business, Connally announced the nominations and, as his custom on international matters, demanded immediate action. Senate tradition calls for confirmation on the day after nominations are made.

Connally explained that the nominations are for the assembly's first, or London session, but it was indicated that the representatives' services would not be terminated at its close.

Langer Objects

Any hope Connally might have had of jamming the nominations thru today was dashed when Sen. Langer [R., N. D.] sprang to his feet to object to the immediate confirmation of Stettinius. Sen. Taft [R., O.] then protested against confirmation of any of the nominees without adequate notice to all the senators and Connally dropped his demand.

The general assembly has been termed the league's "town hall of the world." To it are to be brought most of the problems that the league will consider, including the early stages of disputes upon which the security council may call out American fighting men and the rest of the global police force.

Representatives at Conference

Of the internationalists in the first string American delegation, Connally and Vandenberg were both American representatives at the San Francisco conference, where the league's charter was written last summer.

Stettinius, former secretary of state, was chairman of the American delegation at San Francisco and he has been the American representative in the formative stage of the league since President Truman accepted his resignation as secretary of state.

Conferees of the house and senate today agreed upon the bill authorizing the President to appoint representatives for American participation in the league. It now goes to the White House.

Sees Overflow in 90 Days at Air Terminal

BY FRANK STURDY

The already overburdened terminal at Chicago airport will be jammed beyond its capacity to provide even standing room for air passengers within three months, C. R. Smith, chairman of American Airlines, predicted yesterday in a speech urging faster progress toward completing the larger terminal now under construction.

Smith discussed Chicago's future in air transportation at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Palmer House. For a city of its rank and importance, Chicago has the "most woefully inadequate passenger terminal of any airport in this country," Smith said.

Cites Present Confusion

"There is crowding and confusion at the airport today, and the largest airplane using it regularly in domestic service is but a 21 passenger plane," he said. "You can imagine the jam that will result when 50 passenger planes taxi up every few minutes and attempt to discharge their passengers into the present inadequate space. In February, American Airlines will begin operating 50 passenger planes into Chicago and the other air lines soon will do likewise."

Highlights of his analysis of Chicago's air future included:

It is calculated the city will have 4,800,000 passengers using its air facilities out of 22 million air passengers in the United States in 1950.

Future Funnel of Air Traffic

Chicago is destined to be "the great funnel for air traffic to Europe from nearly all the western United States." He added that "it is even conceivable that air travel from some sections of Latin America for Europe will be routed thru Chicago."

Chicagoans now know it is not necessary to go to an ocean port before starting to Europe, that the trip can be started from Chicago airport and completed without changing conveyances.

If Chicago is to deal with air passenger traffic in a creditable manner, Smith said, it is necessary that:

1. The present airport be regarded as a permanent part of the city's air facilities, because not even the projected huge new Douglas site near Park Ridge will suffice alone.

2. Speedy access to the present airport be provided by means of an expressway.

3. The Douglas project be recognized as more pressing than is generally realized. It can't be made ready for use before it is urgently needed, "no matter with what speed you operate," he added.

Urges Campaign for Travelers

4. An expressway to the Douglas port be "one of the first requirements," because of the distance of the site from the business district.

No time should be lost, Smith urged, in organizing a campaign by the association and other civic organizations to impress travelers in all sections of the west that Chicago is the most desirable gateway to Europe and many other parts of the world. Otherwise, old travel habits will impel them to continue using such seaports as New York.

Because of the fact that many thousands of air travelers get their most important impression of the city from the terminal building restaurant, he urged that special attention be given to providing the best possible dining facilities in the new terminal.

Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive of the association, who recently led Chicago's delegation to London to present the city's case for selection as the permanent home of the united nations organization, reported the results of the trip at the luncheon. Chicago, Lyons said, probably will be among four or five cities selected as possibilities by the site committee. It has "as good a chance as any city in the United States," he believes.

PLEA FOR YEAR EXTENSION IS BEATEN, 31-30

Six Democrats Help in Rejection

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—Denouncing government domination of industry, Republicans of the senate today defeated by one vote the administration's program to extend President Truman's vast war powers for another year.

The Republicans, aided by six Democrats and Sen. La Follette [Prog., Wis.], cut the extension to next June 30. The vote was 31 to 30.

The war powers act, under which the President's war agencies control prices and priorities, would have expired Dec. 31 if the extension had not been voted.

Approved by House

Extension to June 30 had already been approved by the house, after extended hearings. But the senate judiciary committee, under pressure from the administration and from the agencies, including the office of price administration, which are fighting for their lives, amended the house bill to make the date six months later.

Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] brought the bill to the senate floor and demanded acceptance of the committee amendment as "an expression of confidence" in the administration. He promised that no further extension would be asked, if the administration got the year it wanted instead of six months.

But Sen. Taft [R., O.] warned that the burocrats are reluctant to give up their arbitrary power and may take back some of those they have been forced to relinquish.

Hits Priorities Section

"The most important provision of the bill," Taft said, "is that dealing with priorities, giving the President unprecedented power over the industries of the United States.

"The priorities powers, together with the price control powers, actually give the government practically the powr to dictate the daily action of every industry in the United States. The priorities powers cover every kind of material, cover the daily life of the individual, and the daily transactions of every business."

OPA Propaganda Cited

O'Mahoney protested that the government has already given up many of its war controls.

Taft reported that OPA and other agencies are carrying on propaganda programs to continue their existence, and said:

"From now on I believe that these powers that have been given up are going to be steadily restored. We are going to have new peace time demands for which it will be perfectly possible to apply these war powers."

Democrats Miscalculate

The Democrats were confident that they had sufficient votes to beat the Republican movement. But the Democrats overlooked one point:

In the last few days of rushing thru the legislative program before the holidays, their leadership has switched from consideration of one bill to another without regard for senate procedure. Democrats and Republicans alike have expressed their displeasure by leaving the chamber in such numbers that it has been difficult to obtain a quorum.

Taft called for a quorum immediately after finishing his discussion of the war powers bill. Republicans came flocking back. Democrats didn't flock fast enough. And the Republicans won.

One Patient's Visit Slips Doctor 2 More at Door

Petersburg, Ind., Dec. 19 (AP)—Lannie Siple, suffering from a broken rib, was accompanied to a doctor's office by his wife and sister-in-law, Mrs. Macel Willis. Mrs. Siple slipped on ice at the door of the building and broke her right arm. Mrs. Willis started into the office, fell, and broke her right arm. The doctor patched up all three.

ADMIRAL ADMITS HE MISINFORMED ROBERTS INQUIRY

Wilkinson Recants Before Present Probers

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—Vice Adm. Theodore S. Wilkinson, naval intelligence chief in 1941, admitted today that he misinformed the Roberts commission investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster when he told it that all available information on Japan's moves and intentions was sent to Adm. Kimmel, naval commander at Hawaii, before the attack.

The admission came as Wilkinson concluded his testimony before the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee.

Wilkinson's hitherto secret testimony before the Roberts commission was disclosed in a memorandum produced today by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.].

[The commission, headed by Former Supreme Court Justice Roberts, was assigned by President Roosevelt a few days after the Jap attack to make a report on the responsibility for our defeat.]

Read by Ferguson

The memorandum read by Ferguson quoted Wilkinson as telling the commission, in connection with questions as to vital data sent Kimmel before Dec. 7, 1941, that "the commander in chief Pacific [Kimmel] had as much information as we [in Washington] did."

The Roberts commission subsequently issued a report placing the major blame for the success of the Jap attack on Adm. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Short, army commander at the base.

Wilkinson repeatedly has told the congressional committee in the last three days, however, that he was instructed not to send Kimmel copies or summaries of crucial intercepted Jap messages indicating to Washington officialdom that Japan planned to make war. Kimmel was not supplied either, the admiral said, with information on diplomatic exchanges between our state department and Jap envoys, which pointed toward an early war crisis.

Too Broad a Statement

"Do you want to let your statement before the Roberts commission stand, in view of what you have told this committee," Ferguson asked today.

"No," replied Wilkinson. "It was too broad a statement. Adm. Kimmel did have the same information we had in Washington on Japanese ship movements. He did not have the information we did on decoded messages or diplomatic exchanges."

The document quoting Wilkinson's statement to the Roberts commission was in the form of a memorandum by Wilkinson to the chief of naval operations on Aug. 29, 1944, in which the intelligence chief recited his testimony before that commission in 1941.

According to the paper, Wilkinson told the commission he did not expect Kimmel to "infer a raid on Hawaii [was coming] any more than we had been able to do from the same information."

Can't Find Record

The witness said he could not recall whether the Roberts commission took any stenographic record of his statement at the time, but added that he has never been able to find such a record.

His correction today of his earlier statements to the Roberts board added to the mass of contradictory testimony given by key witnesses to various boards that inquired into the naval disaster before the congressional committee began its study.

The committee heard today that the commander of a powerful task force which steamed out of Pearl Harbor westward on Dec. 5, 1941, was in ignorance of the "war warning" messages sent from Washington to Adm. Kimmel on Nov. 27, Nov. 24, and Oct. 16.

The disclosure was contained in an official navy report cited by Rep. Murphy [D., Pa.]. The report said the task force, headed by Adm. John Henry Newton, included the aircraft carrier Lexington, the cruisers Chicago and Portland, and five destroyers and was on a mission to Midway Island to deliver combat planes.

Remained in Ignorance

Adm. Newton was quoted as saying that when he sailed from the harbor and "thereafter" he remained in ignorance of the warnings sent Kimmel.

Murphy asked Wilkinson if he knew "any reason" why Kimmel should not have informed Newton of the warning messages before the task force sailed, and Wilkinson said he did not.

Evidence that another Pacific fleet task force, including the carrier Enterprise and heading for Wake island prior to the attack, took precautions against possible Jap submarine assaults, was produced by Rep. Keefe [R., Wis.]. The force was commanded by Adm. Halsey.

Reads from Log

Keefe read from the log of the Enterprise excerpts of Dec. 3 and 4, stating that the carrier was "zigzagging" and was being darkened at night. The log showed the zigzag patterns were changed frequently. It also showed the crew was on "condition No. 3," which Wilkinson said meant its guns were partly manned for defense purposes.

Wilkinson said the excerpts from the log indicated it was maneuvering for defense against possible attacks by U-boats.

The navy report read by Murphy showed that Adm. Newton's task force also was zig-zagging and sending out scouting planes because Newton felt "there might be more damage from submarines than previously."

Further information on a reported all-out air alert by the army at Hawaii from Dec. 1 to Dec. 6, 1941, was asked by Rep. Gearhart [R., Cal.] who said he has received reports that it was "extensive" alert covering several air fields at Hawaii.

Reported Canceled

Gearhart told the committee last week he had received a letter from a soldier, who reported that such an alert was in effect at Hickam field but was canceled the afternoon before the Dec. 7 attack.

The congressman reported today he has received other letters from soldiers that such an alert was also in force at Wheeler field, Hawaii, and similarly called off Dec. 6. He asked Counsel Mitchell to get full reports on this from the army, including information on who ordered the alerts terminated.

Following Wilkinson's testimony, the committee late today called as a witness Admiral Richmond Kelly Turner, chief of the navy war plans division at the time of Pearl Harbor.

Turner, describing the functions of the war plans division, said it was his duty to clear reports from the naval intelligence office on estimates of foreign powers' military intentions, before such reports went to the chief of naval operations.

His brief testimony indicated an apparent conflict between the war plans division and the intelligence branch, headed by Wilkinson, as to their respective functions. Counsel William D. Mitchell asked Turner to talk with Wilkinson overnight and see if the two of them could agree on a statement to the committee on this subject.

Substantiating evidence that Japan knew, or suspected, as early as May, 1941, that the United States was deciphering Jap coded messages thruout the world was placed before the committee at the start of the session by Counsel Mitchell.

The evidence, which Mitchell said was supplied by the army, consisted of eight Jap messages in April and May, 1941, between Tokyo and its envoys in Washington and Berlin. Our intelligence decoded these messages at the time, thus showing that we knew of Japan's suspicions.

This development corroborated reports quoted by Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] yesterday in questioning Wilkinson. Wilkinson told the committee he had heard the Japs knew we were decoding their secret exchanges. Mitchell previously had maintained a search by his staff of available files had failed to indicate that such was the case.

Translated by Navy

One message read to the committee was sent May 3, 1941, from Japanese Ambassador Oshima in Berlin to Tokyo was translated by our navy May 6. Oshima said German intelligence had reported that the United States government was reading Ambassador Nomura's code messages. [Nomura was in Washington.] It also said Germany was deciphering coded exchanges.

On May 7 Tokyo passed the report from Berlin on to Nomura in a message which we decoded the same day. Nomura then reported back to Tokyo May 20 that he had "discovered the United States is reading some of our codes," altho he said he did not know which ones. Our army intelligence translated this on May 21.

Adm. Wilkinson told the morning session that late in 1941 he considered a submarine attack on Hawaii more likely than an air attack. He said this opinion was based on the theory that submarines could approach more closely to the base without detection than aircraft.

Not a Probability

Questioned by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.], Wilkinson said he, like other high military and naval officials in Washington, considered a Jap attack on Hawaii a "possibility but not a probability."

The committee also learned that the all-out army alert ordered in Hawaii by Washington in the summer of 1940, a year and a half before Pearl Harbor, was based on the premise that an attack at that time by Japan on Hawaii "could not be ruled out because a large part of our fleet was based there."

This estimate was contained in a memorandum from Maj. Gen. George V. Strong, chief of army war plans division in 1940, which was read into the record by Rep. Keefe [R., Wis.].

In Marshall's Office

The Strong memorandum, recently prepared in response to the committee's request, related that a conference was held in the office of Gen. Marshall, then chief of staff, in June, 1940, to discuss defense measures.

Gen. Strong said he told Gen. Marshall that, with the allies reeling under German pressure in Europe as a result of Dunkirk and the French surrender, there was a possibility Japan might enter the war on the axis side, with a German-Japanese move into South America a possibility. Strong feared the Japs planned to wreck the Panama canal by sabotage and envisioned a "diversionary" attack on Pearl Harbor. The discussion resulted in Marshall's order for an alert in Hawaii against a possible "trans-Pacific raid."

SEEK AUTHORITY TO EXTEND WAR INQUIRY 6 WEEKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—The congressional Pearl Harbor committee voted late today to ask congress for authority to continue its inquiry into the naval disaster until Feb. 15, six weeks beyond the present Jan. 3 limitation.

The action, taken in a closed meeting, flew in the face of a warning from Counsel William D. Mitchell, who is resigning, that the investigation will run far beyond Feb. 15 if all witnesses are heard and thoroly examined.

A committee member said Mitchell told the group it would be impossible to finish within the time decided.

Protests Questioning

The member said Mitchell made the statement in reiterating his intention of resigning, with his entire staff, to fulfill private commitments in his law practice. Mitchell announced last week he would quit about Jan. 1, and protested the thoro cross-examining of witnesses by Republican members as to time-consuming.

The vote to extend the study for six weeks was announced by Chairman Barkley [D., Ky.], who had suggested only a 30 day continuance. Seven members voted for the Feb. 15 deadline, with Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] voting against it and Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] recorded as "present."

Ferguson wanted an indefinite continuance of the inquiry so the committee would not be rushed in its hearings to meet a deadline. He said such pressure might mean the committee would miss hearing vital testimony. Barkley explained that another continuance beyond Feb. 15 can be sought, if necessary.

Winds Message Testimony

Mitchell reportedly told the group that 20 witnesses are slated to testify on the mysterious "winds" message alone. This message was prepared by Japan to tip off its agents thru weather broadcasts that it was ready to make war with the United States. Secret testimony from some witnesses indicates we intercepted such a war warning via the "winds" code four days before Pearl Harbor, but other witnesses deny it.

The counsel further estimated it will take three weeks to a month, according to a committee member, to hear and examine Adm. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Short, commanders at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, and Adm. Stark, then chief of naval operations.

Some members have urged that Kimmel and Short be called to testify as the next witnesses. The original schedule provided for hearing them near the end, so they could have a chance to reply to testimony by other witnesses that might weigh against them in fixing blame for the naval disaster.

No Decision Reached

Barkley said no decision was reached today on when to call Kimmel, Short, and Stark. He told reporters the committee authorized him "to cruise around in legal circles" for new committee counsel. He said he has no one in mind as yet for the job.

The chairman also announced the committee will recess for the holidays from Saturday, Dec. 22, to Dec. 31, when hearings will be resumed. He said the committee decided to add a half hour to the morning sessions, making 4½ hours a day, as a means of accelerating the inquiry.

Barkley, who threatened to quit the committee after Mitchell resigned, told reporters he has not yet decided whether to stay. He said last week that with a lengthy inquiry in prospect, he would have to weigh his duty to the committee against his obligations as senate majority leader.

Five Found Dead of Gas Fumes in Home in Iowa

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 19 [Special].—Five persons were found dead of carbon monoxide gas fumes today in a house at Lemars, 25 miles north of here. The dead were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harms, 85 and 76, respectively; their son-in-law and daughter, Henry J. Siebels, 34, and Mrs. Catherine Siebels, 52, and Miss Sylvia Siebels, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Siebels. Soot which clogged the chimney caused the gas to form, the coroner said.

BRITISH ORDER CAR DRIVERS ARMED IN BERLIN CRIME WAVE

BERLIN, Dec. 19 [Reuters]—From tonight British army or civilian car drivers must carry arms and ammunition in the streets of Berlin after 9 p. m. Women drivers must be accompanied by an armed escort. Military personnel on the streets after midnight must carry arms.

These new instructions coincide with an outbreak of shooting incidents. Saturday night in Spandau a British soldier was killed and another injured. Sunday night a Russian soldier was injured when British troops intervened to prevent the robbing of German civilians in a suburban electric train.

Today's list of crimes committed in Berlin included, according to the press, the murder and robbing of Rudolf Janer, an engineer, by three non-Germans in civilian clothes. A number of men speaking Polish dragged a German woman from Kottbus, into a room at Wannsee station and raped and robbed her, taking her clothes as well.

PRISONER SLAIN, SOLDIER FACES DEATH PENALTY

Court Martial Yank for Shooting

Monterey, Cal., Dec. 18 [Special]—With his life at stake, a United States army corporal went on trial here today before a general court martial on charges of "premeditated and deliberate" homicide in the fatal shooting at near-by Fort Ord Dec. 3 of a German prisoner of war.

The corporal is James O. Provost, formerly of Lafayette, La., and recently assigned as a guard in the prisoner of war section of the Fort Ord service command. The prisoner for whose death he is on trial was Richard Mangold, a private in the German army.

Wife and Child in Court

Members of the court were asked before they were sworn in if they had any prejudices against imposition of the death penalty, usually an indication that the prosecution intends to ask for a capital sentence. Provost's wife and child were in court as the trial began.

Frank S. Waddak and Guy L. Murphy, civilian employes at Fort Ord, were called as the first witnesses for the prosecution. Both told of seeing Mangold rush out of a building with his hands above his head, followed by Provost with a leveled rifle.

Poked German with Rifle

Both said the German prisoner looked frightened and that Provost was poking him in the back with the rifle. They said Mangold rushed toward them, but turned and tried to dodge back into the building from which he had come. Provost fired five shots at Mangold before the latter could enter the building, they said.

Waddak testified that after the shooting Provost told him he had been reading a newspaper and that the prisoner had attempted to pick up his rifle. The trial will be resumed tomorrow with Provost expected to take the stand in his own defense.

Navy to Sell $7,283,000 Surplus in 14th District

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Dec. 19 (AP)—Navy property in the 14th naval district valued at $7,283,000 has been declared surplus, Vice Adm. S. A. Taffinger, commandant, said today. Of this amount, more than $1,000,000 worth already has been sold by the interior department's office of surplus property.

M'VAY CLEARED ON ONE CHARGE, DEFER 2D RULING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—Capt. Charles B. McVay was acquitted on a charge of inefficiency today in the loss of the cruiser Indianapolis but no immediate report was filed on an additional charge of negligence.

Under general court martial procedure, a finding of guilty on any count is not announced immediately. It is withheld pending review by the judge advocate general of the navy. Immediate announcements are restricted to allegations which the court finds "not proved."

Captain Is Shaken

Capt. McVay was pale and obviously shaken as the court martial failed to announce acquittal on the negligence charge. There were tears in the eyes of Mrs. McVay, who has attended all the proceedings.

McVay's close friend, Capt. Thomas J. Ryan Jr., who was the judge advocate prosecutor, tried in vain to control his voice as he said, "I'm sorry," to McVay. The latter replied:

"It's for the good of the service, whatever the findings."

The final verdict will be announced by the secretary of the navy who may lessen or revoke any recommended punishment, but may not increase it.

A Month Is Required

A sentence involving dismissal or death must be reviewed by the President. Court officials estimated the time required for review at about a month.

The inefficiency charge, found not proved, was based on an allegation that McVay neglected to issue "timely" abandon ship orders, as a result of which many lives were lost. The other charge, negligence, grew out of his asserted failure to order a zigzag course thru possibly dangerous waters. The Indianapolis was sunk last July 30 while en route from Guam to Leyte.

The seven man court, headed by Rear Adm. Wilder D. Baker, announced its finding after more than two hours deliberation, following final arguments of the prosecution and defense.

Possible sentences under war time conditions range from a maximum of death or dismissal down to a reduction of a few numbers in grade.

Further Arguments

After announcing its finding, the court invited any further argument in "aggravation, mitigation, or extenuation."

The defense then called Judge Advocate Ryan to testify on Capt. McVay's official record, which was offered in evidence. Capt. Ryan testified that the "only unfavorable entry" in the record pertained to the loss of the Indianapolis, and that in general it deserved the classification of "outstanding."

A pertinent element in the negligence charge was the degree of visibility prevailing at the time the Indianapolis was sunk.

Capt. McVay testified that in his opinion the visibility was so poor when he retired about an hour before the sinking as to make zigzagging unnecessary.

JOHN AMERY DIES ON BRITISH GALLOWS FOR AID TO GERMANY

LONDON, Dec. 19 (AP)—John Amery, 33, Briton who broadcast propaganda for the Nazis during the war, was hanged for high treason at Wandsworth prison today.

John Amery

Amery's mother and his father, L. S. Amery, former secretary of state for India, and one time first lord of the admiralty, visited him last night in his cell, next to that of William [Lord Haw Haw] Joyce, who is awaiting hanging for a similar offense. Amery's brother and his wife, Una Wing, an actress, left the prison shortly before he went to death.

Amery left England after going bankrupt before the war, and was living on the Riviera when France fell. In his nazi broadcasts he attempted to attract Britons into a "League of St. George" to fight the Russians.

MARSHALL DUE IN CHINA; TELL OF NEW FIGHTING

CHUNGKING, Dec. 20 [Thursday] —(AP)—The communist New China Daily News today said in a dispatch that "intensive" fighting broke out Tuesday within a radius of 20 miles of the cities of Peiping and Tientsin.

The dispatch was received as national government and Chinese communist leaders were reported ready to "go the limit" with peace concessions to impress Gen. Marshall, new United States ambassador to China, who is due in Shanghai late today.

The dispatch said government troops, supported by Japanese and puppet troops, opened a drive "under cover of swarms of planes." Communists retaliated in self-defense, but were forced to yield numerous villages, it added. Another dispatch to the same paper said the government had moved four armies to reenforce the southern sector of the Peiping-Hankow railroad between Hankow and Sinyang, 110 miles north, and began an attack on Communist held areas to the east and west of the railway.

EXPECT BRITISH TO TAKE RUHR'S HEAVY INDUSTRY

Leave a Door Open for Internationalization

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 19—Ownership and operation of all German heavy industries in the Ruhr, including coal mines and steel plants, are to be taken over soon by British occupation authorities, it was reported here today. An official announcement to that effect is expected to be made by the British control commission in Germany Friday.

The British plan, which could be described loosely as nationalization, places the control of the mines and industries with the occupying power in lieu of a state which not yet has been defined. It is understood that a door is to be left open for any future internationalization of this area if such proves to be the ultimate decision. Meanwhile, the British will hold the properties "in trust."

British Personnel Expected

With the expropriation, the British are expected to replace German management and key personnel in the Ruhr industries with their own men.

This plan differs from the nationalization being carried on in the Russian zone where state control is being introduced piecemeal and holdings handed over to the German provincial administrations.

The first indication of British intentions came early this month with wide scale arrests of nazi industrialists. It was necessary to keep nazis on the job until recently to get the Ruhr plants into operation, but this preliminary phase now has passed, the British explain. The desire to denazify German industry is said here to be one of the motives of the earliest and most important backers.

French Fear Allied Move

PARIS, Dec. 19 [Reuters]—Some apprehension was aroused in Paris tonight by unofficial and unconfirmed reports that the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, and Russia, meeting in Moscow were considering a "compromise" plan for the internationalization of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

The French press attributed the plan to British Foreign Secretary Bevin. The plan was raised, it was said, on the idea of creating an international holding company to control all German industrial enterprises in the key area of the Rhur.

This international holding company would exercise strict control over Ruhr production, but German political sovereignty over the area would be left intact, it was reported.

The Paris press said Bevin hopes his plan will meet the United States' objection to soviet participation in political control of the Ruhr, while at the same time taking control of production from German hands.

Opposed to French Plan

There were indications, however, that such a plan would fail to meet the cardinal principle of French policy on the Ruhr and Rhineland: That these areas must not remain under control of any future central German government.

The previously announced French plan for internationalization, not merely of Ruhr industries, but of the entire region, including its administration, envisaged creation of an internationally controled independent state.

French foreign office officials tonight were disinclined to believe that the three foreign ministers were discussing plans for internationalizing the Ruhr. They recalled assurances received from Bevin that the Moscow discussions would not embrace subjects vitally affecting French interests.

MONTY TO VISIT CANADA FIRST TIME IN APRIL

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Dec. 19—Field Marshal Montgomery will make his first trip to the western hemisphere next April to visit Canada, he announced tonight as a dinner guest of American newspaper correspondents in the Berlin press camp.

"I have never been to the American continent and am looking forward with great expectancy to visit Canada," he said.

Monty, who made the beret famous, instituted another sartorial innovation at the press dinner by wearing the three colored necktie of the royal tank corps instead of the usual khaki with field uniform.

"Brown for mud, red for blood, and green for the green fields after the break-thru" is the motto for the colors in the tie.

Monty informed reporters he rarely dines out as he retires at 9:30 p. m. "I even persuaded Ike [Eisenhower] to make our repasts together luncheons instead of dinners."

PALMER HOUSE BOARD NAMED; 3 CHICAGOANS

Hilton Takes Control of Famous Hotel

BY ORVILLE DWYER

Conrad N. Hilton, president of the Hilton Hotels of America, yesterday formally took over the Palmer House, which he purchased two weeks ago. Signing of documents and the taking over of some 10½ million dollars in notes and preferred and common stock from the Potter Palmer estate by Hilton marked the transfer of the famous hotel at Wabash av., State and Monroe sts., from the Chicago family which opened it in Civil war days to the man who has recently become America's—and probably the world's—biggest hotel owner.

Hilton said the price agreed upon for the Palmer House was $19,385,000. He added, however, that with certain equipment, stocks of merchandise and a pension plan just inaugurated by the Palmers and taken over by him the total he will pay will approximate 19¾ million dollars.

Owner of 14 Hotels.

The purchase made Hilton the owner of 14 hotels with a total capacity of 10,200 rooms, including the Plaza and Roosevelt in New York, the Stevens [which he purchased last Feb. 15 for 7½ millions] and Palmer House in Chicago and the Town House and Ambassador in Los Angeles. In addition to himself, Hilton said the following will form the board of directors of the Palmer House:

Edward Eagle Brown, president of the First National Bank of Chicago; Henry Crown, board chairman of the Materials Service corporation, and Walter P. Paepcke, president of the Container Corporation of America, Chicagoans; and Robert Dowling, president City Investing company of New York; Y. Frank Freeman, executive vice president Paramount Pictures, Hollwood, Cal.; and L. Boyd Hatch, executive vice president of the Atlas corporation, New York.

Chicagoans in Company

Chicagoans among the new company's security holders, he said, are H. L. and Lawrence Stern, bankers; P. J. Dee, theater owner; and William J. Friedman, one of his attorneys.

At the same time Hilton announced that with himself as president, other officers of the Palmer House will be Col. Joseph P. Binns, vice president and general manager; Robert P. Williford, vice president; Harry L. Ludwig, treasurer; Atty. Friedman, secretary, and H. E. Holt, asistant secretary.

Henry L. Hollis and E. J. McGowen of the Palmer estate, and Atty. Fred Hack represented the Palmers, headed by Honore Palmer, 68, of Pensacola, Fla., and Chicago. From sources close to the Palmers it was learned that the wish to distribute the 20 millions or more in the Palmer estate was the reason for the sale by the family in times when the hotel business is booming as never before.

M'ARTHUR GIVES VOTE TO JAPAN'S EX-PRISONERS

TOKYO, Dec. 20 [Thursday]—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur today ordered the Japanese government to restore the right to vote and hold public office to all former political prisoners.

A determination to keep a firm hold on the Japanese people and their future while affording opportunity for "a completely vanquished enemy to correct the error of its ways" was reëmphasized by Gen. MacArthur in instructions to his commands.

Japan must support allied objectives, MacArthur said. But to impose upon the nation "any form of government not supported by the freely expressed will of the people is contrary to the Potsdam terms."

Control will be exercised as much as possible "thru the emperor and other instrumentalities of the Japanese government found suitable," the instructions stated.

BORROWED REVOLVER KILLS BOY, 13; HIS PLAYMATE IS HELD

Robert Henderson, 13, of 4826 Princeton av., was fatally shot in the bathroom of his home yesterday with a .22 caliber revolver in the hands of a playmate, Michael Baker, 13, of 4908 S. Wells st. Young Henderson was pronounced dead at Evangelical hospital.

Michael Baker

Detective Patrick McInerney of Stock Yards police said Robert Baker, 14, Michael's brother, borrowed the revolver from an acquaintance and secreted it in the Baker home. He said Michael found the revolver, and took it to the Henderson home to show it to Robert.

Michael Baker told him, McInerney said, that Henderson asked to examine the gun, and that it was discharged as Michael handed it to his playmate, the bullet striking the Henderson boy just below the heart. Henderson's parents were absent from home at the time. Baker is held by juvenile authorities.

RAMSPECK LAYS HIS RESIGNATION TO LOW SALARY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—Rep. Ramspeck [D., Ga.], house majority whip, joined two departing colleagues today in giving poor pay as his reason for quitting congress.

Ramspeck counseled house members in a "swan song" speech that they not only should boost their $10,000 a year salaries but also should vote funds for establishing offices for themselves in their home districts.

Representatives Woodrum [D., Va.] and Weiss [D., Pa.] already have announced they are leaving for more lucrative jobs.

"We ought to provide funds for well staffed offices in each district," Ramspeck said, "and also allow more money for larger and better staffs in our offices and committees in Washington."

Ramspeck termed the present $10,000 salary scale "a shame and a disgrace." Ramspeck also pleaded for "an adequate system of retirement insurance" for congressmen.

The Georgian is to become executive vice president of the Air Transport Association of America at a reported salary of more than $25,000 a year.

ROYALTY'S HUGE INCOME CITED IN BATTLE ON LOAN

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19.—A salary list of the kings and queens of the world was given to the house today by Rep. Landis [R., Ind.] in a speech opposing a 4 billion 400 million dollar loan to Great Britain and future grants to other foreign countries.

Britain's royal household gets more than $2,000,000 a year, Landis said. This is provided in a civil list, established at the beginning of each reign. The civil list of the present king, fixed in 1937, provides as follows [at the current rate of exchange]:

King's privy purse, $444,400; salaries of royal household and retired allowances, $541,360; household expenses, $617,312; alms and bounty, $53,328; Queen Mary, $282,800; Princess Elizabeth, $24,240; Duke of Gloucester, $141,400; Princess Royal, $24,240. [No provision is made for the Duke of Windsor.]

Belgium King Gets $405,120

Egypt—King's civil list, $413,800; royal family allowarce, $413,800.

Italy—Royal civil list, $570,409; prince of Piedmont, heir apparent, $152,109; duke of Aosta and duke of Genoa, $50,703 each.

Denmark—King's civil list, $193,080; royal household, $29,194.

$637,536 for Queen

Netherlands — Queen's civil list, $637,536; maintenance royal palaces, $53,128. [The queen and the family of Orange also have a tremendous income from domains and private enterprises.]

Norway—King's civil list, $158,983; crown prince, $34,064.

Yugoslavia—King's civil list, $537,528.

Landis said the state department and the congressional library were unable to furnish him the figures on the income of the rulers of Russia and China. He noted the president of France received about $36,000 [pre-war figures] and the president of the federal council of Switzerland receives only $6,949 annual salary. The Bulgarian civil list in 1938 carried $58,032 plus $330,508 for maintenance of palaces, etc., he said.

"These exorbitant salaries and allowances paid to certain kings and rulers may be one reason why American taxpayers are opposed to foreign loans," he told the house.

Warns of Bankruptcy

"We must not bankrupt America in order to finance the world. America must not play the role of Santa Claus to foreign nations."

Landis said he opposed lending money abroad "to make socialism work in England and communism work in Russia." Any future loans, he said, "must be protected with contracts for strategic and critical materials and air bases which are vital to our national defense.

"Let's beware of the kind of a leader who is 'a steady patriot of the world alone, the friend of every country but his own.'"

SMALL MISSOURI COLLEGE TO HEAR CHURCHILL TALK

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—Winston Churchill, it was announced today, will sail for the United States in mid-January for a visit to be climaxed by an address at little Westminster college in Fulton, Mo.

Where Churchill will speak

President Truman indorsed the invitation to the former British prime minister to speak in the President's home state, and agreed to introduce him. The speech, entitled "World Affairs," will be delivered March 5, 1946.

Churchill is coming to the United States largely for a rest. Directed by his medical adviser to spend a month or more in a warm climate, he will spend most of his visit in Florida. There he will be the guest of Col. Frank Clarke of Quebec, whose Florida house has been made available to Churchill, his wife, and their daughter, Mrs. Sarah Oliver.

Westminster college is in historic Callaway county. Folks call the county "the kingdom of Callaway." During the Civil war Callaway lined up with the Confederacy when the larger part of Missouri was on the Union side. It is one of the richest agricultural counties in the state. Fulton is a town of 8,300 population.

Westminster college was founded in 1853, and is maintained by the Presbyterian synod of Missouri as an exclusive college for men. Registration is limited to 300 students.

CONVICT WIDOW IN GUN SLAYING OF COAST NURSE

Mrs. Mansfeldt Near Collapse in Court

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 19 [Special]—Mrs. Annie Irene Mansfeldt, 45, was convicted of manslaughter tonight in the slaying of Mrs. Vada Martin, 36, nurse, whom she had accused of stealing the love of her husband, Dr. John Mansfeldt. Dr. Mansfeldt committed suicide following his wife's arrest.

Mrs. Mansfeldt, socially prominent, heard the jury's verdict, which carries with it a sentence not exceeding 10 years, in stunned silence.

Appears Near Collapse

She appeared on the verge of collapse as she was led from the courtroom. The jury of six men and six women reached its verdict at 12:03 a. m. Thursday [Chicago time] after deliberating 4 hours and 38 minutes.

Wednesday morning was set for Mrs. Mansfeldt's trial on her second plea of innocent by reason of insanity.

The defendant's mother, Mrs. Susie Hunter, 71, of Fresno, and the victim's husband, William Martin, a Baltimore naval officer, were not in court.

Mrs. Mansfeldt shot and killed Mrs. Martin on Oct. 4 as the two women sat in Mrs. Mansfeldt's car.

Doctor's Body Found

Mrs. Mansfeldt said at that time, she was convinced by the dying woman's denials that her suspicions were unfounded.

Three days later, Dr. Mansfeldt's body was found slumped in his car at a small ocean inlet near San Francisco.

SHOT IN STORE HOLDUP

Paul Jarabak, 55, proprietor of a liquor store at 3763 Guthrie st., East Chicago, Ind., was in serious condition in St. Catherine's hospital, East Chicago, last night with a bullet wound in the abdomen. He was shot by one of three Negroes who held him up in the store and robbed him of $80.

U. S. LEND-LEASE GLOBAL SCHOLAR FUND PROPOSED

Would Use Credits from Surplus Goods

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 [Special]—Plans are being pushed to have the United States convert part of its remaining stocks of property abroad into a self-perpetuating scholarship fund, which will bring foreign students to this country, and finance studies of Americans overseas, on a broader scale than in operation previously.

England, France, Italy, Australia, and China are the countries where American credits from lend-lease and surplus property settlements will make possible application of the scholarship program on the widest scale. However, its sponsors hope that ways will be found to extend the program also to Norway, New Zealand, India, and particularly Russia. Sufficient credits, it is believed, will not be available elsewhere.

Sen. Fulbright [D., Ark.], author of the scheme, attended Oxford university as a Rhodes scholar and was chairman of the American delegation of the conference of allied ministers of education in London last year. Fulbright, who has had the enthusiastic support of the state department's new cultural relations division, has introduced a bill [S1636] which would transfer from the surplus property administrator to the state department control over the disposition of all surplus property outside the United States and island possessions.

Goes to Committee

Under the bill, which has been referred to the military affairs committee, the secretary of state is authorized to accept foreign currencies or credits, intangible rights of the discharge of claims against the United States and to make agreements with foreign governments for the use of funds derived from sales of surplus for these purposes:

"1. Financing studies, research, instruction, library operation, and other educational activities of, or for, American citizens in schools and institutions of higher learning, located in such foreign country, or of the citizens of such foreign country in American schools and institutions of higher learning located outside the continental United States . . . including payment for transportation, tuition, maintenance, and other expenses incident to scholastic activities, or

"2. Furnishing transportation for citizens of such foreign country who desire to attend American schools and institutions of higher learning in the continental United States, Hawaii, Alaska [including the Aleutian Islands], Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands."

Amendment Proposed

William Benton, assistant secretary of state for public affairs, said he had only one criticism of the Fulbright bill. He asserted that it was too narrow and said the state department would propose an amendment to authorize use of credits simply for "educational programs," thus permitting it to use them "for the translation of books, the maintenance of libraries abroad, and numerous other educational activities in which it is already engaged."

Cabs Circle City Hall in Protest Picketing

Fifteen taxicabs yesterday moved around the city hall and county building in motorized picketing in protest against a city ordinance limiting the number of cabs in Chicago to 3,000. The picketing cabs were driven by members of the American Association of Taxicab Drivers for Discharged Servicemen, who are seeking an amendment to the ordinance which would boost the limit by 500. The cabs were driven around the block for slightly more than an hour.

Barber Is Found Slain in Rear Room of Shop

Jesus Martinez, 48, a barber in a shop at 75 W. Harrison st., where he slept in a rear room, was found slain there yesterday, his throat slashed with a linoleum knife. Detective Eugene Steinway said Martinez apparently was killed in a drunken quarrel late Tuesday night.

Twenty-three passengers, 12 citizens and 11 aliens, arrived at Chicago airport yesterday on the sixth direct London to Chicago flight of the American Overseas Airlines.

Despite unfavorable weather, the flagship was only a half hour late and arrived exactly 25½ hours after take-off. Two regular stops had been made at Shannon airfield in Ireland and Gander, Newfoundland. The ship left Gander at 4:26 a. m. yesterday.

Among the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. D. Kidd, the son-in-law and daughter of William Maxwell Aitken [Lord Beaverbrook], English publisher, and their two children, Jane Margaret, 2½, and John, 1. The Kidds were on their way to make their home in Kensington, Ontario. Two English brides were also aboard, Mrs. Betty Swenson, 22, the former Lisa Brunell, actress and designer on the London stage, and Mrs. Shirley Adie Fernandez, 21, of Hertfordshire, England, with her son, Joseph, 9 months.

William Dunne, a former New York City employe and an invalid on crutches, returned from a five day visit to his sister in Sussex, and his brother in Kildare, Ireland. Fred Newton, a petroleum engineer, only Chicagoan on the plane, completed a round trip. He had flown to London Dec. 3.

Dearborn st. and went for a good, long ride. "It's a little impractical for making the rounds of my patients," he commented, "but you can't beat a sled for a good, old-fashioned time."

'DOM'S' ON WAY, AND SHY BRITISH GIRL IS EXCITED

NOTTINGHAM, England, Dec. 19 (AP)—Pretty, dark haired Rita Blankley, 17, whose father told an American paratrooper suitor to "come and see me after the war," tonight heard that Dominick Casciari of New Canaan, Conn., was on his way.

"I am so excited I don't know what I'm doing," Rita said bashfully.

"We didn't think the war would be over so soon," said her mother, Florence, "but he's an awful sweet boy."

And the father, Ferdin, who refused consent to the marriage when Casciari was stationed in England, filled his pipe and grinned, "he didn't waste any time, did he?"

"Come all that way, I can't very well send him away empty handed, can I?" he added.

Calls Him "Dom"

Rita said her last letter from "Dom," as she calls him, was nine days ago, and he did not say anything then about coming. Newspapers reported he left Boston by plane last night.

"He asked me once if I wanted him to surprise me or let me know," she smiled. "I said I didn't care as long as he came. It looks as tho he's trying to surprise me."

She said she last saw Casciari March 17 in an English hospital where he was recovering from wounds received in Germany. They met in Nottingham in July, 1944, when he was stationed there.

"One Sunday, it was," she said shyly. "I don't remember exactly how."

Casciari wrote from Germany in September that he was going to the United States, and then he cabled Nov. 8 he had been discharged from the army.

Gets Wardrobe Together

Since then Rita has been collecting a wardrobe. She has three new dresses—one pink, one blue, and one green, and a tweed coat, "because Dom said they like tweed in America."

"It took my last 18 coupons, that did," she smiled.

She added, "Dom's mother sent me three dresses, two pairs of shoes, and some stockings."

82D AIRBORNE TO BE PART OF RESERVE ARMY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—The war department said today that the 82d air borne division has been designated as the only air borne division to become part of the general reserve of the United States army.

Those men in the unit not eligible for discharge will form a cadre to train volunteers for this special type of organization, which proved itself in operations against the Germans.

It is necessary that the cadre begin its training as soon as possible in order to fulfill its mission as a training unit, the army said. For this reason the army statement added, a portion of the troops comprising the 82d air borne division and its complement will not have sufficient points for discharge when they arrive in the United States early in January.

REVEAL DETAILS OF NAVY'S SUPER PATROL PLANE

Expect It to Fly 5,000 Miles Nonstop

Burbank, Cal., Dec. 19 (AP)—A new super patrol plane, which its designers say has the greatest range, fastest speed, and heaviest armament of any scouting bomber yet developed, was announced today by the navy.

Known as the P2V, the midwing, land based monoplane can attain—on two duplex engines with a combined 4,600 horsepower—all the range and load performance claimed by the giant four engine B17s and B24s, say designing engineers at Lockheed Aircraft corporation.

Carries Seven Man Crew

For instance, the craft reputedly can fly its seven man crew nonstop for more than 5,000 miles—from Seattle, Wash., to Tokyo—at 300 miles an hour. Or, if based at Guam, it could scout Wake Island, Tokyo, Manila, and New Britain.

Capable of transporting enough explosives to sink a heavy cruiser, the 29 ton craft is fitted for two 2,000 pound aerial torpedoes, four 11.5 inch aerial rockets, 8,000 pounds of regular bombs or a dozen 325 pound depth charges.

Engineers say the plane has been tested extensively and that 100 production models will be delivered to the navy soon.

Demonstrate Radar Landings

Morrison Army Air Field, Fla., Dec. 19 (AP)—Seven army planes with pilots flying blind beneath hoods were landed at approximately 2 minute intervals here today in a demonstration of radar as applied to approach control instrument landings.

The demonstration, witnessed by civil aeronautics authority officials, air line representatives, and newspaper men, was staged to show how planes can be brought in quickly at an airfield closed in by fog and darkness, by use of radar.

Present CAA procedure calls for landing of aircraft at 10 to 15 minute intervals where visibility is virtually zero. With use of radar, planes are brought into a pattern over the field and then instructed to land with the instrument approach system at the rate of one every 2 minutes.

Bomb Thru Overcast

Wright Field, O., Dec. 19 (AP)—A radar navigational device made possible the bombing of targets thru overcast with an accuracy rivaling that of the Norden bombsight in clear weather, the air technical service command disclosed today.

The device, known as "shoran," was put into operation in Europe only six months before V-E day. The success of shoran, which got its name from "short ranged," depends on a range of not more than 250 miles from ground stations and on careful computations by air borne computer units.

WAR AIR CHIEFS RATE FLYERS AS FIT FOR ANY JOB

Outstanding in Mind and Body, Says Admiral

Two of America's greatest air warfare commanders went to bat yesterday for the boys they led to victory. Speaking at a luncheon meeting in the Chicago club, Vice Adm. D. C. Ramsey and Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May told a group of Chicago industrial leaders they now have available for employment a pool of air veterans qualified for any positions of leadership and responsibility.

F. B. Hubachek

The meeting was sponsored by trustees of the Air Services Placement center, 29 S. La Salle st., which has been organized to help all men who wore aviators' wings in the problems of returning to civilian life.

Atty. F. B. Hubachek introduced the speakers and the distinguished guests, who included Vice Adm. Frederick C. Sherman, Rear Adm. Edward C. Ewen, Brig. Gen. Leon Johnson, and Gov. Green.

"Above Average in Mind, Body"

Adm. Ramsey, deputy commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, who will become deputy chief of naval operations next month, said that during the war naval aviators destroyed five Japanese battleships, 13 aircraft carriers, 15 cruisers, 39 destroyers, and 15 submarines.

"The men who accomplished that job can be groomed for any type of work," he continued. "I know they are above average in body and mind. They have lived a long, long time."

Gen. Le May, who directed the B-29 bombing operations against the Japanese empire, said the men coming back from service in the air forces have a new confidence and considerably more ability than when they left home.

"Don't Pamper Them"

He warned that, while the returning veterans form a group of potential leaders in many fields of activity, they should not be permitted to become embittered, or the same group might provide fanatics or crackpots such as Hitler or Mussolini.

"They were taught to be aggressive," he said. "You don't have to pamper them. But they don't want to be treated as 'cases.' They want jobs and opportunity to get ahead."

At a press conference prior to the luncheon Gen. Le May urged that the United States develop a strong striking air force, rather than a defensive force. He said the recent war was won only because of the nation's vast resources, its industrial capacity, the time it had to prepare, and the vast ocean spaces which separated us from the enemy.

No Time Next Time

In the next war there will be no time to prepare and the vast ocean spaces are now meaningless, he asserted, pointing to the fact that B-29s now have a range of almost 10,000 miles; B-36s, 10,000 miles or more; and the new B-2 flies 60 miles into the stratosphere.

Soon airplanes will be flying faster than the speed of sound, he predicted, adding that he would not be surprised to see the development of a flying machine capable of reaching the moon.

Gen. Le May said that in the wars of the future, an air attack on a large scale will be unstoppable after it has been launched; flying bombs will be crewless devices controled by radio, and may be powered by atomic energy.

RAILROADS PUSH CARS WEST TO GET VETS HOME

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 19 [Special]—Prospects of getting home for Christmas—or at least getting started home—brightened materially today for thousands of soldiers and sailors from the Pacific war areas who for several days have been piling up in staging areas and aboard ships in west coast ports due to lack of transportation.

A joint army-navy announcement here today said the railroads have promised to begin moving 25,000 homeward bound servicemen from these ports beginning tomorrow.

If this is accomplished, hope was held out that the army's gloomy prediction of yesterday that 82,000 soldiers might have to spend Christmas at their ports of debarkation will prove unfounded.

110,000 More Coming

The army said yesterday that nearly 100,000 men are waiting for transportation from ports from San Diego, Cal., to Seattle, Wash., and that an additional 110,000 will arrive in ships scheduled to dock by Dec. 24.

Today's announcement said the railroads' anticipated ability to handle 25,000 troops a day starting tomorrow is based on the expected arrival of 1,000 coaches requisitioned several days ago from railroads. The arrival of these coaches was delayed by bad weather east of the Rockies.

Schedules call for the sending of 400 of these coaches to the San Francisco area, 350 to Seattle and Portland, Ore., and 250 to Los Angeles and San Diego, it was said.

Arrivals Slow Up

Local army staging areas reported that arrivals were slacking off today with the total of incoming soldiers placed at 5,982 for the San Francisco area. This area expects 7,000 arriving troops tomorrow and about 5,700 each on Friday and Saturday.

Army sources stated, however, that only about 80 per cent of arrivals are scheduled for immediate discharge or furlough.

Buses and planes are being utilized to the greatest extent possible, and some arrivals in the Seattle area are being routed east over Canadian railroads.

Restaurants in Japan Out of Bounds to Allies

TOKYO, Dec. 19 (AP)—Because of the critical Japanese food shortage allied headquarters today made all civilian eating places out of bounds to members of the occupation forces.

orable service and WAC officers after three years and three months. The critical score for WACs will not be reduced from the existing levels, 32 points for enlisted women and 37 for officers.

WACs who are married to discharged veterans may be discharged on their own application, regardless of their length of service. Other married WACs who enlisted on or before May 12, 1945, may be discharged on their application without regard to when they were married.

Cut Length of Service Factor

The length of service required for separation of enlisted men was reduced today by six months and by three months for male officers except those in the medical corps. Heretofore four years of service was required for enlisted men and four years and three months for officers. Length of service is computed from Sept. 16, 1940.

The plan to promote officers who have served beyond the normal periods in grade is designed to reward those whose promotions previously were delayed because of a lack of vacancies in their respective units, the army said. All officers thru the rank of lieutenant colonel are to be promoted on the first day of their terminal leave provided they have been in grade specified periods and meet minimum efficiency standards.

Two Years for Captains

The periods they must have served in their present grade are: 1st and 2d lieutenants, 18 months; captains and majors, 24 months, and lieutenant colonels, 30 months. In computing their service, an extra credit of 50 per cent is allowed for overseas service in the same grade.

In addition, however, officers to be eligible for promotion must also have an efficiency index of 40. This would be his average of the grades given him by his commanding officers, ranging from 50 or superior to 20 or satisfactory.

Eligible officers who already have started their leaves will receive their promotions as fast as the army can distribute them. Those whose leaves have ended will be promoted in the officer reserve corps or in the army of the United States. The increased pay will last only for the duration of the terminal leave.

CONGRESS O.K.'S REVISED BILL OF RIGHTS FOR GIS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—Congress passed a broad revision of the GI bill of rights today, liberalizing rules on loans and education for veterans.

The measure, amending the original law of last year benefiting veterans of World War II., now goes to the White House.

The house adopted it, 134 to 23, on a standing vote, and the senate shouted its approval a short time later. It was a compromise after weeks of heated controversy.

New Features Listed

One purpose was to simplify the law. New features include:

1. Removal of a requirement that tuition fees, unemployment compensation, and defaults on loans be deducted from any future federal bonus.

2. Increase in subsistence allowance for GI students from $50 to $65 monthly to those unmarried and $75 to $90 for those married.

3. Expense paid correspondence courses and short technical courses.

4. Removal of a requirement that men over 25 must show their education was interfered with to be eligible for educational benefits.

5. Increase in maximum government loan guarantee from $2,000 to $4,000 on real estate, thus permitting a maximum $8,000 loan, with the government guaranteeing half.

Real Estate Loans

6. Real estate loans to be arranged by recognized lending agencies, the veteran and the local appraiser of the veterans administration, an agreement of the three to be binding on the administration. Business loans still would require administration approval.

7. Easing up on loans by substituting "reasonable value" of property as the basic consideration instead of "normal reasonable value."

8. Additional purposes for which a loan may be obtained and more time to pay back a real estate loan.

9. Americans who fought for allied governments would come under the bill.

ENGINEER TELLS OF NEW PLASTIC; IT'S PART GLASS

A new kind of plastic, reinforced with glass and said to be strong enough for fabrication into parts large enough to make a railroad car top or the hull of a boat, was described yesterday at the concluding session of the 38th annual meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers in the Palmer House.

In a scientific paper prepared by H. W. Collins, research director of the Owens Corning Fiberglas corporation, and Games Slayter, Fiberglas vice president, the war born product was said to possess greater strength than structural metals and to be immune to corrosion.

W. R. Collings, vice president of the Dow-Corning corporation, told in another report, of new developments in the use of silicones, which he said will keep ball bearings permanently lubricated, and permit the use of heat resistant paint to protect hot engine mufflers and furnace fronts.

2 Policemen Aid Mother, 20, in Birth of Twin Sons

Policemen Kermit Gabrielson and James Larner of the Maxwell st. station assisted Mrs. Marcelline Stout, 20, of 11 N. Throop st. at the birth of twin sons yesterday in her home. The police were called by a neighbor, Mrs. Mary Irwin, 9 N. Throop st., who said there was no time for a trip to the hospital. Mrs. Stout said she would bet her husband, James, 24, would be surprised when he got home.

REPORT REVEALS NO VIOLENCE ON 'KIDNAPED' BABY

Chelsea, Mass., Dec. 19 (AP)—Tiny Ronald Carlan, central figure in New England's outstanding kidnap hoax, died of "asphyxiation and acute respiratory infection" and "there was no evidence of violence." Medical Examiner William J. Brickley said today in a preliminary report.

As events moved swiftly, the Boston Psychopathic hospital reported it had completed examination of Mrs. Rose Carlan, the baby's mother, and Judge John W. McLeod set tomorrow for a court hearing of the murder charge against her.

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. Carlan told police she found the baby dead Nov. 24 and later told the kidnap story to escape censure. The body was hidden in a wall cabinet.

The medical examiner said the child could have smothered by turning over, face down, in his crib during the time he was left alone in the Carlan flat while Mrs. Carlan attended a "welcome home" party given in her mother-in-law's flat upstairs in honor of a relative just back from navy service.

TRUMAN URGES UNIFICATION OF ARMY AND NAVY

Backs Army's Plan as Way to Peace

program with a plea that congress approve his request for compulsory military training for 18 to 20 year old youths as a reserve upon which the country can draw "if, unhappily, it should prove necessary." He said a grave responsibility would rest upon congress should it continue to delay this measure. He said the universal training plan has "the overwhelming approval of the people of the United States.

In the presentation he warned that any future war will erupt more suddenly than the last, with the United States as most likely the first target. Unification of the services, he said, is the most effective preparedness insurance.

"I urge this as the best means of keeping the peace," he said.

Emphasizing thruout his message that despite its work for peace this country must never relax its preparations for war, Mr. Truman said at one point:

"Whatever the form which any future war may take, we know that the men of our separate services will have to work together in many kinds of combinations for many purposes. The Pacific campaign of the recent war is an outstanding example of common and joint effort among land, sea, and air forces.

"Despite its successes, the campaign proved that there is no adequate understanding among the officers and men of any service of the capabilities, the uses, the procedures, and the limitations of the other services."

Warns of Duplicated Effort

He added that with the necessity for allocating limited resources for scientific research, the nation cannot afford to waste anything of this nature in duplicated effort.

As a further argument for unification, the President said that all military authority and all outlying bases should be under a single commander with clear responsibility.

Taking note of strong opposition from Secretary Forrestal and other high ranking navy officials, the President said:

"However strong the opposition that has been expressed by some of our outstanding senior officers and civilians, I can assure the congress that once unification has been determined upon as the policy of this nation there is no officer or civilian in any service who will not contribute his utmost to make the unification a success."

Truman's Nine Arguments

The nine presidential arguments for merger in Mr. Truman's own words are:

1. "We should have integrated strategic plans and a unified military program and budget."

2. "We should realize the economies that can be achieved thru unified control of supply and service functions."

3. "We should adopt the organizational structure best suited to fostering coördination between the military and the remainder of the government." [He proposed a coordinated intelligence service which would coöperate with agencies charged with the execution of foreign policy.]

Parity for Air Power

4. "We should provide the strongest means for civil control of the military."

5. "We should organize to provide parity for air power."

6. "We should establish the most advantageous framework for a unified system of training for combined operations of land, sea, and air."

7. "We should allocate systematically our limited resources for scientific research."

8. "We should have unity of command in outlying bases."

9. "We should have consistent and equitable personnel policies." [He said competitive recruitment, variety in decoration and variations in point system for rank and discharge should be avoided or reduced to a minimum.]

Lesson from Pearl Harbor

Mr. Truman cited Pearl Harbor as a costly lesson on the value of unified command. This citation reiterated a position he took when he was in the senate.

"One of the lessons which have most clearly come from the costly and dangerous experience of this war is that there must be unified direction of land, sea, and air forces at home as well as in all other parts of the world," he said.

"We did not have that kind of direction when we were attacked four years ago—and we certainly paid a high price for not having it.

Grave Risk to Security

"We would be taking a grave risk with the national security if we did not now move to overcome permanently the present imperfections in our defense organization."

Mr. Truman said the marine corps should be continued as an integral part of the navy. He said the navy should retain its own water based aviation on carriers and ships, but said nothing of navy land based planes.

In support of parity for air power, the chief executive said it has been developed to the point where its responsibilities are equal to those of land and sea power "and its contribution to our strategic planning is as great."

One Department Preferable

"Parity for air power can be achieved in one department or in three, but not in two," he said. "As between one department and three, the former is infinitely to be preferred. The advantages of a single department are indeed much clearer when the alternative is seen to be three departments rather than the present two. The existence of the three departments would complicate tremendously every problem of coordination that now exists between the war and navy departments, and between the services and the rest of the government."

The President said there is no basis for fear that an over-all organization would lodge too much power in a single individual—"that the concentration of so much military power would lead to militarism.

"There is no basis for such fear as long as the traditional policy of the United States is followed that a civilian, subject to the President, the congress, and the will of the people, be placed at the head of this department.

Public Need Not Fear

"The safety of the democracy of the United States lies in the solid good sense and unshakable conviction of the American people. They need have no fear that their democratic liberties will be imperiled as long as they continue fulfilling their duties of citizenship."

It is now time, the chief executive went on, "to discard obsolete organizatonal forms and to provide for the surest, the soundest, the most effective, and the most economical kind of structure as the best means of keeping the peace."

Asserting that unification must be looked upon as a long term job, the President said it is much more than a matter of organization.

Instrument of Safety

"It will require new viewpoints, new doctrine, and new habits of thinking thruout the departmental structure. But in the comparative leisure of peace time . . . we should start at once to achieve the most efficient instrument of national safety."

Sen. Thomas [D., Utah], chairman of the senate military affairs committee, and Rep. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military affairs committee, announced prompt consideration would be given President Truman's unification measure.

The only violent opposition to the Presidential merger program came from Rep. Vinson [D., Ga.], chairman of the house naval affairs committee, who had fought the army's unification plan. In a blistering statement Vinson said the merger will "sink the navy."

"Smacks of Kaiser"

"The very phraseology of the scheme," Vinson said, "smacks of the Germany of the kaiser and of Hitler; of Japanese militarism.

"It is a frightening manifestation of military power politics which we would view with suspicion and dismay if it were introduced in any of our sister democracies.

"If the burdens of watching over our national security establishment are too much for the President as commander in chief—and that is the suggestion in the President's message—I prefer an elected, rather than an appointed deputy commander in chief. I am unwilling to risk the future of this country without some voice in the selection of the man to make the decisions."

General Reaction Favorable

Otherwise, congressional comment generally was favorable. Opponents of the merger plan were silent, saying they wanted to study the message in detail before making any comment. The pattern of reaction was as follows:

Sen. Johnson [D. Colo.]—It's wonderful. It could not have been better if I had written it myself.

Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.]—I will support the merger move insofar as procurement, transportation, and construction is concerned, but I doubt if unification of command is ever effected except in the dangers of battle.

Sen. Hill [D., Ala.]—The message states the need is unanswerable logic.

Fears Domination

Sen. Russell [D., Ga.]—We should unify, but should preserve the integrity of each branch of the service—not let either dominate the other."

Rep. Sparkman [D., Ala.]—I'm for unification.

Rep. Rogers [D., Fla.] — I'm in favor of it.

Rep. Arends [R., Ill.]—I'm inclined to think the departments should be consolidated. It will mean better coordination and more efficiency and economy.

Sen. Hart [R., Conn.], former admiral in command of the Pacific fleet, declined to comment.

UNMARRIED TEACHER IN DENMARK GIVEN LEAVE TO HAVE BABY

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 19—(AP)—Miss Inger Merete Nordentoft, unmarried mother-to-be and communist member of parliament, will retain her school teaching job, but will take a leave of absence until after her baby is born next April, it was announced tonight.

Thorkild Jensen, Copenhagen school director, said the school board had decided to retain the 42 year old Miss Nordentoft in the school system. She is principal of one of the city's largest schools.

Miss Nordentoft, who threatened to appeal to the highest court if the board suspended her, said, "I feel that, by not trying to hide anything and by letting the authorities decide, I have done something to help other unmarried women who want children. I do not think the question if it were right to get my child concerns the public. That will be something my child and I will discuss sometime."

GEN. C. G. DAWES FAVORS UNITING ARMY AND NAVY

Gen. Charles G. Dawes favors the proposed unification of the army and navy but declines to discuss the various aspects of the subject on the ground that it would be a "waste of time," he made plain yesterday when asked to comment on what has developed into a controversial topic.

All that he could add was that he became familiar in World War I, and the period in which he served as director of the federal budget with the necessity of the merger of the two services.

Gen. Dawes, with the rank of brigadier general, served on Gen. Pershing's staff in the first World war as purchasing officer of the American expeditionary forces. He was director of the budget under President Harding and Vice President of the United States from 1925 to 1929.

Board to Act on Principal Freed of Pupil's Charge

John K. White, 48, principal of the Pershing elementary school in Berwyn, who was acquitted Tuesday of a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a girl pupil, will remain suspended until he is reinstated by the school board, K. L. Preston, superintendent of Berwyn schools, said yesterday. Dr. Albert W. Hall, a member of the Berwyn school board, said its next meeting will be Jan. 9.

THERE'S NO SOAP, BUT BERLIN JAMS BEAUTY PARLORS

If It's Cold Some Stay All Day

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Dec. 19—Beauty parlors in Berlin are packed with customers seeking a change from sordid, shattered surroundings and loaded with all but worthless marks.

Thruout the war severe restrictions were imposed on luxury establishments and from D-day onward Heinrich Himmler, gestapo chief, closed every nonwar essential business.

During cold snaps opulent customers remain in beauty parlors all day, taking the entire works and sometimes the same treatment over and over again to bask in the warmth of a heated establishment, bringing bread and bologna for their noonday meal.

The first impression I got today on visiting the high priced Trost & Zeiler beauty parlor in Nuernberger strasse, next door to the Femina night club, was the absence of smoking. Thruout the big shop, numbering 26 cubicles, scarcely a patron produced a cigaret, altho most American customers puff incessantly under the dryers.

No False Modesty

Most of the velvet curtains dividing the booths had long since been removed to make dresses or bed covers for employes, thus revealing operators performing services usually screened from prying masculine eyes.

Living in air raid shelters and since then in roofless and wallless houses apparently has robbed frauleins of false modesty as they unzipped blouses or slid out of sweaters to expose plenty of cuticle for neck and throat massage.

Facials, manicures, pedicures, prohibited during the war, are all the rage now, and maedchen pull off bootees, unashamed of holey stockings, and demand toenails painted blood red.

Beauty Shelves Bare

Customers bring their own towels and soap for shampoos, and unhappy women whose hair is dyed must provide their own tints or buy peroxide, henna or other coloring matter from the exorbitant black market ring operating on the silewalk outside.

Operators do not pester clients to buy lotions and perfumes, because shelves are bare.

Despite the food shortage, I saw three women slyly produce an egg apiece for a hair wash, and they watched closely to see that the entire egg was used.

Plucked eyebrows enjoy a considerable vogue. An exotic touch is given to the more daring young women en route to the Femina cabaret next door by tinting the ears pink.

VATICAN CHARGES REDS ACT AGAINST GALICIAN CATHOLICS

[By Cable to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

LONDON, Dec. 19—Assertions that "compulsory measures" taken by soviet authorities against Ruthenian Catholics included the arrest of bishops, deportation of many priests and the declaration that the "Catholic Ruthenian church" was "no longer legally to exist" were made in a vatican broadcast reported today by the BBC monitoring service.

The vatican broadcast charged that these actions were taken at the end of 1944 after the newly elected Russian patriarch issued a "friendly invitation" to Catholic Ruthenians to "turn their backs on the vatican and return to the Orthodox church."

The broadcast said that when the Russians entered Galicia in 1939 there was "severe altho cleverly camouflaged persecution of Catholics in general and Ruthenians in particular." When the Red army reëntered in 1944, the vatican radio added, the Russians had no apparent hostility toward the church but this attitude changed at the end of the year.

SILENT WOMAN SHOT IN ANKLE WINS FREEDOM

Mary Winters, 23, of Los Angeles, Cal., who refused to tell police who shot her in the left ankle, was released yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus issued by Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court. She was arrested early last Sunday when she was found in front of a doctor's office at 3424 Sheffield av. Assistant State's Atty. Walter McCoy told the court that California police did not want Miss Winters, and Chicago police were willing to free her. Attorneys Michael Brodkin and George Bieber, who obtained the writ, said she would be removed to a private hospital for treatment of the wound.

DEMAND RUSSIA TELL OF ITS OWN A-BOMB WORKS

Open Laboratories, Says Senate Committee

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 [Special] — Leading members of the senate foreign relations committee have told the administration they believe Russia should agree to open its atomic bomb laboratories and factories to international inspection before we disclose any more important information to them about the bomb.

Meeting with State Secretary Byrnes on the eve of his departure for Moscow, a subcommittee of the foreign relations committee insisted this right of inspection must be guaranteed before any frank discussion of atomic bomb secrets in Moscow.

Byrnes evidently did not reject the principle of constant inspection as a means of controling the future development of atomic bombs, but he left some doubt in the minds of members of the committee about his willingness to insist on guarantees of the right of inspection before speaking frankly to the Russians about the atomic bomb.

Held at Byrnes' Request

The meeting was held at Byrnes' request and was attended by Senators Tom Connally of Texas, chairman of the foreign relations committee; Walter F. George of Georgia, Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, and Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, all Democrats; Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, Wallace H. White Jr. of Maine, and Warren R. Austin of Vermont, Republicans, and Robert M. LaFollette Jr. of Wisconsin, Progressive. Also attending were a subcommittee of the senate atomic energy committee and Brien McMahon, Democrat of Connecticut, chairman of that committee.

Byrnes said he had asked them to call on him in order to tell them what he proposed to say to the Russians about the atomic bomb.

Senators attending the session got the impression that Byrnes proposed to assume Russian coöperation in international control of the bomb and to discuss the bomb with them in a fairly frank fashion in the hope of allaying Russian suspicions of our atomic bomb policy.

Agree on 3 Points

Some of the senators immediately suggested Byrnes should not assume anything regarding Russia's coöperation, but should insist that no nation could expect to share in the international control of atomic energy that did not grant the right to inspect, investigate, and discover at all times what that nation was doing with the development of atomic weapons.

The senators agreed that there were three points on which the secretary and the delegation agreed: [1] That the future of atomic energy was the concern of all nations and consequently should be subject to some form of international control; [2] that the united nations organization should be the agency of control, and [3] that the UNO atomic bomb commission proposed by President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee of Britain and King of Canada was a step in the right direction.

STALIN, LOOKING WELL, RECEIVES BYRNES, BEVIN

MOSCOW, Dec. 19 (AP)—Generalissimo Stalin, just returned to Moscow after a long vacation, received United States Secretary of State Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Bevin today.

Byrnes and Bevin are in Moscow conferring with Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov on the multiple problems facing the world. They met for the fourth time today in a session lasting one hour and 15 minutes. A fifth session will be held tomorrow, but indications were it would be short too, for Molotov sent out invitations today for a formal diplomatic reception which will start at 6 p. m.

United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, who was present during the Stalin interview, said the generalissimo "looks very well."

Wins Divorce

MRS. JOEINE GRADLE

Mrs. Joeine Norcott Gradle, 25, of 3750 Lake Shore dr., yesterday won a divorce before Judge Peter H. Schwaba in Superior court from Walter Gradle Jr., 25, of 646 University dr., Highland Park. Testifying under the questioning of Albert A. Golden, her attorney, Mrs. Gradle said her husband had been quarrelsome since his recent discharge from the service and on one occasion had pushed her off her chair. Mrs. Gradle waived alimony.

SCIENTIST HOLDS PEACE ECONOMY HINGES ON ATOM

Richard Adams, atomic chemist at the University of Chicago, speaking at a seminar on reconversion at the Public Administration Clearing house, 1313 E. 60th st., yesterday, asserted that all talk about shifting to a peace time economy must be predicated on world organization control of the atomic bomb.

Adams, spokesman for attending representatives of the executive committee of the Atomic Scientists of Chicago, advocated that this country forego possible benefits from large scale production of atomic power until satisfactory control of such energy as a war weapon is achieved.

Adams asserted that dispersal of the populations of large American cities into small communities to provide protection against the atomic bomb is a last resort that will prove ineffective if its previously advocated adoption is necessitated by failure of international agreements to control the weapon. Even tho city dwellers take to underground retreats, he said, they can be in danger if enemy agents smuggle the bomb into such hiding places.

VIOLATES FIRE CODE WITH ACID AND IS FINED $200

Judge Justin F. McCarthy in License court yesterday fined Frank C. Likas, owner of the Federal Storage Battery company, 3130 S. Michigan av., $200 and costs for violating the city fire prevention code.

Division Marshal John L. Fenn, head of the fire prevention bureau, told the court that Likas had ignored warnings to replace an outdated oven and provide proper storage facilities for sulphuric acid. After the warning was given, Fenn said, a 3-11 fire occurred in the plant.

A similar charge against Morris L. Newman, owner of the Lincoln Specialty company, 540-550 Lake st., involving 11 alleged violations, was continued until Dec. 26.

COMPTON TELLS HOW TO RESCUE CIVILIZATION

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, chancellor of Washington university at St. Louis, Mo., and one of the world's foremost atomic scientists, warned in an address yesterday that coöperation must be achieved among increasing diversities of interests of persons, races, creeds, and nations, and that the alternative is the end of civilization.

"We've got to learn to live together or we won't live," Dr. Compton told the 10th anniversary dinner of the Chicago Conference of Jews and Christians in Hotel Continental. The rapidly growing trends toward diversity and specialization, he asserted, will lead tc ever increasing complexity with a resulting demand for coöperation and understanding.

Strength from Diversity

As an illustration of this process, Dr. Compton cited the development of the A-bomb. Its success, he said, was a product of "the strength that comes from diversity where many people know how to do many kinds of things. No one group or nation could have made the atomic bomb."

Dr. Compton said a Japanese scientist made an important early nuclear contribution by emphasizing the nucleus of the atom. This emphasis was carried on by Rutherford, an Australian who moved to England. A German Jewish refugee conceived of the fission [splitting] of the atom while fleeing from Germany to Sweden. Italy, Denmark, Sweden, and the United States carried on the basic studies leading to the fundamental scientific principle on which the bomb was based.

Clashes of Interest Cited

After the scientists had completed their basic studies, Dr. Compton explained, the engineer was brought into the bomb problem to apply the scientific principles discovered. Here, he said, was a clash of motivation and interest that had to be reconciled.

Then the army was called in with its primary patriotic motives and interests, as against "the internationalism of basic science." This required additional reconciliation, said Dr. Compton, with "the scientist under suspicion as an internationalist."

Finally the industrialists set upon the vast production task, and these leaders, Dr. Compton said, had their special interests requiring reconciliation in the entire project which, he said, came to involve a million people, a coöperative team working toward a single objective.

U. S. EXPRESSES CONCERN OVER INDONESIA ROW

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—The United States today expressed "increasing concern" over the Netherlands East Indies situation and voiced hope "all parties" will renew attempts to reach agreement.

The first official state department policy statement on the matter refrained from placing blame for the strife on any of the parties involved—the revolting Indonesians, the Dutch, or the British.

It said, however, that "irresponsible action—or failure to present or consider specific proposals—can only lead to a disastrous situation."

Altho acknowledging that the United States shared responsibility for the decision to send troops of Adm. Mountbatten's southeast Asia command into Indonesia, the statement said this move was only for the purpose of accepting surrender of Japanese forces.

SUMATRANS SAY 10 MILLIONS WILL BACK JAVANESE

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 19 (AP)—Touring leaders of the unrecognized Indonesian republic seeking unity in the quest for independence from the Netherlands, were armed today with a pledge from Acting Gov. Amir of neighboring Sumatra that "Sumatra's 10 million are ready to help you."

While a British bulletin reported sporadic Indonesian attacks at several places in western Java, a dispatch from Soerakarta said that Amir had appeared with Javanese leaders at a mass meeting.

"Don't think Sumatrans are selling Java out because we are not fighting right now," he told a crowd of approximately 15,000. "We are all one nation. Sumatra's 10 million are ready to help you."

Fighting broke out again today at Buitzenzorg, refugee concentration point 30 miles south of here. Mortar bombs fired from the botanical gardens fell in the center of the city, and several Chinese girls were reported killed when one hit a house.

COLDS ARE ALL OVER TOWN

Colds are serious . . . Here's helpful advice if they strike in your family

NO COLD should be treated lightly. When a cold comes on, there are two things you should do: 1. Go to bed. 2. Call a doctor. This is the wise way to avoid the unpleasant complications that can follow a cold.

To relieve the local congestion and uncomfortable stuffy feeling of a cold, use Ben-Gay. Millions of people know the fast-acting relief from cold discomfort that Ben-Gay brings. Rub warming, soothing Ben-Gay plentifully on your back and chest, and cover with a soft cloth or pajama top. But don't neglect to

GRANT 21 NAZIS' REQUESTS FOR 85 WITNESSES

British Peers Sought by Major Defendants

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 19 (AP)—The international war crimes tribunal today revealed that the 21 nazi leaders on trial have requested almost 150 witnesses for the defense case. Thus far the tribunal has granted 85 requests for witnesses, among them a number of British peers.

The United States prosecution staff pursued its attempts to convict the SS [elite guard Schutz-Staffel], the SA [Storm Troopers], and other German organizations of criminality. The SS was trained to prepare all Germany for warfare, and at the same time was used as a vast breeding organization to beget a new generation of warriors, the Americans contended.

The requests for witnesses, made by attorneys for the defendants, were accompanied by the reasons the witnesses were sought, and indicated that many of the defendants would take the line that they often had worked against their fuehrer.

Goering Seeks Britons

The court already has indicated that persons called who live outside Germany would not be summoned, but might be interrogated by court appointed officials.

SS Gen. Fritz Sauckel asked for 32, the largest number.

Reichsmarshal Goering asked for Alexander Cadogan, permanent undersecretary of the British foreign office, and Halifax, British ambassador to the United States.

Robert Vansittart, former undersecretary for the British foreign office, and the British publishers, Beaverbrook and Kemsley, were requested by Joachim von Ribbentrop, former German foreign minister.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former reichsbank president, requested 22 witnesses. Among them are Field Marshal von Brauchtisch, Field Marshal von Rundstedt, and Col. Gen. Franz Halder, all former top ranking German militarists. The court summoned all three.

Von Papen Asks None

Prominent among the defendants who have requested no witnesses are the diplomat, Franz von Papen, and former Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath.

Hans Frank, who ruled Poland for the Nazis, requested George Messersmith, United States ambassador to Mexico and once consul general in Berlin.

Presenting the case against the SS, Maj. Warren Farr of Chief United States Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson's staff quoted Heinrich Himmler's orders for SS men to sire children—legitimate or otherwise—at every opportunity.

One of Himmler's letters introduced by the prosecution said "German women and girls of good blood can fulfill a high obligation, even out of wedlock, by becoming mothers of children of soldiers going to the front."

When Farr began reading Himmler's proposal that every Nordic German should produce four sons, he was interrupted by Judge Francis Biddle, who asked:

"Embodiment of Master Race"

"Is that one of the crimes alleged?"

The prosecutor said he sought to show that nazi rulers intended the SS "to be the living embodiment of the master race" which "would be in a position to dominate all Europe for centuries."

Farr said the SS was organized with only 280 men to serve as Hitler's personal bodyguard, the elite guard, but that it grew to an organization of 240,000 men split up among 38 divisions.

SS troops shot and killed more than 100 United States soldiers near Malmedy, in Belgium, during the battle of the bulge a year ago. Other detachments of Himmler's picked men are accused of burning whole villages and of slaughtering their inhabitants.

"Things had to be done," said Farr, "for which no agency of the government, no political party, not even the Nazi party, could openly take responsibility. A specialized type of apparatus was needed . . . the SS was that apparatus."

WAINWRIGHT'S DEPOSITION TO ACCUSE HOMMA

Jap General's Trial to Open Jan. 3

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 19 (AP)—Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, who will not be present, is likely to be the principal witness against Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma when Homma goes to trial. His evidence will be presented in a deposition.

Gen. Homma, former commander of Japanese forces in the Philippines, is charged with responsibility for atrocities involving the death of 67,000 American and Filipino prisoners of war. It was to him that Gen. Wainwright surrendered after a heroic defense of Bataan and Corregidor.

Trial Set for Jan. 3

Gen. Homma was arraigned today in the palatial residence from which in 1942 he watched the captives from Corregidor marched away in humiliation. He pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for Jan. 3, over a protest from his counsel that at least a month was required to shape his case.

The Japanese general appeared in a shabby gray civilian suit. He addressed the military commission in fluent English and agreed to dispense with translation of the proceedings into Japanese. An Oxford educated Japanese was assigned to him as personal interpreter.

Wainwright Has "Proof"

At Dallas, Tex., Gen. Wainwright said he was relieved to know he would not have to go to the Philippines to testify. He added:

"I can give definite evidence to show that Gen. Homma, as commander of all Japanese forces in the Philippines, was most certainly responsible for the atrocities of Bataan.

"Gen. Homma has said that he didn't know anything about the death march and the sadistic actions of his troops in dealing with captives. As commander in chief, it was his business to know, and he is directly responsible for the actions of his men."

Lt. Col. Frank E. Meek, chief prosecutor in Homma's case, said evidence on the death march of Bataan would dominate testimony at the trial and presentation of the prosecution's evidence probably would require about 10 days.

Wilmette Man Aids Defense

The defense counsel includes Capt. George W. Ott, Wilmette, Ill., a Chicago attorney.

Maj. Gen. Leo B. Donovan is president of the military commission before which the trial will be held. He was a member of the commission that sentenced Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita to be hanged.

Another member of the board that will hear Gen. Homma is Maj. Gen. Basilio J. Valdes, chief of staff of the Philippine army in the war. He testified at Yamashita's trial that Japanese murdered his brother and his nephew and tried to rape a niece. The other commissioners are Brig. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, Arlington, Va.; Brig. Gen. Robert G. Gard, San Antonio, Tex., and Brig. Gen. Warren H. McNaught, Plymouth, Mass.

DEFENDER OF RYTI DIPS INTO EVIDENCE OF THE PROSECUTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 19—Hjalmar Procope, counsel for former President Risto Ryti, on trial for war responsibility, today dipped into the prosecution's evidence on behalf of his client.

Procope, former Finnish ambassador to the United States, sought to show that the Finnish government did not provoke Britain's declaration of war but that the United States pressured the British into declaring war on Finland as the price of Russian entry into the expected clash with Japan.

Procope cited an entry in a British diary which had been presented to the court to bear out his contention. He argued that the Finnish government drew up an answer to Britain's ultimatum, issued prior to the declaration, which was calculated to satisfy British demands but that Finland was a victim of circumstances over which she had no control. Britain declared war on Finland the day before Pearl Harbor.

FILIPINO LOSES MOVE TO CALL JAPS' PUPPETS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 19—Judge Pompenao Diaz of the People's court today ruled in the treason trial of Teofilo Sison, high ranking member of the Philippine puppet republic, that the court had no jurisdiction to summon other members of the Jap sponsored puppet cabinet, now under custody of the United States army in Japan, as defense witnesses.

The defense requested the appearance of Jose P. Laurel, puppet president; Jorge B. Vargas, "ambassador" to Japan, and Benigno S. Aquino, director general of the fascist organization known as Kalibapi. Sison's lawyer, Mariano Albert, pleaded that the three puppet officials were indispensable to the defense since they were Sison's colleagues during the Jap occupation.

The court advised the defense to file a supplemental motion requesting the United States army authorities to subpena the three prisoners so that they may be available. On a defense motion the trial was continued to Dec. 26.

DEFENSE WINS A POINT IN JAPS' SLAYING TRIAL

YOKOHAMA, Dec. 20 [Thursday]—(AP)—An affidavit detailing abuse and murder of an American prisoner of war was stricken from the records today at the trial of the Japanese charged with his death. The prosecution protested the ruling "will cause many of our cases to fall."

The affidavit of Pvt. Charles B. Gavord, Deming, N. M., was ruled out by the United States military commission because the prosecution could not produce the original and attempted to introduce a mimeographed copy as a certified duplicate.

Claim Original Misplaced

Maj. Gen. Louis Geffen, chief of staff prosecuting Tatsuo Tsuchiya, alias "Little Glass Eye," for the death of Pvt. Robert Gordon Teas of Streator, Ill., sought to convince the commission that the original had been misplaced in one of the many army sections that investigate war crimes.

Over continued defense objections, other affidavits piled up the evidence. One by Staff Sgt. Robert Dorris Pratt of Sherman, Tex., told of seeing Teas beaten with a club by a guard known as "Mushmouth" and hammered in a hospital by "Speedo" and "Rivet Tooth."

Pratt, who was on burial detail, cremated Teas' body and buried the ashes in the mountains.

Beaten for Three Days

Pfc. Wayne M. Watson of Regina, N. M., who was taken prisoner on Bataan in the Philippines, deposed that Teas was beaten with heavy sticks for three days but did not name the Japanese guilty.

Lt. Col. Allan M. Cory, Tulsa, Okla., told of brutalities and misuse of Red Cross supplies by Japanese camp officials. He said the Japanese put candy, soap and cigarets on shelves for Red Cross inspection, then hid them again.

Tsuchiya showed no sign of interest as the accusation against him was detailed by the prosecution.

CHARGE U. S. TARS ANNOY WOMEN; BRAZILIANS RIOT

RIO DE JANIERO, Brazil, Dec. 19 (AP)—American sailors were ordered to remain aboard the United States cruiser Little Rock at Santos today as police investigated clashes between some 350 seamen and Brazilians last night at Sao Paulo, 60 miles northwest of Santos.

United States Consul Roland Welch said the sailors left Sao Paulo by special trains and buses under guard of police, who said the rioting began when some of the celebrating seamen were accused of annoying Brazilian women.

Six Brazilians and several navy men were injured in the fighting, in which firemen brought fire hoses into play to hold back the crowds.

BRITAIN TO TAKE OVER AIRLINES; ABSORB LOSSES

Prepared to Meet Any Competitive Rate

BY WARD WALKER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 19—England today disclosed socialization plans for the air transport industry and served notice it would meet any competitive rate set by international agreement even if it means a heavy subsidy.

At the same time the Laborite government pushed its bill to nationalize the Bank of England thru the house of commons by a vote of 306 to 126 and introduced its measure to "establish public ownership and control of the coal mining industry and certain allied activities" in the same chamber. The Bank of England bill now goes to the house of lords.

The Labor plan for nationalization of air lines provides for three government capitalized and controled corporations, it is revealed in a ministry of civil aviation white paper which will be submitted to the house of commons. These corporations, governed by a board appointed by Minister of Civil Aviation Lord Winster, will take over all British transport routes, including airports, planes, and other facilities.

Government Subsidy Planned

Ivor Thomas, Lord Winster's parliamentary secretary, at a press conference, said the lines would be financed by the exchequer. Profits, if any, would accrue to the government and be used, in part, to develop the air lines.

Questioned about England's rate policy which recently led to Pan-American World Airway's curtailment to two flights weekly because of the line's low rates, Thomas said England would be willing to meet any price established at the International Air Transport association meeting.

"However, if the air lines indulge in competitive rate cutting," he said, "we will see complete chaos. We are going to take a firm stand on that and I think we will achieve our objective."

"If American operators can prove the economic feasibility of a low rate then we must meet it. The deficit will be made up by the government—who else? But I am confident that the British industry, within a few years, can turn out planes that will compete with any."

Favor British Planes

Compensation will be made for the physical assets taken from the air lines and municipalities and private owners as of Nov. 1—but no compensation will be made for good will. Thomas explained that the government had subsidized the air lines for years and improved most of the country's air fields during the war which took care of the good will.

He predicted that the first British land planes for the North Atlantic flight would be ready by summer. It will be the government's policy to use only English planes but American C-47s, Liberators, and Clippers now being used will continue in service. Most of them were obtained under lend-lease.

Routes Outlined

The spheres of responsibility of the three initial companies [more may be formed later, if needed] were set as: Routes between the United Kingdom and other commonwealth countries in the far east and the United States, handled at present by the British Overseas Airways corporation; from the United Kingdom to the continent and within the United Kingdom, and routes between the United Kingdom and South America, to which flights will start in a month or two.

Thomas said that all the existing facilities in the other two spheres would be used altho the nations in the two other corporations were not given.

Patton's Condition Called Excellent; Holds Gains

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 19 (AP)—The condition of Gen. Patton, recovering from a broken neck, was described as excellent by army medical officers today. "Gen. Patton had a very good night," an official midday bulletin said. "His general condition is excellent. State of paralysis about stationary. Small degree of improvement noted yesterday maintained. Temperature 98.2. Pulse 62. Respiration 22."

"I think he'd like something quieter. He came home gaudy with decorations."

JEWS BESIEGE U.S. BERLIN CAMP FOR REFUGEES

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Dec. 19—Jews from Poland are flocking into Berlin at the rate of 200 to 300 daily and besieging the displaced persons camps in the United States sector for permission to enter the American zone.

Leaders among the refugees attempted to hold a mass demonstration outside the camp in Hindenburg-Damm but were dissuaded when military government officers explained that the four power agreement is to handle interzonal affairs on an allied basis.

Want to Proceed to U. S.

"Formerly, Jews from the east reached Berlin in bad shape, frequently with teeth knocked out and suffering from malnutrition and generally without any property except a little personal baggage," said a military government spokesman. "But in recent weeks a better class of people are arriving, most of them well dressed and carrying plenty of luggage, including food, but desirous of using this opportunity to proceed to the United States.

"The original arrivals here were helped for humanitarian reasons and many of them slipped quietly into our zone. But we face difficulties in feeding them as there is a terrific shortage of everything everywhere in Germany. Local German authorities thruout the zone protest there is no more room or food for anybody regardless of race, color, or creed, and they warn they cannot handle any new influx. The army is unable to take care of civilians."

Don't Want to Go to Palestine

Another authority said:

"People must realize that the vast majority of Jews don't want to go to Palestine—they are anxious to settle in America. But they believe Palestine is one step in the direction to the United States and eventually if the situation there continues unsatisfactory the United States and South America will open their gates to them and permit them to enter.

"A number of Jews have crossed into the British zone and have been turned back because transport to Palestine is not available until the entire question of a Zionist state is solved. The Polish government is ostensibly preventing the emigration of any one but passport and frontier control is lax and so is Russian surveillance. Many of these people simply buy a railroad ticket and come thru without hindrance from anybody."

HOUSE FAVORS ENTRY OF JEWS INTO PALESTINE

Backs Senate Action; Warnings Sounded

Washington, D. C., Dec 19 (AP)—The house today approved a senate passed resolution calling on the government to "use its good offices" with Great Britain to permit free entry of Jews into Palestine.

Action was on a voice vote, after members refused, 133 to 36, to send the measure back to committee. The legislation represents an expression of congressional opinion, and is not binding on the President.

Passage came despite member arguments that the bill:

[1] "Is a slap at the President, state department, and Great Britain"; [2] would provoke trouble with Arabs in the far east, and [3] would promote anti-Semitism by aiding creation of a Jewish state in Palestine.

Connally Is Quoted

Supporters said neither the President nor the state department had expressed opposition to house leaders or the foreign affairs group. Critics quoted Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], however, as saying President Truman did not want the measure.

Speaking for the legislation, Rep. Luce [R., Conn.] declared "it is time to be brutally honest about the Jewish problem and realize there are only three steps we can take." She listed these as:

1. Open the doors of immigration in this nation to "our quota of suffering Jewry."
2. Find a place or refuge for the Jews in Europe or Africa, or the "place they prefer, Palestine, and guarantee this by force of arms, if necessary."
3. "Let them die while we weep crocodile tears over their graves."

Wadsworth Opposes

Rep. Wadsworth [R., N. Y.] said he opposed the measure because "its original motive has been superseded by a political objective, the establishment in Palestine of a Jewish state." He continued:

"The thing I dread about this political objective is that it will tend to segregate the people of Jewish faith away from their neighbors and furnish fuel to that stupid, horrible thing known as anti-Semitism."

Both Democratic Leader McCormack [D., Mass.] and Republican Leader Martin [R., Mass.] spoke for the bill. They argued that it could "do no harm and might be helpful in solving a difficult question."

Husband Pays

MRS. DOROTHY ROLFSEN

Chris Rolfsen, 33, of 4245 Broadway, a painter, yesterday escaped spending Christmas in the county jail by paying his estranged wife, Dorothy, 27, $125 in back support payments. Mrs. Rolfsen's attorney, Leo Bartoline, told Superior Judge Peter H. Schwaba that Rolfsen had threatened to kill his wife, as well as her former attorney, who withdrew from the case. Judge Schwaba gave Rolfsen the alternative of paying up or six months in jail. Rolfsen chose to pay. The Rolfsens have a daughter, Dale, 3.

MOSCOW HEARS IRANIANS SHOOT REBELS' FRIENDS

MOSCOW, Russia, Dec. 19 (AP)—A Tass dispatch from Tehran, Iran, said today that Iranian military and police forces were administering mass punishment in the city of Resht to persons showing sympathy for the newly established autonomous government in northern Iran.

Quoting persons arriving from the northern provinces, Tass said the leader of the punitive measures was a Col. Zangine, commander of an Iranian brigade.

In the village of Charbash, near Resht, Tass said, soldiers and gendarmes were reported to have tortured and shot 16 persons and wounded 14 others.

HOUSE VOTES 750 MILLIONS MORE FOR UNRRA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—(AP)—A compromise $2,400,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill carrying $750,000,000 in new funds for UNRRA was passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

The funds for the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, first installment on a new authorization of $1,350,000,000 for that relief agency, were added to the bill by the senate after it had passed the house without them.

Also accepted by the house was the senate's addition of new funds for temporary housing for distressed war veterans.

PROFITS, PRICES STALL G. M. FACT FINDING BOARD

Both Sides Stand Firm on Views at Hearing

Windsor Strike Ends

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 19 (AP)—Members of the United Automobile Workers of America, [CIO] voted to end their 14 week strike at the Ford Motor company of Canada, it was announced tonight, and return to work pending negotiation and arbitration of the issues. Pickets, in constant attendance around the Ford works here since the strike began on Sept. 12, will be withdrawn immediately.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—The question of profits and prices and their relation to wage increases stalled the General Motors fact finding board today.

Following the pattern already set by the oil wage fact finding body, Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison of the G. M. panel told a news conference that, after preliminary arguments tomorrow, the G. M. board would recess until it decides whether testimony on profits and possible price increases will be allowed in evidence.

Meanwhile Labor Secretary Schwellenbach sought to end the 49 day strike of Pennsylvania and Central Greyhound bus lines by appointing a fact finding board to investigate the wage dispute.

Bus Provisos Made

The secretary conditioned his appointment tonight of a five man panel on resumption of operations, without penalties to the 4,000 strikers, and with the proviso that any wage concessions would be retroactive to midnight Oct. 31, when the strike began in 18 eastern states.

The offer was not immediately picked up by the companies or the union, however, despite an official statement from the labor department quoting conciliation Chief Edgar L. Warren as saying that he had verbal agreement from the parties on "substantially" the conditions stipulated by Schwellenbach.

Hearings before the G. M. board will resume Saturday if the board has made up its mind.

Garrison said that at conferences today the CIO United Automobile workers insisted that the board study the profit price phase of the dispute involving union demands for a 30 per cent wage increase. On the other hand, the company flatly opposed raising the issue.

The oil panel now is in recess pending a statement of White House policy on whether federal fact finding boards should take possible price increases into consideration when recommending a wage increase.

Tells of Union's View

However, Garrison emphasized that unlike the oil panel, the G. M. board would decide the price-profits question on its own. He said the decision would determine definitely the extent to which information on company profits and prices would be used by the board in its final recommendations to President Truman.

Garrison explained the company had taken the position that since it was not pleading "inability to pay," its profits and price were irrelevant.

The union, he said, did not wish to precipitate price increases and had declared that if its 30 per cent demand would force G. M. to raise prices the demand would be modified.

C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors corporation, other G. M. officials, and leaders of the UAW met with the G. M. fact finding board in separate sessions most of the day.

The union spokesmen, headed by President R. J. Thomas and Vice President Walter P. Reuther, were called in twice, once before and once after the board conferred with company officials.

Tomorrow's argument, Garrison said, would bring into public hearing the gist of today's talks in executive session.

Schwellenbach, in his order creating the Greyhound fact finding panel, said he was informed the strike would be called off immediately and operations resumed under work conditions prevailing Oct. 31. He said he was informed that the contract between the Pennsylvania and Central Greyhound lines and the AFL street railway and motor coach employes would be continued until replaced by a new contract.

The company presidents in Cleveland, O., said they wanted to study the labor secretary's order setting up the panel.

Samuel P. Berrong, secretary-treasurer of the AFL Amalgamated Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes, said in Milwaukee, Wis., that after he received the Schwellenbach order he would submit it to the chairmen of the union's joint executive council in Chicago.

"At this meeting we will make a decision as to our future action," said Berrong.

In the meantime, he emphasized, "the strike has not been called off."

A bonus also will be paid to employes of The Tribune's Canadian subsidiaries.

WOMAN FAILS TO SHED LIGHT ON LANGE DEATH

Mrs. Bernice Lawler, 1100 N. Dearborn st., the "mystery woman" sought for questioning by police in their probe of the slaying of Lawrence A. Lange, shed little light on the case when questioned yesterday afternoon by Capt. Thomas Kelly in Albany Park station.

Mrs. Lawler, who kept securities and an insurance policy for Lange when he went on a vacation in 1943, said she had known the slain secretary for nearly 10 years, but only in a business way. She told Capt. Kelly that in that time she had visited Lange's apartment twice, both times acompanied by two or more friends.

Bloodstains on a cash envelope found by a cab driver and turned into the company office the night Lange was stabbed to death, will be analyzed and comparisons will be made, Kelly said, with bloodstains in Lange's apartment at 3146 Wilson av.

CIO PROMISES TO OPEN PICKET LINES AT FLINT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Flint, Mich., Dec. 19—Atty. Steve J. Roth, representing the CIO, today pledged in Circuit court that union pickets will not interfere with the entrance of office workers, management, and maintenance men into the AC Sparkplug plant of General Motors.

As a result three judges, sitting en banc, withheld ruling on a restraining order asked by the AC company. The judges, Roth, and plant attorneys agreed that the restraining order should be issued by the court if Roth is not able to keep his pledge.

Judges George B. Hartwick, Philip Elliott, and Paul V. Gadola heard the case and agreed that ill feeling and misunderstanding, which might arise from a restraining order, would be avoided if the result could be obtained by agreement. Roth held that the CIO would allow the specified workers to enter by a most direct route to the plant, the main gate.

While Flint waited to see how the new arrangement will work tomorrow morning, the striking employes still controled plant entrances today. A reduced number of pickets patroled the gates, but no workers appeared to contest the picket lines.

House Votes to Delay Next Session Until Jan. 14

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—The house today shouted thru a resolution to convene the second session of the 79th congress on Jan. 14 instead of the customary Jan. 3. It was sent to the senate for consideration. The current session is due to close tomorrow.

WESTERN UNION STRIKE JAN. 7 TO TIE UP CITY

The nation-wide strike of Western Union employes called by the Commercial Telegraphers union for 8 a. m. Jan. 7 will tie up telegraph, messenger, leased wire, ticker, and race track service in the Chicago area, B. A. Moch, president of Western Union local No. 1 of the union, declared yesterday.

Moch said the walkout would affect telegraph and teletype operators, plant and maintenance employes, clerks, and messengers as well as branch managers. Some 3,000 of the company's 3,500 employes in Chicago, he said, are members of the union.

The Western Union's main office and 70 per cent of the 97 branch offices will be picketed, Moch asserted. The strike was voted Dec. 1, he said, after a breakdown in negotiations that started April 23.

ADMITS KILLING BOSS, BUT PLEA IS NOT GUILTY

Earl Wehle, 38, alleged slayer of his employer, Edgar Heywood, 53, pleaded not guilty yesterday to a charge of murder in the first degree before Judge William J. Murray in the Lake county Criminal court at Crown Point, Ind. His plea indicated he may seek to repudiate the confession he made after his arrest for the slaying. He is accused of killing Heywood, a south side electric shop owner, in Heywood's cabin at Cedar Lake, Ind., July 2.

CONCERNING THE OLD PEOPLE'S HOME OF THE CITY OF CHICAGO
4724 Vincennes Avenue

One of the oldest organized charities in Chicago, if not the oldest, chartered by the State of Illinois in 1873 and doing business ten to fifteen years, possibly for a longer period, before that date. It then existed under a different name with the identical objective of providing a comfortable and attractive residence for the aged. Following in the footsteps of the many able men and women of the past who showed the way, the present management presents its case to the public as a worthy and successful Institution over an unbroken period of four score years and of equal promise for the years that are to come. It is felt that immediate financial independence should be augmented in order to meet and overcome the difficulties and new features of the present day, those social and political. Therefore, toward maintaining and perpetuating its existence, bequests by will, or by gift, are respectfully suggested and earnestly urged as justified by past performance as well as by future promise of sustained security and usefulness.

Incidentally, gifts or bequests to this institution afford a proper basis for rights of deduction for the purpose of computing federal income and estate and Illinois inheritance taxes.

PUERTO RICO'S RULE IS LIKENED TO RED AFFAIR

Many Private Enterprise Fields Invaded

The government of Puerto Rico has entered or plans to enter so many fields of private enterprise that the country is beginning "to look like a Russian affair," Jose Ramon Quinones, president of the Puerto Rico Farm bureau, said yesterday.

Speaking at the American Farm Bureau federation convention in Hotel Sherman, Quinones said the government, under Gov. Rexford G. Tugwell, entered the sugar planting industry on a large scale and had purchased a bus line and cement, bottle, and paper plants.

Flouts Own Acreage Limit

Under consideration are airplane and steamship lines, a telephone system, and a radio station, he said.

Altho the government limits sugar corporations to 500 acres of land, it has taken over and is cultivating 25,000 acres, making it the largest operator in the country.

Thru this operation the government is able to make large quantity purchases and gets lower prices on farm implements, trucks, fertilizer, and other items, Quinones asserted. This enables the government to reduce costs below those of the small operators and "provides unfair competition."

Other Competition Advantages

The government holds other competitive advantages because it pays no taxes and is able to hire capable workers with less difficulty than private operators. The government's jobs are more attractive because it divides profits among the workers at the end of each year, Quinones explained.

"In a few years no man will want to work for private owners if this sort of thing keeps up," he said.

Tugwell is "supposed to be the champion of the forgotten man," asserted Quinones, but he has three homes and five automobiles, and lives "like no American governor ever lived."

Favors Trade Conference

Charles P. Taft, former director of war time economic affairs of the state department, in an address prepared for delivery at the session but which was read by Romeo Short, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau federation because Taft was unable to attend, predicted a world trade conference among the principal nations, to determine the future nature of international trade.

"That conference," the address said, "will set up an international trade organization which will supervise commodity agreements to meet and cure temporary unbalances. It will help develop uniform national regulation of cartels, and will continuously work on other trade barrier problems.

"If we go into a trade war with the principal industrial nations of the world, we shall sell no farm surpluses abroad. They will develop their own sources in Europe, the middle east, Argentina, and 'Down Under.' Perhaps you are satisfied with the American market alone, but I doubt it, and American agriculture as a whole will not be."

Taft's address was prepared as a defense of the Bretton Woods agreement and of an American loan to Great Britain.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 20—Sherman Ships Troops South

ON Dec. 20, 1862, a flotilla of gunboats and improvised transports carrying Gen. Sherman and about 20,000 troops steamed down the Mississippi river from Memphis, Tenn. This was the beginning of Gen. Grant's first great thrust against Vicksburg, Miss., the portal thru which passed supply and communications lines linking the seceded states west of the Mississippi with those east of it.

Sherman, acting under Grant's orders, was to seek to reduce Vicksburg or, if that were impracticable, to establish a strong base on the eastern bank of the river north of the city. Grant himself, off to the northeast, was to try to keep strong Confederate contingents east of the river thoroly occupied.

Disaster attended the execution of the plan. Grant was rendered relatively helpless when Confederate raiding parties succeeded in breaking a portion of his long and precarious supply line and in destroying his principal depot in northern Mississippi.

In the meantime Sherman, unaware of Grant's difficulties, proceeded down the river. His flotilla was an imposing spectacle, he remarked later in his memoirs. After embarking reënforcements at Helena, Ark., Sherman reached the vicinity of Vicksburg, but decided that the fort there was too strong to capture by assault. He ascended the Yazoo and debarked at the foot of Haines' bluff, a Confederate position commanding one of the approaches to Vicksburg.

If Sherman thought that he was to win an easy victory and that the bulk of the Confederate troops were off trying to contain Grant, he was quickly disillusioned. The bluff was defended by perhaps 12,000 men and its natural strength was great. In vain Sherman flung his divisions against it and sustained 1,800 casualties. Then bad weather set in and the project was abandoned.

The campaign so ingloriously begun was to end gloriously the following summer when Grant, after a complex and brilliant operation, compelled Vicksburg to lay down its arms.

RENNER PLEADS FOR RETURN OF SOUTHERN TYROL

VIENNA, Dec. 19 [Reuters]—Dr. Karl Renner, outgoing Austrian chancellor, called for the immediate return of the South Tyrol to Austria when the newly elected Austrian parliament held its first session today.

The former Austrian provinces of Alto Adige and Trentino were ceded to Italy under the treaty of St. Germain after World War I.

Renner thanked the allies, particularly the Red army, for liberating Austria, but spoke of the difficulties of running a small country like Austria with one civil government and four military governments. "We have been liberated, but we shall only be free when we are masters in our own house," he said.

Tomorrow both chambers of parliament will meet in joint session to elect Renner president. The president will then name the government formed by his successor as chancellor, Dr. Leopolo Figl.

REPORT BRITAIN WARNS POLAND ON PROPAGANDA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 19—Britain has notified the Polish government it will not regard the elections to be held soon as "free" if the public is subjected to government controled propaganda and news service, diplomatic sources said today.

Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, British ambassador to Warsaw, reportedly made the statement when he protested against attacks on Britain in the Polish press. The attacks center on the British government's demand for the repayment of 284 million dollars advanced to Polish military services and the exiled Polish government in London during the war.

Kidnaped in Car; Robbed of $150 in Yule Gifts

Stanley Anderson, Lake Geneva, Wis., told police last night three men ejected him from his car at Wacker dr. and La Salle st. after robbing him of $150 worth of Christmas presents and $9. He said two of the men forced their way into his car four hours previously at River and Rand rds. in Des Plaines and that they picked up a companion later.

INDIA IS LIKE A VOLCANO, NEHRU TELLS STUDENTS

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 19 [Reuters]—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Congress party leader, told a meeting of students at Shillong, Assam:

"India today is like a volcano. It may burst momentarily.

"If a proper approach is made by the British government leading to independence we shall take it. Nobody wants conflict. But it is equally certain that if there is delay or postponement of the issue of independence or if any other obstacle is put in the way, we shall take the initiative and we shall go ahead, whatever the consequences."

INSTALMENT XL.

NO WILL

Under the green lamp pocket lens and dusting powder came into play. The pearl handle of the little automatic should be a happy hunting ground for smudges. Yet Headcorn merely grunted to note that, like the window frame upstairs, the weapon had been wiped clean.

In the still blacked-out lounge Avis bumped into Robin with her loaded tray.

"Take your tea," she commanded. "You need it."

"Tea!" he snarled.

"That yarn you spun? You poor sap, you just didn't know!"

"Didn't know." . . . Here, he lashed, "How did I go wrong?"

"Right at the start, when you said you killed Miss Trimble at Elm Corners. She just wasn't killed at Elm Corners. It so happens she never went there at all."

She'd let it out with a rush.

"Never . . . Then how—? Say that again!"

"You heard." She was stumbling now. Ought she to have divulged this crucial fact even to him? "It was a frame-up, I—I heard these two Yard men discussing it: I'm only telling you because I can't see you pulling this martyr stunt all to no possible good."

Crestfallen mortified to his very soul . . . "Then the woman in the bus?"

"Some other woman, dressed in her clothes," she whispered. "Here, drink your tea."

Robin had stopped at the bend of the stair. She saw him stationed there, the heavy window curtains pulled aside, his gaze on the stiff cedars outside. His hunched shoulders were too much for her.

"O, Robin," she whispered. "What possessed you?"

"What is my life worth?" he muttered.

What could she say? From the landing above the inspector was beckoning to her. He was steering a straight course toward the rear stair he must have ascended, into the dusty boxroom.

"Now, Miss Marriott, where exactly did you see that suitcase?"

She pointed. "Over there, wedged behind—it's not there!"

His eyes grilled her. Did he—O, could he suppose she'd fabricated the whole tale?

"No matter," the inspector dismissed it. "It will soon come to light. We'll have our talk in your room."

"It—It was running it fine," she repeated. "The doctor will tell you when it happened. We were on the doorstep. We thought it was just a dead branch. And then—I was hardly in when I came out of my room and found the dog . . . Of course, Maud used the back stairs."

"Yet when you looked into her room she gave every evidence of being sound asleep?"

"Not sound. Muttering. It's that I—I can't understand. But Mrs. Marks had just been in to her. The others? I had to shake Robin. He'd dropped off with his light on, reading a book. I didn't actually see Mr. Moravian, but his snores sounded the real thing. It was—uncanny. Mrs. Marks seemed walking in her sleep. Naturally if three of them were drugged—"

But which of them wasn't? She saw doubt in the inquisitor's gaze. It wasn't till she was alone in her room that the new terror turned her to stone. Suppose the suitcase couldn't be found? There must have been a second gun in it. Aggie's, Maud got it now.

She raced down the back steps, hunting Cam. The man she sought was no longer in the house.

Miss Bolles was standing in the dead center of her worn Brussels carpet. Her lips managed a question. The reply seemed to bring modified relief.

"Obviously, inspector, a wild rigmarole. Some mad quixotic impulse. There is very little I can tell you about tonight's tragedy. I had the extreme misfortune to sleep thru it all."

"What time did you come up to bed?"

"Ten. No, slightly earlier, I believe. I have been suffering from rather bad nights, due to worry over my sister's condition."

"Did you tonight take a sedative, Miss Bolles?" the inspector asked

She followed his glance to the small night table. On it lay a round card board carton bearing a chemist's label. Flushing she admitted she had done so. "It is a very rare thing." Commandeering the box, the inspector then put a query which brought a stare.

"I visit the roof? Certainly not. Some one—the young, flightly housekeeper, perhaps—evidently neglected to bolt the door."

"Did you look in on your sister?"

"I—" The implacable eye wavered. "No, for once I broke my rule. My sister of late has been so difficult, so—peculiar. There had been a regrettable scene."

The hand ornamented with adhesive plaster twitched, but the anticipated reference was not made. Headcorn did not doubt that the after dinner coffee had been heavily drugged.

Maud Bolles was concealing something. Schooled to iron control, she still could not mask from him certain indications of mortal terror—but that terror might not be of arrest . . . He moved to the door, picked up a parcel, unwrapped it.

"You say you did not go up to the roof. How then did your shoes acquire not merely black rabbit hairs, but sooty grime on the soles?"

He showed her the bits of pulverized dead leaf adhering to the arch between sole and low heel, the flecks of red rust marring the toes. The roof steps were rusted, as she must know.

"Borrowed," she said chokingly "Worn by some one other than myself."

It was the expected reply.

"An attempt, inspector, to incriminate me. Doubtless by the person who on two occasions in the last fortnight has sought to take my life. If I were executed for my sister's murder, would it not be a convenient means of attaining an object? Safe as well. Shall I give you full details?"

"Please do. First, tho, I will put a vital question: Are you at this moment in possession of a properly executed will?"

"That," Miss Bolles said stiffly, "is a purely personal affair. But if you deem it essential, my answer is no."

"You are without a will. You had made one formerly? And that document you have destroyed. Will you give me the name of your solicitor?"

STRATTON'S 'YES' IS AWAITED ON CONGRESS RACE

G. O. P. Leaders Ready to Complete Slate

Word that Lt. William G. Stratton accepts the offer of nomination for congressman at large on the administration slate is expected today by Illinois Republican leaders.

Lt. W. G. Stratton

Stratton, now serving in the navy on Okinawa, earlier had expressed his determination to contest the administration for the state treasurer nomination, but indications now are that his release from the navy will not come until May or June, which would prevent any primary campaign.

Overtures to Stratton

George Perrine, Aurora committeeman and unofficial Stratton manager, said overtures had been made from Gov. Green's camp, but that he had received no definite acceptance of the offer from Stratton. Most of Stratton's political friends in Illinois are urging him to go along with the governor next year and take his chance of getting what he wants in 1948.

Stratton's acceptance of the congressman at large place on the ticket would clear the way for Gov. Green's favored candidate for state treasurer, Richard Yates Rowe of Jacksonville, who served briefly last year as secretary of state.

Want Day to Withdraw

Stratton's expected candidacy probably will renew attempts of regular organization leaders to induce Stephen A. Day, who served two terms as congressman at large and was defeated for that office by Emily Taft Douglas, to withdraw. Stratton served as congressman at large before being elected state treasurer and lost in a 1944 primary battle for secretary of state.

Vernon L. Nickell of Champaign, superintendent of public instruction, will have the organization support for renomination.

DALEY OFFERED TO DEMOCRATS FOR SHERIFF JOB

3 Others Mentioned at County Confab

BY GEORGE TAGGE

The name of Sen. Richard J. Daley, Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, was advanced for sheriff yesterday with three others at a meeting of the Cook county Democratic central committee. Altho 35 candidacies were proposed at this opening session for the 1946 campaign, not one related to a veteran of World War II.

Daley, minority leader of the Illinois senate, also serves as deputy county controler. Others mentioned for the sheriff's office were Ald. Rostenkowski [32d], Ald. Duffy [19th], and Joseph T. Baran, whose term as sanitary district trustee is expiring.

Mulcahy May Be Treasurer

County Treasurer Victor L. Schlaeger had sought the sheriff's job, but his name went in for one of three sanitary district trusteeships.

Sheriff Mulcahy, barred by law from succeeding himself, is likely to be favored for treasurer. Ald. Bowler [25th] put Mulcahy's name in as representing "valuable timber that would be a tower of strength on our ticket." Mayor Kelly, chairman of the gathering, beamed. County Commissioner Frank Bobrytzke also was proposed for treasurer.

Kelly Heads Slate Group

Slate making efforts will avoid any but obvious decisions until after the holidays. The chore is in the hands of the executive committee, headed by Kelly, plus three Democratic ward committeemen: William J. Connors [42d], Peter Fosco [20th], and Baran [26th]. State's Atty. Tuohy will take a hand.

Discussing his flight to London, the mayor said he discovered that in London they have political machines without being conscious of it. Each London ward of 2,000 population has three officials corresponding to precinct captains, who look after the needs of the people, he said. He told the ward leaders not to fear the Pearl Harbor investigation or other criticisms of the actions of President Roosevelt.

POLICE HUNTING SECOND BULLET IN WAVE MURDER

Capt. Frank Reynolds of Albany Park station said yesterday that search will be made for the second of two bullets that struck the body of Miss Frances Brown, 33, former WAVE found slain Dec. 10 in her apartment at 3941 Pine Grove av.

It was established yesterday that a fragment found was part of the bullet that penetrated her skull. The second bullet, which struck her left arm, has not been found. Her room will be searched, police said, as well as the ground outside Miss Brown's window on the possibility the bullet might have passed thru the open window.

Fires Cause $850,000 Damage in Tulsa, Okla.

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 19 (AP)—Two fires that started almost simultaneously in different parts of the city swept thru a laundry and a department store today, causing damage estimated at $850,000.

British Lords Rebel at Baring War Time Secrets

LONDON, Dec. 19 (AP)—The house of lords today rebelled at making public minutes of secret war time sessions and the government withdrew its recommendation.

WOMAN FINED FOR TAMPERING WITH WALLET

Mrs. Rhetha Cole, 28, of 150 Burton pl., arrested by a house detective who said he saw her opening a wallet in the room of a drunken naval lieutenant, was fined $1 and $1 costs yesterday by Judge Francis Borrelli in Women's court on a charge of disorderly conduct. Judge Borrelli continued to Dec. 21 a similar charge against Mrs. Jeanette Holtzman, 34, of 2712 Milwaukee av., who was accused by Carol Scott, 30, a sailor, of stealing $60 from him in the Brevoort hotel.

STATE TO URGE INDICTMENT OF 2 IN GANG SLAYING

Asst. State's Atty. Alex Napoli today will present to the grand jury evidence against Renoro Lolli, 37, and Lawrence [Tiny] Mazzanars, 34, of 3402 Lyndale st., for the murder of Cecil [Red] Smith, whom they named as the slayer of Detectives Charles A. Brady and George H. Hellstern last Sept. 2.

Smith was executed the night of Nov. 29 and was buried in a cornfield in Leyden township because his fellow members in a robbery gang thought he might break and talk if seized for questioning. Lolli admitted firing the shot which killed him.

Other charges of automobile larceny pending in Jury court against Lolli and James Kelly, 39, another member of the band, were continued yesterday by Judge Harold P. O'Connell to Jan. 18 at the request of the prosecution.

ROBBED IN LIQUOR STORE

George Russo, owner of a liquor store at 4406 Harrison st., reported to police last night that two armed and masked bandits robbed him of $300 and whisky valued at $25.

CHICAGO HEALTH FACILITIES TO BE STUDIED BY U. S.

Col. Frank V. Meriwether, district director of the United States public health service, announced yesterday that his office here will start a survey of Chicago's health facilities on Feb. 1.

The study was requested two months ago by the Chicago Medical society, the Institute of Medicine of Chicago, and the health division of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies. Mayor Kelly and Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, joined in the appeal, which Col. Meriwether said has been approved by the surgeon general.

Brig. Gen. James Thompson, USPH administrator, now stationed in Japan will direct the project. Col. Meriwether said from eight months to a year will be required to complete the work, which will be done by 35 medical specialists and office workers. Subjects that will be inquired into, he explained, include such health problems as housing, tuberculosis prevention, sewage, and need for expanded hospital facilities.

We're getting 'em home
...even over the Holidays!
THANKS FOR YOUR HELP

THE railroads are happy to be able to bring so many of our service men home for the holidays. This would be impossible without the cooperation of the public. Many of you, we know, realize that in traveling now you deprive some uniformed man of a chance to get home. It is a typical American act—giving the boys a break.
But even greater numbers of service men must still be moved. Hundreds of thousands from the Atlantic Coast—even more from the Pacific Coast. Their thoughts are on home, and it is up to all of us, the railroads particularly, to see that they get home.
That's why 75 per cent of all sleeping car space is still assigned to movements of our fighting men;
—why so many passenger coaches are still working full time for Uncle Sam.
Civilians are accepting the tight travel situation cheerfully. Most of you realize that this unexpected rush of uniformed men back to American shores demands passenger cars and still more passenger cars—troop trains and still more troop trains.
The situation, however, is temporary. Within a few months we will be able to announce that the rush is over and that passenger service has returned to normal. Well, hardly normal. For the plans now well under way include many innovations that will make train travel more pleasurable than ever before.
But getting the boys home is still our No. 1 job. Again, thanks for the help you are giving us.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

A new and altogether desirable turn in the negotiations between the automobile companies and the union has become apparent of late. The change came when spokesmen for Ford proposed that the union give some kind of a guaranty against strikes during the life of the contract under discussion and the union showed a willingness to discuss the proposal. The company intimated that in such circumstances, with the risk of costly interruptions in production reduced, wage adjustments which otherwise would appear excessive might be considered practical.

It is still too early to say whether anything will come of all this. Ford has made a new wage offer that has been rejected and General Motors has entered its formal request for what is already being called "company security." Under this title the companies are asking not only assurance against strikes but also recognition of management's right to manage.

Thus collective bargaining is beginning to take on a new meaning. Over many years the unions insisted that the individual workman could not negotiate successfully with management because the company could always dispense with the services of one man and his bargaining position was correspondingly weak. The unions asked for collective bargaining in order to oppose the collective strength of the employes to the management.

Orthodox economists can show fallacies in this reasoning, but their argument, for whatever it may be worth, has been largely ineffective. Collective bargaining had made great strides long before the Wagner act. Since the act was adopted the practice has gained new adherents by hundreds of thousands in scores of industries. The men were unaccustomed to this arrangement and their leaders were all too often without experience in the field, a deficiency that was apparent also in the management of many of the newly unionized industries. In these circumstances difficulties would have arisen even if the politicians in the administration had not deliberately fomented them in order to gain votes, and even if the leaders of the new unions had not projected them into politics to cement the alliance with the politicians.

It has been plain now for some years that the new unions are getting too big for their breeches. They have assumed the right to invade what must be the field of management if management is to be held responsible to the public for its products and to investors for protection of their legitimate interests. Union activity in politics has as its purpose the obtaining of a government which will not be neutral as between labor and management, but frankly partisan. At the same time the new unions, and some of the older ones as well, have shown a growing unwillingness to abide by contracts freely made. Frivolous and violent strikes, in direct violation of contractual pledges, have been frequent, notably in the automobile and steel industries.

Unless these excesses are voluntarily checked it is altogether certain that legislation will be enacted to make the unions behave. The Wagner act has given the unions many advantages. Another act could take them away and impose restrictions. The same language which the Supreme court employed in upholding the Wagner act could be used to sustain any such modifications of it.

It would be much better for the nation, for unions, employers, and every one else, if peace could be found thru mutual understanding and self-discipline rather than thru legislation. The country, therefore, takes a hopeful view of the new turn in the negotiations in the automobile industry. If this leads to a solution which will make for responsible unions, acceptance of contractual obligations, and mutual recognition of the other fellow's rights, a long stride toward industrial order will have been taken. This outcome would be a real triumph for the principle of collective bargaining.

GREAT LAKES

Once before, in the middle '30s, it was necessary to arouse middle western opinion in order to demonstrate to congress the unwisdom of dispensing with the Great Lakes Naval Training station. In consequence, Great Lakes provided trained men for our crews when war brought its demands for an unprecedented increase in naval personnel. The station exercised a tremendous attraction in bringing into the navy the young men of the middle west where the best fighting men have always been found. There were more sailors from the prairies than from any other section of the country.

Now the navy once again is reported to be considering plans to put the station on an inactive status and maintain only a skeleton force of 1,000 officers and men at Great Lakes. The decision will be up to the new navy general board which will be constituted shortly. It is fortunate that several admirals who are to become members of the board have had substantial numbers of Great Lakes trainees under their command during operations at sea. They should recognize that it would be folly to shut down the station.

The peace time navy, projected at a strength of 500,000 men and 40,000 officers, is going to require large scale training to provide the crews which are needed. Great Lakes is an established and proven facility. It has made unequaled contributions to American fighting strength in two wars. It has a long future of service before it. It should be retained.

THE PROPAGANDA MILL

The house foreign affairs committee has approved a bill which would establish a permanent propaganda service under the auspices of the state department. When the office of war information folded up just after V-J day, its functions were transferred to the state department, which also assumed the propaganda work formerly under the direction of the office of inter-American affairs.

It was understood at the time that the state department was to liquidate these activities within a few months. Meanwhile, an assistant secretary of state has been appointed whose only mission is to direct publicity and propaganda. The OWI and propaganda branch of the OIAA will be continued, with all of their expense to the treasury, their burocracy, and their potentialities for mischief, under changed management.

The euphemism is employed that these propagandists are to "explain America abroad." The state department and the New Deal wouldn't have to try to explain themselves to anybody if they stood for justice, morality, and American interests in foreign policy, instead of for enslavement, appeasement, and devotion to the interests of British and communist imperialism and of Wall street. No amount of propaganda can sell this program to the fearful peoples of small nations or of the enslaved colonial areas. Nor can propaganda sell it to the American people.

SAVE IT FOR HOME CONSUMPTION

In the Voice of the People today we print a letter from Mr. C. A. Berendsen, New Zealand minister in Washington. Mr. Berendsen protests a recent Tribune editorial based upon statements made in an editorial page study of the Pearl Harbor congressional inquiry which appeared in the Standard, a New Zealand weekly. The Standard said that President Roosevelt, believing that "American public opinion was not ready for war, decided to leave exposed a flank for the Japanese to attack. The whole emphasis of [Gen.] Marshall's orders to [Gen.] Short bears this out."

To attempt, as Mr. Berendsen does, to differentiate between the Labor party of New Zealand and the Labor government of New Zealand is as phony as the attempt of the Russians to differentiate between their government and the comintern, that government's erstwhile agency for communist world revolution.

Quentin Pope, Tribune correspondent in Wellington, reported before Mr. Berendsen sprang into action that the socialist government and its mouthpiece were greatly disturbed by the transmission of the Standard's editorial page assessment of Pearl Harbor responsibility. The Standard, Mr. Pope stated, now disclaimed that it was a government organ, altho its masthead calls it the official organ of the Labor movement, and every New Zealander knows that government leaders carry out the decisions of the movement or be fired.

Mr. Berendsen's other complaints parallel those previously made by the Standard itself, precisely for the reason that both he and the newspaper are creatures of the Labor party and government. The minister, for instance, calls the Standard's appraisal "the personal commentary of an anonymous columnist." Every one knows that editorial page material is anonymous because it represents the views of the newspaper in question and not of the individual writer.

The Standard and Mr. Berendsen both term the Tribune report a distortion of the Pearl Harbor review, whereas Mr. Pope says it was in fact an accurate summary. The Standard goes a little farther than Mr. Berendsen when, after advancing these feeble defenses, it adds that, anyway, it didn't mean what it originally said. Discussing its statement that Roosevelt "exposed a flank for Japanese attack," the Standard now says that it was referring "of course, not to Pearl Harbor, but to his general policy of allotting a secondary role to the Pacific theater so as to play the largest possible part in the European war," thus inviting the possible construction that what the Standard really believes is that Roosevelt abandoned to the Japanese not only Pearl Harbor, but also the Philippines, Guam, and Wake.

We think it sufficient to add that it is a fair assumption that every article in every newspaper in the British empire is politically controled and politically inspired. New Zealand has so slavishly followed the dictates of empire interests in its press that a few months ago the American minister, K. S. Patton, was moved to lodge a protest with the New Zealand Press association against the anti-American campaign in the press accompanying the windup of lend-lease.

The statement in the Standard that Roosevelt made Pearl Harbor weak in order to invite a Japanese attack is obviously official and the denial only adds to its authenticity. While this evidence is not necessary to demonstrate that Roosevelt knew the attack on Pearl Harbor was coming, it is strong contributing testimony. Our advice to Mr. Berendsen is to save his propaganda for consumption in New Zealand, where they don't know the difference between the true and the false.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

THE DANCING COMMA

This newspaper's proofreading department prepared itself for the Christmas season by consulting the oracles on the punctuation of a famous and ancient carol—the one that begins, "God rest you." Should the line continue with "merry [comma] gentlemen" or [comma] "merry gentlemen"? Eight books were consulted, and the score was five for the comma after "merry," three for the comma preceding. This finding favors current meticulous usage: "God rest you merry, gentlemen."

* * *

Nevertheless, whenever we hear this carol we think of a group of merry [pleasant, agreeable] gentlemen, given pious greeting. They have been dancing before a "crib," or shrine, representing the Nativity, either within a church or out of doors, for such was the Christmas eve custom in ancient times. Then they, or an accompanying group of carol singers, sing the hymn set to the gay music of the folk dance. A wish for God's peace of soul is expressed for the merry [pleasant, agreeable] gentlemen; "rest you" may also imply a pause in their festival exercises.

* * *

Therefore we disagree with the modern position of the dancing comma in this familiar song. It does not please our sense of old English speech or the rhythm of the line. We maintain that in this reform of punctuation a mistake has been made by the error-hunters.

* * *

To demolish our position, the book-bound scholars will quote Shakespeare: "God rest you merry, sir." We will answer that any one who regards the punctuation of the first printings of Shakespeare's plays as infallible should not be trusted in matters of colloquial style. Shakespeare meant this as a complimentary greeting, not as the expression of a hope that the pleasant gentleman in question might go to sleep while laughing his head off.

REMARKS TO WIFE

(After three years at Butte, Mont.)

Come, my sweet, we've left the ranges;
Here we are, corralled and roped.
Yet I have a hunch the change is Rather better than we'd hoped.
Let us both now, free of awe, go
At our task of settling down,
For this place they call Chicago
Is a honey of a town.

Let us sow, then, your and my oat,
Let us drown our doubts and fears,
For the wailing of the coyote
Grows more distant in our ears.
Yes, the mountains had their heyday,
And we loved the rocks and rills,
But Chicago's strictly grade A

Too Many White Ones

On the radio, Christmas begins early. That's how I happened to hear "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" in mid-November. It made me think of the last three Christmases, when I really did dream of white ones because up in Alaska, where my doctor-captain was, they are nothing else but.

"Talk about your white Christmases," he wrote, "you should see them! Between the snow on the ground and the snow on top of my hut I feel like an ice cream sandwich." That was the first one, when he had been there only a month. On the second he had lost some of his enthusiasm. "This is where they were invented," he grumbled in a letter. "Our snow plows are clearing the air field and have already piled it up 20 feet high at the edges. It's only romantic in songs." Neither of us could believe it, but on the third Christmas he was still there, wrapped in GI furs and shod with Yukon boots. "The only thing I can dream of is a Green Easter," he wrote.

This year he will spend his fourth Christmas with Uncle Sam, but he is only 165 miles from home.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if a stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

L. F. E. writes: "Some time ago you stated in your column that a victory medal for World War II. was authorized. Since that time many enlisted men of the armed forces have been wearing the ribbon. Where and to whom should we write to obtain the medal for veterans who already have been discharged? Will discharge certificates have to be sent to obtain the medal?"

It is true that a medal has been authorized for all persons who were members of the military forces in World War II., but the medal has not been struck. The ribbon may be bought in stores authorized to sell military supplies. When the medal is struck and becomes available for distribution announcement will be made in the press with instructions how it may be obtained. In this connection it may be recalled that a medal has been authorized for members of the army of occupation in World War I., but the medal has not been struck.

Mrs. L. R. writes: "My husband soon will be able to apply for discharge under the 85 year old and two year service rule. In figuring his two years of service, can he count from the date he was inducted and sworn in or the date he left home for service?"

The regulation requires two years of active service. Therefore, he may count only from the date he reported for active service and not the date he was sworn in. At the time he was sworn in he received a furlough. During that time he was on inactive status.

WHEN THE KNEE GIVES WAY

THE knee, which is the largest joint in the skeleton, is so marvelously constructed that it is able to bear considerable punishment. The part is in a precarious situation and it serves to sustain the weight of the entire body, when in an upright position. It resembles a mechanical hinge, with a considerable range of motion backward and forward tho not to the sides or in rotation.

A group of strong ligaments, as well as various supportive muscles and tendons supply strength and stability to the structure. Normally, the segments fit snugly and a fringe of cartilage over the lower surface acts not only as a cushion but affords smooth action.

The knee is subject to many disturbances. The effect of wear and tear over many years may result in arthritis. Consequently, our oldsters are likely to be bothered, especially on changing position.

The cartilage may be torn during an accident. This is observed frequently in football players who pivot suddenly or are tackled from the side at the exact moment that weight is being borne on a slightly flexed knee. The victim finds that the hinge is "locked" as tho something were wedged between. He is unable to straighten the leg without experiencing excruciating pain. This is followed by swelling and, unless pressure is exerted in the region of the damaged tissues, the sufferer cannot get about. In the majority of cases, the wearing of a bandage or cast will bring about spontaneous recovery, altho the period of disability may last several months. Should the manifestation have a tendency to recur, permanent results can be obtained by removing the injured section.

Mishaps of this type may also tear or stretch the ligaments. Those on the inner aspect are more prone to be hurt. Discomfort develops as quickly as when the cartilage is affected but the victim has no difficulty in extending the leg until perhaps the next day. Rest is essential and a support is required.

One of the strangest derangements of the knee is osteochondritis dissecans. A small fragment of bone, with its cartilaginous attachment, becomes softened and ultimately detaches itself from the rest of the structure. The involved area is usually tiny but, in spite of its size, enough roughening may occur on the inner surface to create severe irritation. Should a piece fall out, the effect would be the same as if a pebble had found its way into the space. For this reason, distress is encountered whenever the hinge is closed.

This malady is usually seen in young people, and the cause is obscure. Some are of the opinion that an injury is responsible; others blame the circulation. Surgery is indicated, particularly when symptoms are annoying.

The clicking noise that many encounter on bending does not always indicate disease in the joint. The site of trouble may be in the surrounding areas. Another common complaint is weakening of one of the muscles which helps to steady the joint. In these circumstances it "gives way" under stress or strain. This may be overcome by strengthening the muscles with special exercises.

UP IN THE AIR

R. P. writes: Does airplane travel have any effect on an arrested tuberculosis case? Treatment was by pneumothorax.

REPLY

At high altitudes air expands and consequently those who are still receiving pneumothorax may encounter trouble. In general, elevations below 7,000 feet are tolerated. Those not under this form of treatment can fly with relative safety.

CHANGING APPEARANCE

M. C. writes: As we grow older, do the facial bones have a tendency to grow larger?

REPLY

The bones may actually enlarge in certain disorders such as Paget's disease and acromegaly. In the absence of these conditions, the structures may appear more prominent as the skin loses its elasticity and fatty layers.

CRUSTY SCALP

Mrs. B. M. writes: How is cradle cap formed?

REPLY

This type of irritation — seborrheic dermatitis—means inflammation of the fat glands. When the condition appears in infants, the popular name is milk or cradle cap. It resembles eczema and the treatment is similar.

The Christmas Scene

The mobs of shoppers, their rude conduct traducing the lovely strains of the Christmas carols ringing clear and silver, man's hope chiding man's present, thru the bitter cold of noon and dusk alike. . . . The fight for merchandise and the shoddiness of most of it. The empty shelves and the exorbitant prices. The complete absence of humdrum staples, once wanted by no one, now considered the gift supreme, flannel nightgowns, cotton stockings, any shirt, any handkerchief. The weary salespeople, most of them far more polite than the customers they futilely try to placate. . . . The horde of snatching hands around any counter that has something to offer. "We ordered them seven weeks ago," a battered saleswoman is explaining, as she holds up a sleazy pink silkish slip [$6.95]. "They came this morning. Twenty dozen. And already this one is the only one left."

The voice, surprisingly beautiful, of the Salvation Army girl singing "O, Come All Ye Faithful" in the I. C. tunnel at Van Buren st., carried by public address system from her cold niche in midtunnel to the train tracks at one end, to the Michigan av. aperture at the other. The commuters, most of them men, who turn suddenly, their eyes moist, and drop bills in her kettle, striding warmed on their way into the subzero weather.

The extraordinary Christmas sale of books, especially of what are called the Great Books. Plato, Aristotle, Sophocles, St. Augustine, Thomas Aquinas, Herodotus . . . sufficient stocks of them cannot be kept on the shelves, perhaps because inflation cannot touch the verities. Is this interest in the humanities peculiar to Chicago, or has it raced across the country? If so, what great promise it holds for the future. Out of the threat of evil may yet come great good.

The clouds of driven snow, softening and shrouding in mystery the tall, angular buildings, making the dark planetarium a shadowy Greek dome against the white of the sky and the white of the lake. . . . The merry twinkle to the myriad red lights encircling the enormous green wreath on the wedding-cake Wrigley building. . . . The sugar plum tree, mecca of childhood dreams, in one department store. . . . The shortage of holly, but the beautiful glistening leaves and brilliant red berries on what is shown. . . . The dull green of fragrant bayberry candles, which, once lighted, must be allowed to burn down to the base—for happiness to you and all who enter your home. . . . The two women sitting forlornly at the bond table in a bank, ready to sell Victory bonds to all who desire them—the absent all—and the man at the counter cashing in $1,200 worth. Why, this Christmas when shoppers seek vainly for gifts of the $5 range, did the treasury department not offer $5 and $10 bonds? It would have meant a wholesale cleaning up in the gift line, whereas those who can afford $18.75 gifts, of bonds or merchandise, are comparatively few.

The shop windows full of luxurious furs, evening dresses spattered with sequins and brilliants, satin slippers, silk dressing gowns . . . and the woman who entered the gray wood waiting room on the I. C. suburban tracks at noon one snowy, subzero day this week. The other women, waiting impatiently for a train to take them down to the luxury stores. Warmly dressed, fur at their necks, their hands, their feet, fat pocketbooks on their arms, shopping lists inside them. Most of them were fat, sleek, well groomed. The one who entered was gaunt, sick, stooped, dressed in a worn, thin black coat, a Queen Mary hat on her head, no gloves on her hands, her shoes split and run down. Cradled in her arms was a bundle of soiled pink cotton. It began to wail, a thin, sick cry. A red, bare fist emerged, waved in the air. The mother tried to warm it. A slow local train came. The mother huddled over her bundle and hobbled frantically for it. What of them? A fast express came. The sleek furred ladies walked leisurely onto it. And what of them?

FROM THE NEW ZEALAND MINISTER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13—The editorial headed "New Zealand Knows," in your issue of Dec. 7, contained what appeared to me such an astonishing misstatement of the views of the New Zealand government that I referred the matter by telegraph to Wellington. I am now informed by my prime minister [the Rt. Hon. Peter Fraser] that, on behalf of the New Zealand government, he at once and most firmly repudiates any suggestion that he or any member of the New Zealand government holds the views attributed to them in your editorial.

The Chicago Tribune Press Service message from Wellington, under Dec. 5, upon which the editorial is apparently based, is inaccurate in several important respects, as indeed are the conclusions which The Tribune draws from that message, and I hope you will allow me to make the following statement of the position which does accurately set out the facts:

1. The Standard is not the organ of the New Zealand government, but of the New Zealand Labor movement, and the government is in no way responsible for the material appearing therein.
2. The article in question was not, as represented, the editorial opinion of The Standard. It contained the personal commentary of an anonymous columnist and merely purported to report information and views actually emanating from Washington.
3. The press message from Wellington is not a textual copy of the commentary in question, and by departure from the text conveys an interpretation of the intention of the commentary which is, in an important measure, misleading.
4. The implication that the New Zealand government holds the views attributed to it in your editorial is entirely unwarranted by the facts.

On behalf of the New Zealand government, I am authorized to state that neither the government, nor the prime minister, nor any other member of the government, could possibly hold the views which are ascribed to them in the editorial: that they have never held such views, and that they do not hold them now.

C. A. Berendsen,
New Zealand Minister to the United States

FROM PROF. SPENCER

Chicago, Dec. 17—I thank you for the splendid assistance you have rendered the war man power commission and the United States employment service during the more than three years I have served as regional director of these agencies for region 6, Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin.

The remarkable record established by the people of the midwest in World War II. is due largely to the fact that those in charge of facilities for the dissemination of public information have kept the public constantly informed of the current man power programs and the actions of the man power commission.

THEY KEPT THEIR WORD

IE SHIMA, Ryukyus, Nov. 17—Twenty thousand United States soldiers who are stationed in the Ryukyus Islands, waiting shipment home. We have fought the war, we have the required number of points for release from the army, the army said they are ready to release us, the navy said they are ready to take us home, but they both said that the bottle neck is ships. The papers tell us that strikes are holding up ships, then the next day the papers tell us that there are plenty of ships, according to the unions.

All that we 20,000 soldiers want is ships to take us home, not alibis or excuses. We didn't give you in the United States alibis or excuses. We delivered. We let nothing, Japs, jungle, disease or typhoons keep us from delivering victories to you. Some of us gave our lives, legs, arms, eyes, and health. Now it doesn't seem to us to be asking too much of you to get us home at once.

We don't want and are not interested in alibis and excuses, we want to come home to what we have been fighting for. We kept our word to you. Now keep your word to us.

HOLIDAY LEAVE

Maywood, Ill., Dec. 15—The commanding general at Vaughan General hospital in Maywood has instituted a holiday pass and leave policy which works an injustice on every one. Christmas leave is from Dec. 21 to 27 with no extensions. The New Year's leave is from Dec. 31 to Jan. 2. What this means is that patients must return after Christmas and then go home again if they wish to spend New Year's at home. It means twice the transportation burden to the railroads and other carriers. It means twice the expense and trouble [men with crutches, braces, and casts don't find travel too convenient] for the patients. It means twice as much work for the administration staff of the hospital, cutting special orders for two leaves.

The other hospitals in the 6th service command demonstrate that our general stands alone. The convalescent center at Fort Sheridan will give 11 days, enough to cover Christmas and New Year's. Percy Jones General hospital began to send their patients on holiday leave Dec. 12.

BOUND FOR THE STORK CLUB

Chicago, Dec. 17—A recent story told of 2,000 GI's waiting in a Los Angeles station for transportation east. The same day, the papers showed a glamorous movie star and recent husband arriving on a streamliner from the west. Are seats held in reserve for the movie stars, while thousands are clamoring for any kind of space on trains east bound?

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

Chicago, Dec. 16—Sometime ago I read an article stating that workers in a plant shut down by a strike who are not members of the union and are not striking [1] can draw unemployment compensation. [2] Do you know when this rule was put into effect? C. L.

1. If they are ready to take a job, if available, then they would be eligible.
2. From the start of the unemployment compensation. Tribune Law Department

UNO VOICE VOTED FOR PEOPLES OF TRUSTEE AREAS

U. S. and Britain Lose; Now Up to Assembly

BY WILLIAM FULTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 19—Overriding objections from colonial powers, the united nations preparatory commission decided today that dependent peoples ruled under trusteeship agreements should be permitted to elect spokesmen to tell their grievances.

The vote was 21 to 4. The United States, the United Kingdom, South Africa, and China voted no. Numerous countries, including the Netherlands, Belgium, Australia, and New Zealand, abstained from balloting.

James Green, American representative, contended the plan prejudged trusteeship agreements that the united nations will make.

Pedro Lopez, Philippine delegate, said he believed "old time colonial philosophy has influenced the thinking or colored the viewpoint of some of those who have raised objections."

Filipino's Plan Altered

Lopez had sought to provide for elections every three years in trust territories. An amendment submitted by the Ukraine, eliminating the time elemnt, was adoptd. It provides the united nations trusteeship council shall obtain expressions from the populations thru these methods:

Voice of representative organs, election of spokesmen, consultation with national organizations, referenda, contact by representatives of the trusteeship council with the people, or other methods.

The preparatory commission's vote advanced the proposal to the general assembly, which will meet on Jan. 10.

U. S. Yields on Mandates

United States delegates gave up claims for "equal status" of interested powers in the shift of league of nations mandated territory to united nations trusteeship control.

It was agreed that the general assembly will be asked to call upon "mandatory powers to act in concert with states directly concerned" in taking steps to turn their mandates over to united nations control.

This would have the effect of placing the United States and other powers which have no league mandate territory in a secondary position in discussing trusteeship negotiations affecting such territories as Palestine and Pacific islands mandated to Australia and New Zealand.

However, it was felt that the position of the United States in relation to Japanese island mandates would not be affected.

Urge UNO in Small Town

The United Kingdom submitted a document suggesting that permanent headquarters of the united nations be located in a small town in the eastern part of the United States. Delegates interpreted the move as revealing British favor of the Hyde Park ancestral home of the late President Roosevelt.

The document warned against having the united nations settle close to Washington, D. C., because the proximity "might affect the character of delegations to the general assembly." The British recommended the possibility of asking the United States to name the architect and supervise the construction of headquarters buildings.

Francis Williams, chief press adviser to the British prime minister and chairman of the preparatory commission's technical committee on information, disclosed that it was planned to set up a department of public information and a radio station at the united nations capital, and possibly build other radio stations to blanket the world.

WHITE SLAVERY SUSPECT GETS ST. PAUL TRIAL

United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday ordered James Tyler, 39, of Minneapolis, Minn., a Negro orchestra leader, removed from Chicago to St, Paul, Minn., for trial on a federal charge of violating the white slave act. Tyler was arrested Dec. 16 by federal bureau of investigation agents in a hotel at 2838 Prairie av. as a suspect in the murder of Lorraine Edin, 21, who was found burned to death in a hunter's cabin near Danbury, Wis., Oct. 26. Federal agents said Miss Edin was connected with Tyler's alleged vice activities.

ELDORA GUARD GETS 30 DAYS IN INMATE'S DEATH

Fort Dodge, Ia., Dec. 19 [Special]—The 18 day second degree murder trial of Carl Klatt, former guard at the Eldora State Training School for Boys, ended today with his conviction of assault and battery in connection with the death of an inmate after a beating.

Klatt, 33, was sentenced to 30 days at hard labor and assessed the costs of the trial, estimated by the court clerk at $3,600.

Klatt was charged with causing the death last Aug. 29 of Ronald Miller, 17, an inmate from Des Moines, by a "terrific beating" and forced exhausting work afterward.

Klatt was ousted from his job as disciplinary officer at the school, as were four other officials and employes who also were indicted with him on charges ranging from second degree murder to conspiracy in connection with Miller's death.

Following Klatt's sentencing, a charge of second degree murder against one of the four, Harold Nelson, another guard, was dismissed by Judge McCoid on motion of the state because of lack of evidence. However, Nelson was ordered to trial Feb. 3 on another indictment charging him with assault with intent to commit great bodily injury.

SUB-ZERO WAVE RETURNS, COLDER DUE TOMORROW

Sub-zero temperatures returned to Chicago last night, the mercury dipping below the zero mark shortly after 10 o'clock, with forecasts of still colder weather tomorrow after light snowfall this afternoon. Weather officials saw no immediate break in the cold wave.

Snow yesterday morning added 3.7 inches in Chicago and brought the average depth on the ground to 6.8 inches.

From an expected minimum of 5 below this morning the temperatures will reach no higher than 18 above and will reach a forecast maximum of 5 above tomorrow. Light winds were predicted for the next 48 hours.

Welfare Administration Opens New Headquarters

Professors, sociologists, civic officials, and others interested in welfare were present yesterday when the Chicago welfare administration opened its new headquarters at 25 S. Damen av. All units, formerly scattered thru the city, now are housed in the headquarters, except the administration's convalescent home, which will remain at 5059 Vincennes av.

FARMER GETS 5 YEARS IN PLOT TO MURDER WIFE

Belvidere, N. J., Dec. 19 (AP)—James C. Gibbs, 56, wealthy farmer and bank director of Johnsonburg, was sentenced to state prison for five to seven years and fined $5,000 today on a conviction of advocating the murder of his wife, Mrs. May Gibbs, 58.

Gibbs was found guilty Dec. 5 by an all-male jury which recommended clemency. The maximum penalty under a rarely invoked Jersey law would have been 15 years imprisonment.

A state trooper testified in the trial that he played the role of a "tough guy" needed for the proposed slaying and was present when Gibbs paid $400, balance of a $500 offer, to a former handyman Gibbs had hired for the killing. Mrs. Gibbs is seeking separate maintenance from her husband in court.

HEART ATTACK KILLS PEDESTRIAN

1,000 POUND SAFE STOLEN, HIDDEN, FOUND INTACT

Within a few hours after Christ Dinou, proprietor of Hartman's grill, 11 E. Adams st., reported to police the theft of a 1,000 pound safe from his restaurant, Herbert Freeman, 1930 S. State st., Negro junk dealer, brushed aside a pile of rubbish and snow in the rear of 224 S. State st., and found the missing safe.

Dinou told Central police its contents were undisturbed, including $1,109.36 cash, $2,750 in war bonds, and securities valued at $1,800.

Samuel J. Goldsmith

Services were held yesterday in Los Angeles, Cal., for Samuel J. Goldsmith, former Chicagoan, who died there Saturday. Mr. Goldsmith at one time was a buyer for the Boston store, and later operated the Economy Cover company. He left Chicago five years ago for Hollywood. He is survived by his widow, Hattie, a daughter, and two sons.

Archie Barkely

Archie Barkely, 50, of 618 Parkview av., Elmhurst, chief of the civilian guards at Vaughan General hospital, collapsed, apparently from a heart attack, in a corridor of the hospital yesterday and died a few minutes later. He is survived by his sister, Mary, of Taylorville, Christian county.

Mrs. Frances M. Lee

Services for Mrs. Frances M. Lee, who died Tuesday at Washington, D. C., will be held today at Montclair, N. J. She was the widow of Charles T. Lee, for many years vice president of Libby, McNeill & Libby of Chicago, who died in April, 1944. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edna Lee Cox of Washington.

POLICE HUNTING 'NICE' GANGSTER; IT'S JOE SALTIS

Joe Saltis, frequently the object of a police search during the prohibition era as a beer runner, was the target of a similar man hunt yesterday—on a disorderly conduct charge.

The warrant for Saltis' arrest was issued by Judge Leon Edelman in Chicago av. court after Miss Nellie Long, 635 N. Clark st., complained that Saltis had $300 belonging to her.

"How did he get it?" the court asked.

Miss Long said she met Saltis in a tavern last October and gave him the money because she was afraid somebody might rob her of it.

"Didn't you know he was a notorious gangster?" queried Judge Edelman.

"O, yes!" exclaimed Miss Long. "But he seemed to be such a nice man."

COURT INDORSES PLEA OF KILLER, GRANTS RETRIAL

Judge William J. Lindsay in Criminal court yesterday ordered a new trial for Harry Rubenstein, 52, owner of the Olympic hotel, 1015 N. Clark st., who was found guilty of murder by a jury Dec. 14 for the fatal shooting of Thomas Dean, 26, of 2531 Burling st., in the lobby of Rubenstein's hotel Sept. 3. The jury fixed Rubenstein's penalty at 14 years in prison. Rubenstein pleaded that he shot after Dean assaulted him. "If this was not a case of self-defense, then the law of self-defense might as well be abolished," Judge Lindsay said. The case was returned to the chief justice for assignment for trial.

50 YR. SENTENCE GIVEN MURDERER, 13, IS DEFENDED

Attorney Faints Reading Paper to Prosecutors

Richard [Dickie] Sells, 13, of Kirkwood, Warren county, who is in the Joliet penitentiary serving a 50 year term after being convicted of killing a 78 year old woman Sept. 16, should have been sentenced to 199 years. That opinion was given yesterday to members of the Illinois State's Attorneys association by Henry D. Lewis, Warren county state's attorney, who prosecuted the Sells case.

Lewis, 61, white haired, baldish, and obviously under a strain, stood before the association at its convention in the Morrison hotel and began to read an 11 page statement, which was his answer to critics of his part in Sells' prosecution. Using a courtroom manner, he said he wanted to correct an erroneous impression the public had received that Sells murdered Mrs. Mary A. Johnson because she made a face at him and scolded him.

Slumps in Chair in Faint

As he neared a sentence of his talk, which was capitalized and stated, "It was a brutal, atrocious murder to obtain the price of a picture show," Lewis sat down and asked for a drink of water. His wife, Lucille Lewis, who was present, left the room and he slumped into the chair in a faint.

Dr. L. G. Rees, house physician, was called. "He was overwrought," the physician said, after Lewis was revived. The attorney was removed to his hotel room, where he rested last night.

In his prepared statement, Lewis said Sells had been a problem to authorities and that delinquency proceedings had been filed against him earlier in the year. He said he previously had asked the court to commit Sells to the Illinois Training School for Boys, near St. Charles, but the hearing had been continued until October, with no finding of delinquency, and the murder was committed before the deferred hearing was called.

Stepfather in Navy

Lewis said he believed that if the boy had been taken to the training school and perhaps paroled and placed outside the school, "Aunt Mollie's brutal murder never would have occurred." Mr. Johnson also was known as "Aunt Mollie."

Lewis explained that Sells' father, Richard Whipple, died in 1936 and that his mother later married Lawrence M. Sells, who "was industrious, a good provider, and kind to the children." The stepfather was inducted into the navy in 1944 and Mrs. Sells worked in various war plants. Lewis emphasized that altho Richard was without proper parental supervision, his older brother had no better supervision yet gave no trouble to authorities.

He said he believes Sells never can be rehabilitated, but added that the boy will be eligible for parole when he has served 17 years.

6,386 POLICEMEN ON JOB; 366 MORE THAN LAST YEAR

Chicago has 6,386 policemen, an increase of 366 over Dec. 31, 1944, James E. McSweeney, police department secretary, said yesterday.

Returning service men and temporary appointments to strengthen the department were responsible for the increase, Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police said.

Increases totaled 200 recruited by the civil service commission, 16 reinstatements, 387 returning service men, and 134 temporary appointments. This number was reduced by 55 retirements, 160 resignations with pension, 55 resignations without pension, 12 dismissed for cause, 48 deaths, and 41 placed on disability rolls.

HIT-RUN DRIVER CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of manslaughter in the death of John Lazarz, 40, of 1518 Superior st., who was killed by the automobile of a hit and run driver Dec. 5 at Diversey and Kostner avs. Police are seeking the driver.

Robert E. Bickham, 63, of 1113 Hickory st., Waukegan, a foreman in the shipping department of the American Steel and Wire company, died at his home, presumably of injuries suffered in an automobile accident last June.

AUTO STOLEN ON SOUTH SIDE

LIMITED STRUCK BY FRATE; 3 DIE; SAILORS INJURED

Lula, Ga., Dec. 19 (AP)—Two sailors and a locomotive engineer were killed today in the crash of a frate train into the rear end of the Piedmont Limited, Southern Railway passenger train, in snow and ice covered terrain near White Sulphur, Ga.

Eight persons, including five sailors, were taken to a Gainesville hospital. A number of less seriously injured, many of them sailors, were given first aid at the wreck scene, about 65 miles northeast of Atlanta.

Among the sailors treated at the Gainesville hospital were Phillip A. Leekley, Wilmette, Ill., who suffered a broken leg, and Edwin M. Rams of Chicago, who was bruised.

Northern Teachers Graduate

Edwin M. Rams, 23, of 3555 Fullerton av., seaman first class, entered the navy 18 months ago after his graduation from Northern Teachers' college at De Kalb, Ill. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rams.

Phillip A. Leekley, 18, of 631 Lake st., Wilmette, seaman first class, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. Leekley. He entered the navy two years ago after his graduation from New Trier Township High school. He formerly was employed in the Tribune advertising department.

6 FLYERS BACK; HELD MONTH BY CHINESE REDS

TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 19 (AP)—Bearded but not the worse for their 38 day ordeal, six United States marine flyers returned here safely today after being in Chinese communist hands in a village 90 miles south of Peiping. Among them was Pfc. Jack Leon Poage, Evansville, Ind.

The flyers became lost in bad weather between Peiping and Tientsin in a torpedo bomber Nov. 10 and crash-landed near the village of Hochin. The men said Communists and bandits looted them of personal effects and menaced them frequently with guns. When they demanded release, communist officers replied the affair was "a political problem" which had to be handled thru channels, the flyers said.

Finally, however, after escaping and being recaptured by Communists, the flyers were taken within seven miles of central government troop lines, where a marine captain and another officer met them and escorted them to Tientsin.

15 Draw Fines Up to $100 on Refuse Law Violations

Fines ranging from $5 to $100 were assessed against 15 persons charged with violating refuse disposal ordinances yesterday by Judge Leon Edelman in Chicago av. police court. Motions to vacate the fines were set for Dec. 28 and Jan. 4, and the judge indicated that the defendants would be dismissed at that time if no further violations were noted in the meantime. Cases against 44 other defendants were dismissed.

YOUR FRIENDS, MARY AND OTTO MAY.

NICKELSON—Andrew J. Nickelson, passed away three years ago today, Dec. 20, 1942
A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps his memory ever dear.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf.
LOVING WIFE, NORA.

MORGAN—In loving memory of my sons, Bud and Ted, and sister, Elsie, and brothers, Harry and Al, nephews, Oliver and Orville, who passed away fourteen years ago.
God be with you 'til we meet again.
Miss you so. LONESOME MOM.

In Memoriam

NOVELLO—Pvt. Joseph J. Novello, who was killed in action Dec. 20, 1944, on Leyte, Philippines.
"We think of you always, Joey,
We miss your kind and smiling face;
Every day brings back memories,
Every memory brings our tears;
Deep within our hearts we cherish
Thoughts of one we love so dear."

POLLACK—Kenneth P. Pollack. Your birthday, Kenneth. You would have been 18 years old today.
To the infinite garden of heaven,
To the land where the angels dwell,
We are sending our birthday greetings
To you whom we love so well;
You are spending this birthday without us
In a land that is free from care;
So our token of love and remembrance
Is sent to you through prayer.
MOTHER, DAD AND BROTHER.

HUSBAND AND SONS.

TOBEY—Ensign William Thomas Tobey, U. S. N. R. In loving memory on the 22d birthday of our son and brother, who crashed at Pensacola, Fla., May 19, 1944.
They say there's a star up in heaven
For every soul that has left this earth;
That the measure its brightness has given
Is the measure of that one's worth.
So when stars on your birthday are gleaming,
We know dear just what we will do;
We'll look where the brightest one is shining
And know in our hearts it is you.
CARYLE, BOBBIE, AND MOM.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen to Be Hostess at Family Reunion

BY JUDITH CASS

ONE of the most festive Christmas day gatherings in Chicago will be the large family luncheon at which Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen will be hostess. With several of her grandchildren at home for the first time following long years of service, the reunion in Mrs. Bowen's Astor st. residence will be an especially happy one.

Three grandsons Mrs. Bowen just has welcomed back to Chicago from service in various parts of the globe are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. McCormick Blair—Lt. Comdr. Edward McCormick Blair, Lt. Comdr. Bowen Blair, and Capt. Blair Jr. of the army. All are being released. Comdr. Edward Blair's wife and sons have been living with the Blairs while he was absent, and they will stay on at the family residence until they can find an apartment or house of their own.

Also present at the family gathering will be a granddaughter of Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. Jefferson D. Currier, and Capt. Currier, who just has been released from the army. They have come back to Chicago's snow and cold from a lazy few weeks at Castle Hot Springs, Ariz., where they spent Capt. Currier's terminal leave at the attractive Three Canyon ranch, which is owned by Mrs. Currier's mother, Mrs. Bowen Jr.

The Curriers are in Lake Forest with the junior Bowens. Mrs. Bowen Jr.'s sister, Mrs. Charles D. Burney of England, who is in Chicago on her first visit since before the war, also will be in the Christmas day gathering. Mrs. Bowen Jr. plans to leave for her ranch immediately after Christmas. Peter B. Phelps, who is at home for the holidays from the Fountain Valley school, and his mother, Mrs. Louise deKoven Phelps, daughter of Mrs. Bowen Sr., also will be among the Christmas guests, but Mrs. Phelps' other son, Hubbard Phelps, and his wife are unable to come from New York City.

Other Gatherings

The Ernst von Ammons' Winnetka home will be the scene of another Christmas family reunion, for their son, Lt. Comdr. Philip von Ammon is back from Tokyo and Okinawa and on terminal leave, and his brother, Lt. Carl von Ammon, and his wife and daughter will be here from Washington, D. C., for the holidays.

Dr. and Mrs. Lowell D. Snorf will hold open house at home in Wilmette Saturday for their son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs Snorf Jr., and their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Eliot E. Foltz. Capt. Snorf just has returned from the European theater, where he served for 15 months. Dr. Foltz served in the army air forces at Fort Worth, Tex. Both young men have been discharged and with their wives are house hunting here.

Here and There

Mr. and Mrs. Neville Wright Pilling have been here for several days paying their first visit to Mr. Pilling's parents, the Neville Pillings of Evanston, since the young couple's marriage last September. Young Mr. Pilling will leave tonight to return to Texas, where he is stationed as a hospital corpsman with the navy. His bride, the former Estelle Marie McCann, will stay on until Christmas eve, returning then to Memphis, Tenn., to spend Christmas with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Ezelle McCann, and to resume her studies at Memphis State college.

Following a visit here with the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Loudell of Lake Shore dr., Ensign and Mrs. Ernst Lemei, who were married Nov. 28 in Los Angeles, Cal., will leave today or tomorrow to return to that city. Mrs. Lobdell went west for the marriage of her granddaughter, the former Nancy Gardner.

Congratulations on the birth of a daughter Dec. 14 in New York City are being sent east to Mr. and Mrs. John H. Lancaster [Susanne Landis]. The baby, who has been named Kathleen, is a granddaughter of Mrs. Marion K. Landis of Evanston, Col. Reed G. Landis of Warrensburg, Mo., and Dr. and Mrs. H. Carrington Lancaster of Baltimore, Md.

On the Calendar

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Harvey and the junior Harveys have planned a gay evening for 25 young friends of Debutantes Ellen Ryerson and Cynthia Wirtz tonight. The group will have dinner in the Tavern club before going on to see Olsen and Johnson's "Laffing Room Only." About 30 young women have been invited to a luncheon which Mrs. Malcolm J. Boyle will give today in her Lake Shore dr. apartment for another of the season's buds, Miss Elizabeth Ann Stoll.

Miss Joan Woodside, who arrives today from Bryn Mawr college, will go to Milwaukee tomorrow to attend the debut of her classmate, Miss Olive Van Dyke, for whom she is to be an assistant. Miss Woodside's brother, Bill, arrives today from his first year at Phillips academy.

The Illinois Opera Guild Juniors will give their annual Christmas party in the music room at the Great Lakes hospital today for 100 ambulatory patients there. Candy canes, popcorn balls, gingerbread men, red tarleton stockings, and the appearance of Santa Claus [Miss Mary Mertes in reality] will add to the Christmas flavor. Mrs. William Bangs III. and Miss Doralee Clowes will lead the Christmas carols.

This year's debutantes and provisional members of the group will be invited to a tea which the Juniors will give Jan. 3 in the Casino club. The group's senior adviser, Mrs. William H. Spurgeon, will receive with Miss Mary Jane Brummel, president of the Juniors and other officers.

THE QUESTION

Do you like the custom of sending Christmas cards or do you consider it an annoying duty?

WHERE ASKED

Carl Fischer Music store, 306 S. Wabash av.

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. Jean Simpson, sales promotion, Stevens hotel—The custom of sending Christmas cards appeals to me very much because it keeps me in touch with every one who means something to me. It's a lot of work and requires time, but when the cards come rolling in from friends it makes one feel it was time well spent.

Alice J. Lawrosky, voice student, 1459 N. Halsted st.—To me it's not a duty at all. I like to send Christmas cards. That's the time of year when I count my friends and realize how much they all mean to me. There are some persons who would get lost in the shuffle if I didn't hear from them at Christmas.

Mrs. Fay Mathers, saleslady, 5114 Harper av.—I like the idea. I get in touch with many persons at that time and tho I may not see them often I think it's nice to keep in contact with them. If I didn't keep track of my friends I may be living in their neighborhood some day and not even know it.

Nancy Osborn, musician, 4364 Lake Park av.—If it came to a vote, I'd say most persons think it's a duty—but a rather pleasant one. I think I send more cards than I ordinarily would if it weren't such a custom. Each year I hear from persons that I otherwise would forget. I like getting Christmas cards.

Louie Honig, music teacher, 106 S. Lotus av.—Sending Christmas cards to friends shows that you haven't forgotten them. I send a card to every one that I can think of during the Christmas season. When I receive a card it makes me feel that somebody thought enough of me to send their season's greetings. I like the idea.

Fred Lotz, clerk, 7819 Cressett dr., Elmwood Park—It isn't a duty to me but a pleasant custom to wish friends a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. It isn't the greeting or the beautiful card that appeals most to me because I don't always look at the cards. It's the name of the sender and the friendship that I like.

Stage Notes

Ballet Theater has added a single performance of the grand pas de deux from the Minkus-Petipa "Don Quixote" to the holiday repertory at the Civic Opera house. It will be danced Sunday evening, Dec. 30, by Alicia Alonso and John Kriza. . . . Ralph Forbes is out of Katharine Cornell's "Antigone the Tyrant," now in rehearsal, and may be replaced by Raymond Edward Johnson, who created the role of Jefferson in "The Patriots" . . . Guy Kibbee quit the cast of "A Joy Forever" and will appear in something new called "By Appointment Only."

Chicago Santa Puts Yanks at Top of His List

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

Chicago knows how to play Santa Claus to men and women of the army and navy. During the holidays, the city again will extend the hospitality which has made it famous thruout the nation as "a service man's town."

The city's service men centers will be open all night Christmas eve and all day Christmas. Canteen service and entertainment will continue until dawn. There will be a present for every soldier and sailor and a trading post where inappropriate gifts can be exchanged. Fifty thousand turkey dinners will be served from 11 a. m. to midnight Christmas day.

One hundred long distance calls will be given away as prizes in the games carnival in all centers and 2,000 tickets to Sonja Henie's ice revue in Chicago Stadium will be distributed. The centers will be trimmed in elaborate Christmas decorations with 40 fully trimmed evergreens. There will be a Christmas ball.

Even the service man or woman traveling by train Christmas day will not be forgotten. Volunteer canteen and motor corps women of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross will meet all special trains and will distribute coffee, sandwiches, doughnuts, candy, and cigarets. The chapter must be notified of the arrival of the trains by commanding officers.

"Since 1,000 railroad coaches have been turned over to the military services, we expect many more calls this holiday," Mrs. Darrow B. Fulton of the organization's special services administration said yesterday. "Travel will be extremely heavy."

The Red Cross canteen at the airport, 6030 S. Central av., also will remain open to serve hot coffee to airmen on Christmas.

Traveling service personnel also will be entertained with Christmas carols in the Union station today thru Monday. The choral clubs of the Milwaukee road and the Burlington route will alternate in singing old fashioned hymns. Each club has more than 50 men and women. Robert Rhodes will entertain daily at the electric organ in the station.

The De Paul University Glee club yesterday entertained with Christmas carols at the Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged, Fullerton and Sheffield avs. An elaborate program of music has been planned by Logan Square residents for Christmas eve. The Triangle Minstrels will celebrate the community's first Victory Christmas carol show in Monument square, at Milwaukee and Kedzie avs.

Carols also are being sung daily over the loud speaker system on State st. and yesterday proved an appropriate accompaniment to Santa Claus' Victory bond tour. The State st. Santa Claus showed how a Victory E bond fits well in a Christmas stocking by giving away three of the bonds.

Santa Claus was generous to 700 needy children in the 1st ward yesterday. Each child received a complete wardrobe under the direction of the Most Rev. William D. O'Brien, Catholic auxiliary bishop of Chicago, and Fred M. Morelli, Democratic committeeman. In addition, the children were given a party at 100 W. 18th st.

Blind Service Group Will Give Party for 500 Sightless Tonight

More than 600 blind and near blind persons of Chicago and their families will gather at 8 o'clock tonight in the 5th floor auditorium at 185 N. Wabash av. for the annual Christmas party sponsored by the Blind Service association. Professional entertainers will present a gala program, and Santa Claus will be on hand to distribute toys and candy to the children. Gift boxes of toilet articles and handkerchiefs will be distributed to the blind girls; to the men will go boxes of shaving articles and comb and brush sets, and each blind woman will receive a shopping bag filled with groceries. Mrs. Nathan Goldblatt is chairman, and Gottfried D. Bernstein, co-chairman for the party.

A Charming White Dance Dress for the Sub-Deb

A crisp white dance frock to make any sub-deb look like the shiny white angel atop the Christmas tree. The fitted basque bodice is topped with a band of long uncurled white ostrich feathers. Tucked in the hair is a lovely coral and white camellia to match the two held in the fingers. The dance dress is available in a Chicago shop. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

Party Gowns for Year's End Fetes Exciting

BY REA SEEGER

The most exciting dance dresses for the subdebs and debs are those designed for the Christmas and New Year's parties. With emphasis on youth and romance, they're dresses of romantic eye-appeal and charm. Way cut in front of the list of favorites come the snow white models. These are picture book lovely white nets, swishing over white taffeta underskirts or slips, cut with the tiniest of fitted bodices and hand-span waistlines, and fashioned with lots of frou frou ruffles, feathers, and ribbon. Any one of them would make a perfect gift.

Yards of filmy net, some coarse, some extremely fine of texture, are used to make the extremely wide, floor-length skirts which are gathered to define the smallest of waistlines. Off the shoulder necklines, absurdly tiny puffed sleeves, and basque bodices, the kind that fit smoothly well down over the hips are details that add up to tell-tale glamor for the dancing youngsters. When drifts of white ostrich feathers are added, in bands or in curls sewed in an all-over design over skirt and bodice, the essence of romantic dance fashions is achieved.

More sophisticated dance dresses combine snow white net with sleek fitted bodices of black taffeta or black velvet. Some have garland effects of roses and leaves appliqued to the side of the skirt. Crisp red taffetas were in and around but they vanish almost while you look; also some picturesque gowns of deep sapphire blue faillé with the bodice laced down the back. Some of the exciting new silhouettes are here, too, the newest gowns with appreciably wider hiplines, the first farthingale effects, made with stiffening under the sides a definite hint of more that is to come, of that newer and wider hip silhouette.

Thru the Looking Glass

At this stage of your Christmas excitement it's entirely likely that you wake in the middle of the night thinking of the little remembrances you've forgotten—the small present for the girl who does your hair, for instance, or the neighbor who's been awfully good about taking in packages or lending a cup of sugar now and then.

We didn't know any better way to solve the problem of the small inexpensive gift than to stop at the toiletries counter and wind up the business right there. Here are some ideas:

Bath powder mitts. These, as you probably know, are usually of terry cloth, sometimes with taffeta backing. They're filled with scented, feathery body powder that filters thru when the mitt, slipped over one hand, is patted gently against the flesh. You can find expensive ones if you insist, but you'll find all sorts of inexpensive ones, in pretty colors and pretty boxes, that make fine feminine expressions of thoughtfulness.

And don't forget soaps. The woman doesn't live who isn't enamored of a cake of toilet soap, or two or three, if the creamy texture, the fragrance, and even the color are exciting. You'll find soaps everywhere, in charming designs and colors, and here again is an answer to your small-gift problem.

Then there are hand preparations—creams or lotions. Don't think these won't be welcome. All women are vain of their hands; a hand beautifier is practical and flattering. And there are loads of them to be found.

Santa Claus' Past Exposed; He's Asiatic

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Christmas is comin', sure—but what do you really know about this holiday and its origin? What do you know about Santa Claus? He comes from the north pole, you say. Could be, but if so he uses the great circle route, because Santa is really from Asia. Myra, near the Bosporus in Asia Minor, was his home town.

This fact, with many other little known items bearing on the evolution of the observance of Christmas today, was brought out last evening on the Human Adventure program, broadcast by W-G-N with the cooperation of the University of Chicago.

As youngsters we were taught that Santa was introduced to America by Dutch colonists in the form of San Nicolaas, or St. Nicholas. Claus was merely an abbreviation of the latter. But where did they get him?

St. Nicholas is the patron saint of Russia, the program brought out. Nicholas, the bishop of Myra, died in 343 A. D. in Constantinople. He came to be the patron saint of boys and bankers, marines, pawn brokers, maidens, and scholars . . . and, o, yes, thieves. There is also a legend of his giving presents. In the year of 1087 the people of Bari, Italy, recovered his bones from the Saracens [Moslems] and he is buried in that city to this day.

It wasn't until the middle of the fourth century that Dec. 25 was formally set aside by the church at Rome for the observance of the birth of Jesus. The rites then were austere and purely spiritual.

But Christmas as we know it in America is a composite festival—the gift of many lands and many peoples. Two thousand years ago, on Dec. 17, Rome marked the feast of Saturn by closing schools and businessess, decking public places with flowers, and lighting tapers before Roman houses. It was a time of good cheer, good will, and peace.

The Kalends—from which our word calendar comes—starting Jan. 15 marked the beginning of a three day Roman holiday when good wishes and gifts were exchanged. From northern lands came the winter Yule festival with sacrifices to pagan gods and feasting. Also the mistletoe.

The ancient Angles began their year with Dec. 25, called Mother's night, with ceremony and wassail. We are indebted to Russia for bells and reindeer and to Germany for the Christmas tree.

Dear Diary BY BECKY

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Multiple Santa

One of our white collar girl contributors, M. M. Bradford, took a neighbor's child downtown, then came home and penned the following explanation, "For a very little girl who has just seen her 20th Santa Claus":

He comes into town
Like a vagabond king,
With a pack on his back
And sleighbells that ring.
His beard is all hoary
And covered with snow,
And down 'round the toyshops
You'll find him, I know.
He trains the tin soldiers
In marches and drills,
He gives all the dollies
Their vitamin pills.
He feeds the toy animals
Three times a day,
A very choice mixture
Of candy and hay.
He watches the sleds
Lest the bad circus clown
Wax all of the stairs
And go bob-sledding down.

So, you see, before Christmas—
If Santa gets thru—
He needs all his helpers:
There's SO much to do!

The Battle of the Nylons

The worst incident in our family lately happened to my cousin, Gwen. She was shopping when unexpectedly a floorman began ushering her over to one side saying: "Let's not block the aisle; please stand in a straight line." She looked and to her amazement found she had been pushed into fourth place in a long line before a counter where nylons were being sold. But, she didn't have enough money with her, so she stepped out of line—and didn't even telephone me the big news. That I shall always remember.

VERA POLSGROVE

Something That Adds Up

All year 'round people who live in apartments and hotels pay for service from the doorman, waitress, etc. But who remembers to tip the desk clerk or switchboard operator? Yet she is the one who reports complaints to the maintenance man, electrician, housekeeper, or manager . . . calls the guests in the morning, takes messages, sorts mail, sends telegrams, and listens to all kinds of troubles.

Last year I received 15 bottles of perfume, 20 boxes of candy, numerous packages of cigarets, and other such gifts. This year it certainly would make this operator happy to receive something she can add up—and that is cash!

Latest Sherlock Is Adequate as Movie Mystery

By Mae Tinée

Nigel Bruce's Dr. Watson is rapidly becoming one of my favorite movie characters. He huffs and puffs around in the wake of the icy Sherlock Holmes and brings humor and warmth to their series of mysteries. Not that Mr. Rathbone isn't excellent as the all-knowing detective; it's just that you can't help but like the old doctor better.

"Pursuit to Algiers" is rather far-fetched and concerns the perilous voyage of the heir to the throne of some nameless country. He's on his way home because his papa has been assassinated, and Holmes and company go along to see that the same thing doesn't happen to the younger generation. It's quite a trip, with knives flying thru the air, time bombs, and a mysterious young lady, in whom, by the way, Dr. Watson shows a rather sheepish interest, but no one ever gets the best of the omniscient Mr. Holmes.

Just Another Movie

"GEORGE WHITE'S SCANDALS"

Produced by R. K. O.-Radio, directed by Felix E. Feist, featuring Joan Davis, Jack Haley, Philip Terry, Martha Holliday, Ethel Smith, Margaret Hamilton, Glenn Tryon, Bettejane Greer, Audrey Young, Rose Murphy, Fritz Feld, Beverly Wills, and Gene Krupa and his band. Also presented at the Palace.

Some people may like seeing Joan Davis clown in her usual manner, and jive addicts may find Mr. Krupa's frenzied assaults on the drums interesting after a fashion—but all the remainder of "George White's Scandals" is just another movie, and a pretty silly one at that. It's one of those show business stories, with a titled English girl getting into the act by mistake. Her romance with the stage manager becomes very involved, but love and a mama who used to be in the Scandals conquer all. You won't miss a thing if you skip it.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 19—Clark Gable's next, after "Lucky Baldwin," will be "Deep in My Heart." Lana Turner and Mickey Rooney will share in the starring roles. . . . The Gallup poll for 1945 gives Metro seven pictures out of the first 10 chosen for popular appeal. They were: "Anchors Aweigh," "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Son of Lassie," "Valley of Decision," "Thrill of a Romance," and "National Velvet." Warners got off with two: "God Is My Co-Pilot" and "Hollywood Canteen." And Columbia placed with "Song to Remember." The year's two big hits—"Bells of St. Mary's" and "Lost Week-End"—weren't released in time for the voting. Reflecting on the profits rolling in on "Week-End," Billy Wilder said to his sidekick, Charley Brackett, "That's what I like about the souse!" . . . George Brent gets the lead in Universal's "Lessons in Love." The story of a returned war correspondent, it'll be produced by Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano. Bill Seiter will direct. Incidentally that flame between Brent and Janet Michaels may glow into marriage, but I doubt it. . . . Ben Hecht has been signed by Jack Chertok to do the script for "Dishonored Lady," which will be Hedy Lamarr's second independent production under the Hunt Stromberg banner.

Those Bells Are Ringing Again

Leo McCarey, who always has had a secret yen for composing, isn't going to let Lionel Barrymore get ahead of him. He'll direct his own symphonic composition on the Kay Kyser show Dec. 26. Kay also has snared Jess Cravath and Frank Thomas, U. S. C. and Alabama football coaches, for guest appearances. Lucy Ann, who sang here first on my Showcase and became one of the youngest "town criers," will be retained as a regular feature of the college of musical knowledge. I knew you'd make the big time, Lucy. . . . George Raft stayed over in New Haven to see Gertie Lawrence open in "Pygmalion." I've just learned that that's been a long time crush. George hasn't yet decided on the title for "Congresswoman," but it's a cinch that when it hits the marquees it'll be more male than female. . . . Speaking of titles, did you know that "The State of the Union" was originally called "I'd Rather Be Left"? . . . You can't take bets, but personally I don't believe Rita Hayworth and Vic Mature will get together. Story goes that Orson was not unhappy over his marital crackup. Responsibility irks him. He leaps without looking—then regrets.

A Party for the Small Fry

The kiddies' party in the Hollywood bowl Saturday evening promises to be the beginning of an annual entertainment for our young fry. Only admission required is a toy wrapped carefully for some child not lucky enough to be there. So hold your hats, parents, and start getting in line. . . . Ed Gardner is throwing a tennis and elbow-bending party for Tex McCrary and Jinx Falkenburg. Understand Ed's signed Norman Foster to direct "Murder in Duffy's Tavern." Norman's here with his pretty wife, Sally. They return to Mexico after the holidays to do another picture, but will be back here in April to start "Murder." . . . The cast and crew of "Fiesta" won't be home for Christmas, but Esther Williams and Dick Thorpe are tossing a real Hollywood party for them somewhere way south of the border.

GIs Are Merry in Paris—But Ah, Chicago!

BY ANNE BRUYERE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 18—Joyful Illinois Yanks in Paris today revealed their Christmas wishes and agreed that the holiday would be much merrier than last year's, which many of them spent in foxholes in the Battle of the Bulge.

Privates Anthony G. Balun, 4616 S. Avers st., and C. Naderski, 4518 N. Hazel av., Chicago, wished their home city lots of snow for a white Christmas. Privates Edmund C. Rapacz, 4434 N. Mulligan av., and Morris Richman, 4825 N. Sawyer av., said they had hoped to be able to cheer in the New Year at State and Madison sts.

"This certainly is going to be a merry Christmas for us GIs," Richman said. "We have been told that we are going to get all the cognac and champagne we can drink free of charge. We are going to throw parties for thousands of French war orphans. We have received wonderful presents from home and plenty of mail. What a change from last year, when we got nothing but snow and cold 'C' rations and a battle. My Christmas wish is to join my buddies of the 10th infantry division, in a New Year's celebration in Chicago."

Chicagoland GIs alone have given 5,000 candy bars and 100,000 francs [$2,000] since Dec. 1. Among them are Tech. 5th Grade Edward Sowa, Joliet; Pvt. Bruno L. Paciorek, 2233 N. Leavitt st., a military policeman, and Pvt. James Greenburg, 3846 W. Congress st., both of Chicago.

"Most of my lucky pals who are already home would not recognize England without buzz bombs and Paris minus a blackout," he said. "We see comparatively few GIs and jeeps around now. My Christmas wish is to return to 'Chi,' which always will be the place for me."

Lt. Ronald R. McVay, Fort Wayne, Ind., got his wish and will start home tonight by plane. Pvt. Joseph A. Bobber, 4533 S. Marshfield av., Chicago, will sail this week-end.

Pvt. Jack Lewisohn, 620 Aldine av., Chicago, wished for a diplomatic career in United States service. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, where he studied French, Russian, Spanish, Italian and Portuguese, he desires to be a cryptographer in the American embassy in Paris.

Press Women's Party Will Benefit Veterans

Instead of the usual exchange of new gifts, members of the Illinois Woman's Press association have decided to give each other "white elephants" at the club's Christmas party, set for 8 p. m. tomorrow in the Cordon club. The money saved will go into a fund for gift subscriptions of home town newspapers for veterans confined to the Vaughan, Gardiner, and Hines Memorial hospitals. Tomorrow night's program, arranged by Hilda Butler Farr, will include a group of dramatic monologs by Glenn Bruce, the reading of original verse by several members, special music, and carols.

New Organization Formed for Women War Veterans

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Organization of the Legion of Women Veterans, composed of former women members of the military forces, was announced today by Mrs. Patricia M. Deuse, former marine sergeant, the temporary national commander. She said 300,000 women who served with the army, navy, coast guard, and marines are potential members.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Sugarless Raisin Meringue Pie
[One 9-inch pie]

1 cup raisins
1 cup water
6 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup cold water
½ cup molasses
1 cup water
2 egg yolks
1 egg
1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 egg whites
1 9-inch baked pie shell

Cook raisins in 1 cup boiling water about 2 minutes; drain, reserve liquid. Mix cornstarch, salt, and cold water in top of double boiler; add molasses, 1 cup water, and liquid from raisins. Cook over direct heat and stir until thick. Place over hot water and cook, covered, 10 minutes. Beat egg yolks and whole egg and stir into molasses mixture; cook, stirring constantly, about 2 minutes. Add raisins, lemon rind, and juice. Cool. Pour into baked pie shell. Gradually beat corn sirup into stiffly beaten whites and top pie. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 15 minutes.

Children Can Make Gifts at Last Minute

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If your children haven't even started making the gifts they are going to give to their best loved in the family, and if you are at sea, here are some suggestions; there is not space to give detailed directions:

There still are some attractive gift wrapping papers which can be used in these three ways:

Next to work with comes fancy oil cloth, easy for children to handle and really useful in various forms.

A small child can make a cut-out breakfast set of place dollies from oil cloth. You draw the lines on the back. Older children can make excellent traveling kits with little pockets.

Next we find a treasure house for Christmas gifts in the family scrap bag. If your scrap bag won't yield silk, chintz, gingham, and calico you will have to buy small quantities, because cloth of various kinds can be made into bags of all sorts. Even the littlest ones can make them, simply and crudely.

Bags of various sizes, which draw up easily, have many uses if given by a child to a housewifely mother or aunt. Who doesn't welcome a new clothes pin bag, for instance.

More elaborate bags can be lined, embroidered, or made of richer materials for handkerchiefs, undies, or other personal effects, by teen-age girls.

This list only "scratches the surface," but you can help your child decide on what to make by knowing his manual skill and by thinking up things that Uncle Harry, Aunt Sue, Grandma, or Daddy would love.

Transfer Design

Boy's Breach of Etiquet Is Not Serious

BY SHEILA DALY
[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"This may seem like a very insignificant bit of trouble, but so help me, it bothers me! How can a gal put a fellow friend in the know when he insists on walking on the inside when they're parading down the street together. This is important to a gal, even tho it doesn't seem so to most of the fellows I know."

on the SOLID side

Having a fellow on the outside when walking with a gal is supposed to protect the gal from the dangers of the street. Supposedly, your young friend is there to stop a runaway horse or provide a barrier between you and a curb-leaping bus. But how many of your lithe young friends are Supermen enough for that? It's just a formality but if you'd be happier on the inside, just wander toward a store window or stop to look at a street sign and when you start walking again, arrange things so that you're on the inside. Or suggest crossing the street and the reversal will be automatic. But if you're with a boy whom you like and are having fun with him, neither of you will notice who's walking where, and what's more, neither of you will care!

"What kind of super lines do some gals hand out to fellows that are swallowed hook, line, and sinker? I know gals who aren't nearly as attractive as I am and who don't dress as well, yet they're strictly all right with the smoothest fellows. What goes on?"

Here we go again! The ability to make lively and interesting conversation when talking to a boy is not "a line." Often when a dateless gal sees another gal making with the chatter with junior-sized Robert Walkers, she turns green around the edges and decides that all popular girls have "lines." But it isn't so at all—it just isn't so! It takes an honest interest in people, a knowledge of what's going on in world events, sports, and school activities, and a lively stock of anecdotes to make a good conversationalist. So, instead of turning on the mournful sighs and jealous eyes, brush up on your own conversation pieces, honeychile—it's you who is handing yourself a line!

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
6 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

As neat a case of sticking your hand in some one's pocket as has ever come to my attention is recorded in today's anecdote. It was gleaned from South's "good time book" and is a souvenir of which he may well be proud. His restraint during the auction was commendable and his choice of opening leads was a gem.

The bidding by East and West left nothing to be desired. The exchange of information was very accurate and the final slam contract was as sound as it was ill fated. East naturally opened with one spade and West responded with two clubs. The other five card major was then shown and West having a good opening bid himself jumped to game in hearts. This was good news to East, whose fears concerning the trump suit were somewhat allayed. He invited the slam by bidding five clubs and West showed that he, too, was interested in big things by showing the ace of diamonds. This in connection with West's previous strong bidding persuaded East that his partner held at least one of the high honors in hearts and he felt the gamble for the slam was a good one, which indeed it was.

A child of impulses, occupying the South seat, would have doubled the contract on the belief that the declarer must hold the king of trumps, but South had his ear tuned to West's vigorous bidding, particularly the jump to four hearts, and felt that it was not at all unlikely that the dummy would show up with the king of that suit. After all, jack high suits are bid very freely these days. Now for the opening lead. The defense could hardly hope for any tricks in the side suits, because dummy must hold a fairly good club suit on which discards will be obtained. South barged forth with the ace of hearts. Everybody followed and the deuce of hearts came next. Declarer came up with the king and school was out.

South's lead risked nothing. Had the dummy shown up minus the king of hearts, South would carefully place the rest of his trumps in his vest pocket, and select a card at random for his next lead, waiting for the inevitable queen of trumps. But when the king appeared in dummy strategy called for the continuation of the suit because declarer would probably not play him for both the ace and the queen.

Had declarer been left to his own devices, he would no doubt have made the proper percentage play, which is to finesse the jack, with the hope that it would drive out the ace.

An Easy Christmas Supper

Christmas dinner is a family affair and rightly so, for on this great day the children should be the center of attraction. But, once the children are tucked in bed, it's grand to have our friends in for the evening and a late supper. Here's a grand dish to serve around midnight.

Dice 1 green pepper and cook slowly for 5 minutes in
6 tbsp. CERTIFIED MARGARINE or CLEAR BROOK BUTTER
Add 6 tbsp. flour and blend well
Add 1½ cups turkey stock and 1½ cups top milk, gradually, stirring constantly until thickened.
Add ½ cup pimiento strips
(add) 3 cups cooked, diced CERTIFIED TURKEY
1 can mushrooms
Stir a little of the hot mixture into 2 CLEAR BROOK EGG YOLKS, slightly beaten. Return to remaining hot mixture and cook over low heat about 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Serves 6.

Clip Recipe Here

Center of Attraction

Serve the turkey a la king in a nest of shoestring potatoes and garnish with pastry turkeys for a bit of fun. Make markings on tail and feet with tines of fork.

Appropriate accompaniments to the main dish are a tossed salad, cranberry saube and hot orange rolls.

Advance Preparations Pay

French fry the potatoes in Wilson's Bake-Rite at 390° F. the day before. Pop into a hot oven, 425° F., for about 5 minutes just before serving.

You can make the refrigerator roll dough several days ahead. About four hours before serving, take out of refrigerator and let it warm up. When doubled in bulk, roll to a fourth inch thickness, spread with orange filling, roll like a jelly roll, cut in inch slices and place in a shallow, greased baking pan. Let rise and bake at 375° F. for 25 to 30 minutes. Served with plenty of Clear Brook Butter or Certified Margarine, these rolls make a quick hit with everybody.

Orange Filling

3½ tbsp. cornstarch
½ cup water
½ cup orange juice
2 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tsp. grated orange rind

Mix ingredients in order given, bring to a boil and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Cool and use as directed above. Enough for two dozen rolls.

Worth Thinking About

A delicious spread for crackers is made by mixing 1 tsp. grated onion, 1 tsp. Wilson's B-V and 1 cup cottage cheese. Good for sandwiches, too.

Sincerely,
George Rector

BLACKHAWKS BATTLE CANADIENS TO 4-4 TIE

JUZWIK, HOPP SIGN TO PLAY IN ALL-AMERICA

Buffalo Gets Pair of N. F. L. Stars

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 19 [Special]—Sam Cordovano and James Breuil co-owners of the Buffalo team of the All-America conference, today announced the signing of Steve Juzwik and Harry [Hippety] Hopp, regular backs on the celebrated Fleet City Bluejackets eleven of California. Both players expect to be discharged from the navy long before the Buffalo team reports for practice next August.

Both Juzwik and Hopp were under contract to teams in the National Football league prior to their enlistment in the navy. Juzwik belonged to the Washington Redskins and Hopp to the Detroit Lions.

Reports 30 Players Signed

Acquisition of Hopp and Juzwik gives Buffalo three widely known back field players. Paul Governali, former passing ace of Columbia university who this year sparked the El Toro Marines thru a brilliant season, was the first big name athlete to sign a Buffalo contract. Cordovano, who will coach the Buffalo eleven, said he has signed more than 30 players. The team will operate in Buffalo's Municipal stadium.

Juzwik became nationally prominent on the gridiron at Notre Dame and Hopp at Nebraska. Hopp reported to the Detroit Lions after his graduation from Nebraska in 1940 and was regarded as one of the best all around backs the Detroit team has had since the days of Whizzer White.

Remember Harry's Run

Hopp will not be a stranger to Buffalo football fans when he appears in the uniform of the city's All-America club next fall. Many of them will recall the afternoon of Oct. 17, 1943, when the former Cornhusker scored the touchdown which gave the Lions a 7 to 0 triumph over the Chicago Cardinals in an exhibition game in this city. In the third period Hopp took a short screened pass from Frank Sinkwich and ran 70 yards for the score.

Cordovano rates Hopp as one of the greatest defensive backs in professional football and also expects his blocking will be valuable in getting Governali, Juzwik, and other backs into the clear.

Runs 84 Yards for All-Stars

Juzwik, a product of Chicago's De Paul academy, became known as a game-breaker back at Notre Dame. His great running and forward pass catching were largely responsible for the success of the Irish in completing their 1941 schedule undefeated. That was Juzwik's senior year.

Juzwik was a starting back in the 1942 All-Star game at Soldiers' field, Chicago, where he electrified 90,000 fans with an 84 yard return of a punt against the Chicago Bears.

Other players under contract with Buffalo include Darrell Palmer of Texas Christian and Al Klug of Marquette, tackles; John Kelleher of Columbia, end, and Frank Gnup of Manhattan, a back.

ONE OF LIONS' BEST

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 19 [Special]—Announcement that the Buffalo team of the All-America conference had signed Harry [Hippety] Hopp

Petritz Named Publicity Chief of All-America

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Lt. Joe Petritz, former sports publicity director for the University of Notre Dame, has been named public relations director of the All-America Football conference, President Jim Crowley said today. Crowley said Petriz, who held the Notre Dame position 14 years, is due for release from the navy soon and will begin operations in the league's New York offices about Feb. 1.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

WHEN you and I were young we used to hear our parents dismiss this or that topic of the day with the comment: "That's just newspaper talk." . . . It's apparent that we can revive the saying with good reason today. . . . If the misinformation which has crept into the columns of our contemporaries about All-America Football conference developments is a criterion, you can rely on little in the sports sections of some of Chicago's papers except the box scores and race results. . . . This department organized the All-America conference. . . . We lined up the owners, none of whom knew any of the others when they went into the venture. . . . We have had a hand in the signing of most of the coaches. . . . We have attended every meeting of the league since its inception in June, 1944. . . . Hardly a day has passed that we haven't talked to at least three or four club executives. . . . We think we are fairly well informed about the operations of the various teams, yet we are astonished every few days to read in some other journal about developments that have no foundation in fact whatever. . . . If the rest of those papers' columns are as unreliable, no wonder their circulations make such slow progress. . . . Here are a few statements that have appeared in recent weeks which we answer True or False and invite critics to correct us, if we are wrong:

[1] Bernie Bierman, University of Minnesota coach, was offered $30,000 to coach the New York team of the conference. Ans.—False. . . . [2] Ted Collins, owner of the Boston National league team, rejected a guarantee against operating loss by the All-America. Ans.—False. . . . [3] The All-America has guaranteed the New York Yankees against loss for two years. Ans.—False. . . . [4] The All-America doesn't have a football. Ans.—True. . . . [5] Slip Madigan has been named coach of the Los Angeles team. Ans.—False. . . . [6] Jeff Cravath of Southern California turned down an offer to coach the Los Angeles team because five years' salary was not placed in a bank before Dec. 1 Ans.—False. . . . [7] John L. Keeshin, owner of the Chicago club, has produced no contract showing the signature of Elroy Hirsch, Wisconsin half back. Ans.—False. . . . [8] The conference has turned over $100,000 to Dan Topping, owner of the Yankees, for joining the new league. Ans.—75 per cent correct. . . . [9] The All-America was organized because some one was mad at National league owners. Ans.—False. . . . [10] The New York Yankees have been given a choice of players signed by the new league. Ans.—False. . . . [11] Sid Luckman of the Bears has been offered a contract by teams in the All-America. Ans.—False. . . . Three Bear players seek jobs with Chicago team in All-America. Ans.—True.

We realize all the above items and many more like them have been good exploitation for the new league, but once in a while, at least, readers are entitled to know what's really going on.

Peace at a Price

You broke my heart with careless words, and I
In desperation made a foolish vow
To take a woman's way of striking back
And planned a wreath of nettles for your brow.
I spread my wings in little wicked ways—
A wanton, light and false—and then apart
I viewed with consternation how the scheme
Contrived to trade with you a broken heart.
Retribution's gain is mean and small:
Now I hate myself the most of all.

Purdue Wins from Louisville, 51-45

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special]—The Notre Dame basketball team won its fourth straight game of the season tonight, defeating St. Louis university, 60 to 45, before 1,500.

Leo Klier, veteran forward, paced the Irish with five field goals and five free throws for 15 points, while Billy Hassett and Vince Boryla were close behind with 13 each.

The Irish started slowly but pulled away in the last 10 minutes of the first half to lead, 30 to 20, at the intermission and were never threatened in the second half.

BOILERMAKERS WIN

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 19 [Special]—The Purdue university basketball squad had to put on a brilliant second half rally to gain its fifth straight victory of the season tonight, the Boilermakers defeating the University of Louisville, 51 to 45.

The visitors, paced by Ed Kupper and Don Kinker, held a 33 to 22 margin at half time but it was a vastly different story in the second half. Sparked by a pair of freshmen, Julius Ritter and Howard Williams, Purdue trimmed the Louisville margin to two points, 33 to 31, in six minutes, scoring four field goals and a free throw while blanking the visitors, then going ahead as Louisville tired rapidly. POLICE BALK AT LOU GORDON'S FOOTBALL TOIL

Lou Gordon, former professional football player who has been on the Chicago police force since Jan. 14, 1939, yesterday found his activity as a football official for the National Professional league has incurred the wrath of Police Commissioner Allman.

Yesterday the former University of Illinois athlete was charged with leaving the city without permission, conduct unbecoming a policeman, disobedience of orders, absence from duty without permission, and violation of the police code which prohibits engaging in other business.

Gordon's trial by the police board will be heard Jan. 2. In filing charges with the civil service commission, Allman made no recommendations for punishment.

Gordon was charged with being absent 13 days between Sept. 23 and Dec. 3, a period during which National Football league teams were busy playing on Sundays in various cities.

DELAY HEARING OF TRAINERS ON DOPING CHARGE

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 19 (AP)—The Maryland racing commission announced today the indefinite postponement of hearings for two trainers in connection with alleged use of stimulants on horses at the November meeting at Pimlico.

The announcement, made by Chairman George P. Mahoney, came 24 hours after attorneys for the trainers, E. A. Christmas of the W. L. Brann stable and Clay Sutphin of Sylvester W. Labrot Jr.'s string, filed suit in Circuit court seeking to have the commission's rule against doping declared invalid.

CUBS, WHITE SOX KEEP 1:30 P. M. STARTING TIME

Baseball games will start at 1:30 p. m. again next season in Wrigley field and Comiskey park, officials of the two Chicago major league clubs decided yesterday.

"The fans liked the 1:30 starting time in 1945, so why change it?" General Manager Jim Gallagher of the Cubs said yesterday in answer to inquiries.

Leslie O'Connor, new general manager of the White Sox, also said he was willing to go along with the war time arrangement of starting games at 1:30 instead of at 3 p. m.

MIKAN, POSTELS GET BIG TEN O. K.

De Paul, Iowa Benefit by New Decision

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The lanky and active frame of George Mikan, De Paul's center, will continue to function on the basketball court this winter. So will the dead-heat twins, Robert and Ross Hume, move along in their indoor track activities for Michigan. And Ned Postels, regular guard on the Iowa basketball team which won the Western conference championship last season, will be able to help the Hawkeyes in defense of their title.

The above facts were revealed yesterday by Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, commissioner of the Western conference, in a decision resulting from a postal ballot among the 10 members of the league.

The careers of Mikan, the Hume twins, and Postels were endangered by the recently enacted conference legislation which in some quarters was interpreted as indicating their eligibility would be terminated immediately. Result of the mail poll of the conference schools, Commissioner Wilson announced yesterday, extended the eligibility of the aforesaid athletes thru the winter sports season.

Boosts Title Hopes

This ruling will enable Mikan and Postels to finish out the regular season, which will heighten the championship hopes of the Blue Demons and the Hawkeyes. It also will extend the eligibility of the Hume twins thru the indoor track season.

The new rule specified that athletes who had completed three years of competition during the war time period, barring their play as freshmen or military trainees, would become ineligible under the conference pattern of rules. Mikan, 6 foot 9 inch, bespectacled De Paul center, provides a perfect example of the case. The current season is George's fourth as an upper classman. He did not play as a freshman.

Chandler Is Thru

Wilson last night emphasized that his league's decision at the winter meeting here earlier this month was not affected by the poll of the various schools. He further added that while Mikan, the Humes, and Postels would be permitted to finish out the winter sports season, Bill Chandler Jr., Marquette basketball star and son of the Hilltoppers' coach, would not profit from the winter time eligibility extension, since he already has completed four full seasons of play.

The result of the poll, Wilson said, obviously was based on the requests of conference and extra-conference schools that athletes who already had started the winter season should not be denied the opportunity to finish it.

Three others who will benefit from the extended ruling are Bob Rosendahl of Marquette and Max Mohr of Minnesota, both basketball players, and Bob Fitch of Minnesota, the Gopher football player who is expected to count a point or two for the northerners' indoor track team this winter.

Hank Luisetti to Help Coach Navy Basket Team

St. Philip Defeats Fenwick; Weber, Joliet, Mt. Carmel Win

St. Philip High school, defending all-city champion, gained the quarter-final round of the 12th annual St. George pre-season senior basketball tournament by defeating Fenwick, 32 to 20, in the feature contest on last night's four game card.

Weber, Joliet Catholic, and Mount Carmel, pre-tourney favorite, also joined the round of eight by triumphing in last night's play in the St. George gym. Weber, also strongly rated, easily trounced St. Mary of Perpetual Help, 49 to 31. Joliet advanced with a 41 to 28 victory over Loyola academy, while the Caravan routed Lewis school of Lockport, 56 to 21.

The Gaels, runner-up to St. Patrick in the 1944 meet, spurted in the third period to gain a 22 to 14 advantage by the end of the quarter after holding a slim three point lead at half time. The intermission score was 11 to 8, but Dick Flando and Bill Gamboney paced the third period attack for St. Philip while the Friars lost the services of their center, Roger Brown, who left the game on fouls.

Rally Wins for Joliet

A rally late in the third period gave Joliet its triumph after Loyola had taken a 20 to 12 lead at half time. With three minutes remaining in the third quarter Don Berge scored a basket and two free throws to give Joliet a 24 to 23 advantage. It never relinquished the lead. Dick Hausser's 16 points topped the victors.

Weber rolled up a 30 to 14 half time lead on St. Mary and had little trouble in capturing the second contest of the evening. Capt. Henry Wojtyla was the Red Horde's offensive star with 16 points.

Play Four Games Tonight

Lewis failed to provide the expected opposition for the strong Caravan quintet, which has won seven of eight games this season. Scoring honors in this game went to Lou Blankmeier, who tallied 17 points of the Mount Carmel total.

The second round will be completed with tonight's four game schedule.

OHIO ATHLETIC BOARD APPROVES '46 U. S. C. GAME

Columbus, O., Dec. 19 (AP)—The Ohio State university athletic board gave its formal approval tonight to the scheduling of a football game between the Buckeyes and Southern California in Los Angeles next Oct. 5.

Southern California replaces Iowa on the Ohio schedule. The Hawkeyes announced recently their game with the Ohioans would be postponed until 1947 to permit a lightening of next year's program. The change leaves Ohio with only five 1946 home games.

In addition to Southern California, the Ohioans will meet Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Illinois away from home.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The second place Chicago Blackhawks and the first place Montreal Canadiens played to a 4 to 4 tie before 15,812 in Chicago Stadium last night after both had enjoyed leads and suffered confusion in rough and avid skating.

The result, tho it left the Hawks a game out of first place in the National Hockey league, kept each of the two top teams on pretty much of a standoff basis. Each had won a game from the other before the tie, and each has scored 13 goals against the other in the three games.

Penalties were factors in most of the scoring of both sides and some of the penalties called caused the crowd to rather forcefully object to the refereeing of Mons. Georges Gravel, or Gravelle, an earnest little Montrealer, who certainly was trying to do his best.

Scoring Distributed

The Hawks' scoring was widely distributed. Rookie George Gee scored the first goal of the evening, assisted by Don Grosso, but two goals by Maurice Richard gave the Canadiens a 2 to 1 lead at the end of the first period.

Goals by Grosso and Max Bentley—Max's 18th of the season in the second period—put the Hawks ahead, 3 to 2.

The Canadiens, on counters by Murphy Chamberlain and Toe Blake, went ahead early in the third period, but in 11:35 of the final session Clint Smith registered his 11th goal of the season to effect the final tabulation.

Speak in Several Languages

The Hawks hopped off to a 1 to 0 lead shortly after 6½ minutes of play when Gee nudged one into the wide open corner while Goalie Durnan was trying to regain his balance after stopping a long shot by Grosso.

The Hawks seemed to be holding their edge until they became angered with Referee Gravel, who threw Cooper off on a rather finely shaded charging decision. The Hawks kept ahead while Cooper served his two minute term, but while Cooper was standing in front of the Hawk bench waiting for a replacement to emerge, Richard and Lach put on a perfectly executed pass play which gave Richard an unchallenged shot past Goalie Karakas.

This tying goal, in 15:27 of the first period, was followed by some wrangling which first resulted in Referee Gravel, who had been chatting with some of the Canadiens in French, slapping a misconduct penalty on Capt. Hamill for using still another language, known as profane. Seconds later Mariucci went in the penalty box for high sticking and while he and Hamill were sitting it out Richard and Lach again danced down the rink, Richard again scoring, ably assisted by Lach.

Hawks Quick to Rally

The Canadiens seemed quite gay over the lead they enjoyed in the first five minutes of the second period. Then Glen Harmon was locked up and the Hawks took lightning advantage of his incarceration. Grosso, assisted by Mosienko, scored the tying goal in 5:45, and 44 seconds later Max Bentley broke thru Emile Bouchard and Leo Lamoureaux, and scored on a long whizzer to put the Hawks ahead, 3 to 2.

In the second minute of the third period Reay and Chamberlain caught the Hawks with only one defense man back and neatly split out as Reay passed laterally to Chamberlain, who made the tying goal.

Reds Sign George Kelly to Scout on West Coast

WILDCATS SEEK 3D STRAIGHT IN STADIUM GAME

Northwestern university's basketball team will seek its third straight victory of the season when it meets Western Michigan's Broncos in the first game of a double header program in Chicago Stadium at 8:15 tomorrow night. A second game will find De Paul's undefeated five facing Oregon State.

Western Michigan, with a starting lineup that averages 6 feet 3, is expected to give the Wildcats the strongest competition they yet have encountered this season. The Broncos scored an impressive overtime victory over St. John's in Madison Square Garden a week ago and lost a close decision to Michigan. Northwestern comes to its third test with an imposing scoring record, the Wildcats having conquered DePauw, 67 to 36, and Marquette, 64 to 35.

Key figures in Northwestern's offensive minded quintet are the veteran Max Morris, defending Big Ten scoring champion, and Leroy King, 6 foot 7 inch center, a newcomer to the Purple basket ranks. Morris leads the Wildcats in scoring with 39 points and King follows with 35.

of the Detroit Lions was the second disappointment the Detroit club has suffered in the last two days. Frank Sinkwich, the National Football league's most valuable player in 1944, yesterday made known he will not return to the Lions next season.

John Sabo, professional football writer for the Detroit Free Press, said tonight that Hopp was the best back on Detroit's roster in the span between Whizzer White and Sinkwich.

"There are some who rate Hopp the equal of White or Sinkwich," Sabo stated. "He did everything well whether he was operating at half back or full back," he added.

HALAS SAYS 'NO'

George Halas, owner-coach of the Chicago Bears of the National Football league said last night the Bears had been offered $25,000 by Dan Topping to meet Topping's New York Yankees of the new All-America conference in an exhibition game next fall.

Halas said his answer to Topping was "no." Elmer Layden, commissioner of the National league, said he did not know of Topping's offer to Halas.

FALK QUINTET LOSES, 68 TO 36, TO FT. SHERIDAN

The Fort Sheridan Ramblers won their ninth straight basketball game last night when they defeated Falk Corporation of Milwaukee, 68 to 36, at Fort Sheridan. The soldiers led at the half, 36 to 19. In a preliminary game, the Bakers and Cooks school beat Herzl Junior college, 44 to 41. Lineup:

RAILS TO FORM NEW SLEEPING CAR COMPANY

Expect Otis Appeal to Delay Action

With its sale approved by a federal expediting court in Philadelphia, the next step in the transfer of the Pullman company from its present owners to the railroads will be the organization of a new company to operate within the limits prescribed by the court order, Chicago railroad executives said yesterday. Pending receipt of the complete court order, the carriers said they were not prepared to discuss details of their plans.

Ralph Budd

Meanwhile, James P. Masterson, Philadelphia attorney representing Otis & Co., Cleveland investment banking house, said an appeal would be taken to the Supreme court. Otis & Co. had submitted a bid for the Pullman sleeping car business. The action by Masterson is expected to delay any change in the present Pullman organization.

Order Covers 10 Pages

In a 10 page order the three judge court approved the sale by Pullman, Inc., of the stock of the Pullman company to 43 railroads for approximately 75 million dollars. The action was taken under an anti-trust decree by the same court in which Pullman, Inc., was required to divest itself either of its sleeping car business or its car manufacturing subsidiary, the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company. Pullman, Inc., elected to retain the latter.

Fred G. Gurley, president of the Santa Fe, who acted as spokesman for the purchasing group, was out of Chicago and no comment was forthcoming from his associates in the negotiations, Gustav Metzman, president of the New York Central, and Ernest Norris, president of the Southern.

Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington, said he believed purchase of the Pullman company by the railroads is the best possible solution to the problem created by the anti-trust action against Pullman, Inc.

Already Operate Own Diners

"It appeared from the beginning that the only complete removal of the monopoly aspects of the case would be thru having the railroads own the cars they operate," Budd said. "We have operated our own dining cars for years. The railroads have operated an automatic pool of frate cars and no doubt their own passenger sleeping car operation will be as successful."

Budd explained that just as the railroads exchange frate cars among themselves they should be able to exchange passenger cars not needed in their own operation, but needed by some other line for seasonal reasons. He said that in his opinion the new Pullman company probably will own relatively few cars and its major activity will be as a service organization.

Work Out Own Problems

H. A. Scandrett, president of the Milwaukee road, said:

"Rail operation of the sleeping cars should prove more satisfactory than any other plan submitted. With the interchange of sleeping cars and the constant improvement in equipment and service, tuned to the times, it is a distinct advantage to have the railroads control and work out their own problems instead of thru some other agency."

James M. Symes, western vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad, Chicago, said, "Naturally we are pleased with the decision of the court. The plan of operation proposed by the railroads will result in a continuance of the fine record of service and efficiency built up by the Pullman company over a long period of years."

COAL SUPPLIES HELD SUFFICIENT IF NOT HOARDED

Chicago has enough coal to go around provided it is used as sparingly as possible and is not hoarded, the Chicago Coal Merchants association said yesterday. The supply from the east has been virtually eliminated by recent strikes, it said. Chicago dealers are receiving daily shipments from mines in Illinois and Indiana, and most are keeping a three week supply ahead.

Midwestern coal tends to give less heat and more smoke if too much is dumped on the fire at one time, Frank J. Donovan, treasurer of the association, warned. He advised users to fire the furnace "light and often."

Altho the close of lake navigation has eased demand, railroads, which normally use 25 per cent of the country's output, have shorter coal supplies than at any time during the war, said Donovan.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—The house passed and sent to the senate today legislation authorizing the treasury to sell or lease government held silver for industrial use for the next two years. Rep. White [R., Idaho] sought unsuccessfully to boost from 71.11 cents to $1.29 an ounce the minimum price at which the metal could be sold.

Files Test Suit on Bond Issue for Vet Homes

Shortly after Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that he would recommend turning over a 5 million dollar bond issue to the Chicago housing authority for construction of emergency homes for war veterans and their families, State's Atty. Tuohy filed suit in Superior court to test the legality of the bond issue.

Tuohy's bill charged that the issuance of the bonds, authorized by the city council April 16 and approved at a special election June 4, is illegal. So is the revised cities and villages act passed by the state legislature in 1941 upon which the bond issue depends, the suit said.

Lists Questioned Provisions

1. It attempts to empower municipalities to acquire private property.
2. It gives municipalities authority to assess and collect taxes for other than municipal corporate purposes.
3. It fails to express facts sufficient to constitute an emergency.

For these reasons, the suit contended, the defendants are usurping their powers to the damage and prejudice of the people of Illinois. Defendants are listed as Mayor Kelly, Ludwig Schreiber, city clerk, and Robert B. Upham, city controler.

The mayor's announcement followed receipt of information that the state is prepared to turn over to the Chicago housing authority $4,300,000—the city's share of the state's slum clearance funds—to build emergency housing for veterans.

Revolving Fund Planned

The two funds were set up as a revolving fund, with which the city would buy slum properties, clear them, and resell the cleared land to private interests which in turn would erect dwelling facilites.

Ald. Lindel [9th], head of the council's housing committee, said he had asked Miss Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the CHA, to make application for 7,000 additional multiple dwelling units for veterans. An application for 2,000 of the homes plus 1,000 trailers already has been approved by the federal housing authority. The first of the 2,000 homes is being set up at Kilbourne and Foster avs.

Donald Hulmes, Chicago real estate manager for the Prudential Life Insurance company, will meet today with council and housing officials to discuss the possible entry of the company into large scale housing developments in Chicago.

LOOP LAND SOLD TO PROVIDE BANK AUTO FACILITIES

Daniel P. and Walter S. Trude, owners of the National Republic building at the northwest corner of La Salle and Adams sts., yesterday bought the vacant property, 65 by 188 feet, adjoining the corner on the west, from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for $125,000. Arthur Rubloff & Co. was sole broker.

The land will be used as an exit for the drive-in deposit window planned by the Exchange National Bank of Chicago [now the Halsted Exchange National bank], which recently leased the first floor and basement.

The drive-in facility will permit a customer to ride in from La Salle st. to the special window, made a deposit or withdrawal without leaving his car, and leave thru the property just purchased.

Begin Radio-Telephone Service to Barbados

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—The first radio-telephone service between the United States and the British-owned island of Barbados in the Caribbean sea will be started tomorrow, the American Telephone and Telegraph company announced today. The rate for three minutes is $10.50. Voices will be transmitted by short wave radio from Miami, Fla.

STEELS, RETAIL STOCKS HIGHER; RAILS UNEVEN

Many Gains Pared in Late Trading

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Steels, retail stores and aircrafts generally advanced fractions to a point in today's stock market. Rails, however, sold off near the close and ended mixed. Metals were mostly lower. Gains in numerous industrials were reduced in the last hour.

Buyers apparently believed that the sharp selloff on Monday had provided a substantial technical correction of the recent advance to highs for almost 15 years, but tax selling continued.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite declined 0.1 to 74.8. Of 886 issues dealt in, 472 advanced, 251 declined and 163 closed unchanged. Turnover fell to 970,000 shares against 1,350,000 yesterday.

Several Set New Highs

General American Investors set a new 1945 high on an increased dividend as did Julius Kayser on a stock splitup proposal. New York Central and American News also touched new highs.

Principal gainers included Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Consolidated Vultee, American Water Works, Kennecott, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, and Southern Railway.

Among the losers were United States Steel, Chrysler, Goodyear, Sperry, American Telephone, Public Service [N. J.], Phelps Dodge, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, and Texas company.

RAIL BONDS GAIN

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—The bond market advanced unevenly today with principal gains in a selected list of rails and industrial specialties. Higher priced corporates and United States government obligations held about steady. Sales were $6,740,000, against $5,890,000 yesterday.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange averaged slightly higher yesterday in turnover of only 35,000 shares. Of the 105 issues traded, 57 registered gains, 31 closed lower, and 17 were unchanged. Among the more active stocks Middle West, Oak Manufacturing, and Automatic Washer each rose up ¼, Commonwealth and Southern was up ⅝ to a new high of 11⅝, and Sears was unchanged at 36.

JUDGE IGOE TOLD RISKS INVOLVED IN TRANSIT BONDS

A report on the risks of investing in the proposed Chicago metropolitan transit authority bonds was made yesterday by Fred Kleinman, chief of finance for the Illinois commerce commission, in the federal District court of Judge Igoe.

Kleinman, who said that the metro offer of 75 million dollars for the surface lines was fair, added that it was difficult to estimate many factors which in the next 10 years might be encountered in the operations of a merged surface and elevated lines company. Uncertainties include labor costs, pensions, prices for supplies, competition from automobiles, adequate reserves for depreciation, and the speed with which modernization of the properties could be accomplished.

Kleinman said a privately owned company could offer not more than 65 millions, the difference being accounted for by a publicly owned corporation's freedom from general taxes and the exemption of its bonds from federal income taxes.

At Lawrence the I. W. W. had made a little progress in organizing unskilled and semi-skilled workers of the American Woolen Co., when a Massachusetts law reduced weekly working hours for women from 56 to 54. Thereupon the company went on a 54 hour basis, with no increase in hourly or piece-work rate. Against this reduction in earnings the members of the I. W. W. struck. Skilled workers, members of an A. F. of L. union, adhered to their contract and remained at work. The issue was popular and I. W. W. membership grew. Strikers were supported by outside subscription and by sending children to New York, Philadelphia, and elsewhere. Under Bill Haywood's leadership there was strenuous picketing and violence. The state militia was called. Skilled workers in the A. F. of L. union later joined in the strike. After 9½ weeks the company gave the workers practically all they asked for. During the first week of the strike the stock of the company held firm. On the day of the announced exodus of workers' children the stock broke 2½ points, followed by a recovery. The stock then remained quiet until the day the strike terminated, when the stock rose nearly 2 points.

Florida Boom Reminiscent of '27 Bubble

BY GAIL COMPTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

West Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 19—The Florida land boom is on again.

Homes and apartment buildings are being snapped up when they appear on the market at prices more than a third above pre-war figures. Ocean front footage commands fancy prices, with one recent sale at $300 a foot.

Bankers and real estate brokers are not concerned over the land rush. They insist the situation is healthy and that purchases are being made for investment and not speculation.

Predict 7 Year Boom

The more optimistic business men believe the boom good for at least seven years. Others expect the market to be good for about two years. This is all the time needed for people to get rid of their war earnings, which are the big source of the money.

In the 1925-'27 boom large tracts of land were bought and sold with no one bothering to inspect the property. Vacant lots passed thru hundreds of hands, each purchase made with the hope of profit and not thru a desire to build. Today the boom differs in that most purchases are for home sites and buyers have the intention of building.

The banks now are lending up to 50 per cent of the appraised value of a home or lot. They are not lending on the market value of property, which was the 1925-'27 custom.

"We are at boom time levels but prices are not running away," was the view of W. W. Mangham, vice president and cashier of the Florida Bank and Trust company. "Conditions still are healthy, but when price ceilings come off there may be a scramble that will send prices out of sight."

All Pay 'Season' Rentals

Mangham predicted a tremendous building boom as soon as materials become more readily available. A substantial amount of building already is under way, he said.

Real estate dealers have little to do now but sell lots. All available space in apartments and hotels and houses has been taken. Even people working in Florida towns for a livelihood are forced to pay "season" rentals for a place to live when they can find one.

A lot 50 by 50 feet in the cheaper bungalow section of this town sells for between $500 and $1,000. On the water front a lot 50 by 225 sold last week for $11,000.

One man in St. Petersburg bought a house for $10,000 two years ago. At the urging of a real estate broker he put it on the market a month ago for $30,000. He now has a buyer but hesitates to sell because it is impossible to get another place to live.

BRETTON WOODS SIGNING RITES SET FOR DEC. 27

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—The United States has invited the eligible nations to participate in a ceremony Dec. 27 at the state department when the final Bretton Woods fund and bank agreements will be signed, Dean Acheson, acting secretary of state, announced today.

Acheson said he hoped that Russia would be able to sign at that time. China, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, Ethiopia, the Philippines, and the Union of South Africa already have indicated readiness to sign the agreements with the United States. Great Britain also is expected to sign then since parliament yesterday completed favorable action on the agreement.

The state department said it had been informed that Belgium, Canada, Colombia, Cuba, Ecuador, Guatemala, France, the Netherlands, Venezuela, and Yugoslavia may be prepared to sign the agreements too along with "a number of other countries."

MEN'S CLOTHING IS SO SCARCE RATION PLAN IS BELIEVED USELESS

New York, Dec. 19 (AP)—Lew Hahn, general manager of the National Retail Dry Goods association, referring to a report that the OPA was considering a plan to issue priorities to ex-service men to enable them to buy clothing, said today such a plan would not be effective.

"Clothing stocks have sunk too low for rationing," Hahn said, terming the men's clothing shortage a "national scandal." He added:

"The only realistic approach to the situation is for OPA to amend its price ceilings on linings so that large amounts of clothing now in work may be completed and shipped to retailers for distribution to the public. As it is, inadequate price ceilings on linings have led to textile manufacturers diverting their production to other fabrics."

ICC Approves Big Burlington Bond Offering

The Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railroad company was authorized yesterday by the interstate commerce commission to issue $49,765,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds. The 2¾ per cent issue maturing in 1970 was won by a Halsey, Stuart & Co. syndicate on a bid of 100.13999 and offered at 100.80, subject to ICC approval.

Proceeds and other company funds will be used to retire $32,470,000 general mortgage 4 per cent bonds, and $17,295,000 first and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent bonds.

Bonds and preferred stocks offered publicly yesterday totaled nearly 19 million dollars.

State, Local Issues Marketed

Halsey, Stuart groups marketed $2,900,000 State of Louisiana 4 per cent, 1½ per cent, and 1¼ per cent highway bonds; $239,000 City of Scranton, Pa., school district 1½ per cent bonds at prices to yield 0.50 to 1.20 per cent, and $994,000 Santa Ana [Cal.] Junior College District bonds to yield 0.60 to 1.25 per cent.

Richmond, Va., awarded $2,840,000 of public improvement bonds to Mellon Securities corporation and associates on a bid of 100.951 for a 1 per cent coupon. The bonds were reoffered to the public at prices to yield 0.35 to 0.95 per cent.

A First Boston corporation group was awarded 100,000 shares of Central Power and Light company preferred on a bid of 102¾ for a 4 per cent dividend less $160,010 dealers' compensation in connection with exchanging old for new shares.

Offer Senior, Common Stocks

Other offering included 17,798 shares of Southern Advance Bag and Paper company 4½ per cent $100 par cumulative preferred at $102.50 a share, and 35,100 shares of Firth Carpet company common stock at $8.50 a share.

The Visking corporation registered with the security and exchange commission 150,000 class A common shares to be offered by A. G. Becker & Co. and Lehman Brothers, effecting the first public participation in ownership of the Chicago manufacturer of cellulose sausage casings.

Brown Shoe company today will register 40,000 shares of cumulative preferred stock. Proceeds will be used in prepaying a 3 million dollar 2¼ per cent bank loan maturing in 1955.

Lift Eastern Deep Mine Coal Price Tops 7 Cents

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (AP)—The OPA announced today an immediate increase of 7 cents a ton in producers' price ceilings for deep mine soft coal from central Pennsylvania, Maryland and part of West Virginia. The increase will be passed on to consumers. It does not apply to coal from strip mines.

FACT FINDERS PROPOSED TO ADVISE ON DEBT

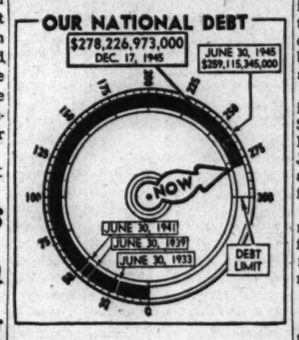
Would Aid Public and Congress

The 300 billion dollar federal debt has become so complex and far reaching that the government should set up a permanent, impartial, fact finding organization to provide sound counsel on this problem, Aubrey G. Lanston, vice president of the First Boston corporation, said yesterday.

"This organization would be directly responsible to, and be the tool of, congress," the investment banking house executive said in the winter number of Harvard Business Review. "As important measures come up, it should be its function to analyze them and to provide both the committees of congress and all others who request it the pertinent information relating to any particular proposal.

Public Understanding Sought

"The organization also should be empowered to make its reports available to the public. Thus we might insure a sounder public understanding of all our problems and the relationship that one bears to another."



The organization would be headed by one or three directors who would be responsible for its structure and functions. The salaries would be high enough to attract "only the best qualified men."

"If the necessary emoluments ran as high as those of the President of the United States, the American people would still have purchased a bargain," Lanston said.

"The staff of the entire organization should be subject to the sole authority of the directors. This would insure that the organization be staffed on a merit basis and not in satisfaction of political debts or patronage demand.

Assured of Facts

"In essence, the organization amounts to nothing more than insurance that congress, the executive office, and the American people would have an unbiased and thoroly independent source of facts. Properly organized and administered, it could be a most important influence in the formulation of American public opinion."

Lanston said the alternative to his suggestion would be further improvisations, compromises, and political expediencies, which will "before long bring about such a terrific assortment of confused forces that we will be face to face with a major catastrophe."

County Board Gets Protest on '46 Budget

A warning that the property tax in Chicago—estimated at $4.23 per $100 of valuation for 1945—cannot bear the burden of an inflationary spiral was issued to the county board yesterday by J. A. Cunningham, president of the Civic federation.

At a public hearing on the 1946 budget, tentatively set at $25,738,000, Cunningham said that the government must adopt "the same rugged policy" as business in streamlining its operations, adopting every possible mechanized labor saving device, insisting on more efficiency from every employe, and eliminating employes who cannot or will not deliver.

He urged the board to seek new sources of local revenues and said a more equitable allocation of money collected by the state from Chicago residents should be an objective in helping keep the property tax down. The 1945 tax rate is up 26 cents over 1944, and indications are that it will increase sharply in 1946, he asserted.

Levies, Expenditures Mount

Cunningham emphasized that the $25,625,000 county tax levy for 1946 exceeds the 1945 levy by an estimated $1,082,000 and the 1941 levy by $11,258,000.

The new budget, which provides a 10 per cent raise for county employes, shows a substantial increase in current expenditures, whereas in the last several years the sharp increase in the corporate levy has been brought about by the necessity of liquidating deficits, he said.

The Cook County School of Nursing, for which the board set up $2,300,000 in the budget, presented Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, in support of its plea for more funds.

Dr. Fishbein said 1946 would witness a greater demand upon the facilities of the school because of new disease problems caused by men returning from war.

Home Owners Protest

Alfred Taylor, charman of the school's finance committee, asserted that at least $2,774,000 was necessary to provide for the school next year. The school originally asked $3,100,000, and the board has indicated it will grant $2,400,000.

Taylor said proper nursing standards could not be maintaned on the basis of a $2,400,000 appropriation, "even with the present inadequate staff."

J. F. Eichler, representing the United Home Owners of Illinois, a taxpayers organization, asserted that "the taxpayer feels he is being taken for a one way ride." He urged the board to resist demands for wage and salary increases.

Chairman Daniel Ryan of the board's finance committee said a meeting would be held tomorrow or Saturday to adopt the budget.

AMERICAN STEEL FOUNDRIES' NET EARNINGS HIGHER

Net income of American Steel Foundries rose to $4,905,968 in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 from $2,675,383 in the preceding year, largely because of decreased deduction for amortization of emergency war facilities, Thomas Drever, president, told stockholders in his annual report. Deductions for amortization were $164,317 in 1945 compared with $1,383,872 the preceding fiscal year.

Cancellation of war orders reduced net sales to $74,234,000 from $80,971,000 in 1944. Unfilled orders at the end of the year amounted to 16 million dollars, all for normal products, compared with 44 millions, including war equipment, at the close of the 1944 fiscal year.

Drever assailed OPA ceilings. Prices on the company's regular products and the end of the year were only 5 per cent higher than in October, 1941, he said, tho labor costs rose more than 35 per cent.

DOUBTS INCOME TAX WILL DROP MORE TILL 1947

Balanced Budget Is First—Doughton

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—Further reduction of individual income and corporation taxes today was declared improbable until 1947 by Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee.

"Until we achieve a balanced budget I see no justification for reduced taxes," Doughton told a press conference. "Corporations and individuals should not expect any further tax relief until 1947. In my opinion, now that we have ceased heavy war expenditures, we should get on a pay-as-you-go basis.

"I don't know how long people will continue to buy bonds if deficit spending continues. They will lose confidence in the credit of the government."

Has Charge of Tax Bills

Doughton's statement was significant in view of the fact that the house, under the Constitution, must initiate tax legislation and his committee is charged with the drafting of tax bills for the house. Congress recently passed a bill for some tax reductions which go into effect Jan. 1.

Doughton said his committee would not start any action on major bills until next March or April when it will begin consideration of numerous proposals for revision of the social security tax system. Some 80 bills are pending on this subject, based on recommendations for broadening and liberalizing the base of the system to include domestics, farm labor and other groups, for health benefits and similar proposals.

Committee consideration may take "all summer," he said. The repeal of certain "onerous and harsh" excise taxes is also on the committee docket as well as a trade protection measure for the Philippine Islands, soon to be given their independence.

No Guess on Debt Reduction

Asked when the government might start reducing the tremendous national debt, which is approaching 300 billions, Doughton refused to make a guess. The main objective, he said, is to keep current expenditures as low as current revenue and that, he indicated, would be difficult enough to achieve.

"If we can get a yearly budget of less than 25 or 30 billions, I'll be very much surprised," he remarked. "Veterans' benefits are already very large and there will be further demands. Servicing [paying interest on] the national debt is a huge item in itself which cannot be reduced.

"We must keep taxes at a level which will bring in as much revenue as we spend. Further income tax reductions will have to wait until that point is reached."

ZENITH REPORTS ORDER BACKLOG OF 72 MILLIONS

Orders totaling 57 million dollars for household radios and 15 millions for automobile sets will demand all of Zenith Radio corporation's output for the next several months, H. C. Bonfig, vice president, said yesterday.

Only 26 of the company's 62 new models are in production because of scarcity of materials, Bonfig said.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY

General Mortgage Gold Bonds

SERIES E, 4½%, DUE JULY 1, 1977

Great Northern Railway Company has irrevocably directed The First National Bank of the City of New York to publish appropriate notices calling for redemption on July 1, 1947 the entire issue of the above mentioned Series E Bonds then outstanding at 105% of principal amount plus accrued interest to said date.

Great Northern Railway Company hereby offers to purchase said Series E Bonds from the holders thereof up to and including December 31, 1945, excluding Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, at prices dependent on the date of delivery for purchase, such prices decreasing from 111.99% of principal amount as to Bonds delivered on September 24, 1945 to 110.93% of principal amount as to Bonds delivered on December 31, 1945, to yield in all cases ½% to July 1, 1947, the date of redemption. Accrued interest at 4½% per annum from July 1, 1945 to the date of purchase will be added in each case. The Company has prepared a table showing the price so payable as to Bonds delivered on each day (other than Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, which days are not delivery dates) from September 24, 1945 to and including December 31, 1945 and will be glad to advise bondholders thereof upon request. Holders of said Series E Bonds desiring to accept this offer should deliver their Bonds with all unmatured appurtenant coupons to The First National Bank of the City of New York, at its office, No. 2 Wall Street, New York 15, N. Y. against payment of the purchase price and accrued interest as aforesaid.

SERIES I, 3¾%, DUE JANUARY 1, 1967

Great Northern Railway Company has irrevocably directed The First National Bank of the City of New York to publish appropriate notices calling for redemption on January 1, 1946 the entire issue of the above mentioned Series I Bonds then outstanding at 104% of principal amount plus accrued interest to said date.

Holders of said Series I Bonds may immediately obtain the full redemption price thereof including accrued interest to January 1, 1946 by surrendering such Bonds with all unmatured appurtenant coupons to The First National Bank of the City of New York, at its above mentioned office.
